PREFACE

THIS volume is designed to furnish the student and the general reader with a serviceable edition of Marlowe's accepted writings. The text reproduces faithfully, it is believed, that of the most reliable version of each work, except as regards punctuation and capitalization. In the latter particulars it appears inconsistent with the requirements of conscientious editing to retain such errors as are due to the carelessness of the original compositor or to the limitations of the printer's fount used, but in making these necessary minor changes the text has in no sense been 'modernized'. Unmeaning irregularities in punctuation and in the use of capitals have been normalized, where the comfort of the enlightened reader seemed absolutely to demand it, but always in accordance with Elizabethan rather than Victorian principles. In many cases intelligibility clearly required the substitution of a full stop for a probably accidental comma, or the reverse; and it appeared unnecessary that the reader should be annoyed by such occasional, irregular spellings as 'tamburlaine' and 'zenocrate', merely because the printer of the first edition of the play in question was presumably insufficiently provided with capital T's and Z's.¹ No attempt has been made to introduce the modern symmetry and logical consistency in capitalization and pointing. Semicolons appear only in the rare cases where they are found in the old editions; the present-day distinctions between the uses of commas and colons are not pressed too far; and the employment of the comma for elocutionary effect, to indicate a drop of the voice, has been retained. So, too, there has been no interference with the occasional practice of capitalizing common nouns or with the ordinary absence of capitals in proper adjectives. Errors in the division of lines have been corrected, but wherever the alteration amounts to much more than the mere substitution of a capital letter at the commencement of the line, the change is indicated in the critical apparatus. The long 's' is not retained, and black letter type is supplanted by roman. Words printed in roman in a black-letter setting are here given in italic. All further deviations from the editio princeps of each play or poem are recorded in the footnotes, which give also the variant readings of the other early editions, as well as a selection of the more valuable modern emendations.

The apparatus criticus is comparatively simple. Each separate division of the book is preceded by a list of sigla, enumerating chronologically first the early editions, which determine the text, and then the more modern versions, which possess in themselves no authority, and finally giving in alphabetical order the names and works of critics who have offered conjectural emendations. Bibliographical completeness is attempted in the case of the early editions alone. Only such modern reprints and critical writings are mentioned as there has been occasion to cite in the footnotes. The basis of the text is always the edition named first in the list of sigla, which, wherever the relative dates of editions can be ascertained, is the oldest except in the single case of the song of the Passionate Shepherd.

Certain well-known abbreviations are used throughout the critical apparatus: Conj. before the name of an editor or critic indicates that the change in question was merely suggested, without being introduced into the text. Add. means that the word or passage referred to was first inserted by the editor whose name follows ; when such new matter appears in the present text, it is enclosed in angular brackets. The abbreviation etc. after an editor's name signifies that the reading has been adopted in all later editions. Exc. stands for 'except'. The note 'thirst Dyce to Bull.' means that the reading 'thirst' in place of 'thrust' appears in all the editions from that of Dyce to that of Bullen inclusive.

This volume contains the plays and poems which must at present be regarded as making up Marlowe's extant works. The epigrams of Sir John Davies and Chapman's continuation of Hero and Leander are also included because of their close historical connexion with genuine poems. For the purpose of distinction these non-Marlovian pieces are printed in small type, and the same device is used to mark the supplementary portions of Doctor Faustus first found in the editions of 1616 and 1663 respectively, though it is possible, and even probable, that a portion of the new matter of the 1616 version represents Marlowe's own work.

Two inconsiderable poems, printed by Dyce in his edition of Marlowe, have been omitted because the evidence in favour of their authenticity seems inadequate. A fourteen-line Latin epitaph on Sir Roger Manwood († 1592) is written in manuscript on the back of the title-page of a copy¹ of the 1629 edition of Hero and Leander, whence Dyce incorporated it on the ground that Manwood, who was of Kentish origin, may have been a patron of Marlowe, and that the unknown scribe in copying the epitaph into a work of Marlowe's (and Chapman's) meant to imply the former poet's authorship. This reasoning is on the face of it rather weak, and the fact that the book containing the epitaph was not in existence till thirty-six years after Marlowe's death might cast doubt on much stronger evidence.

Dyce also inserted into his edition a Dialogue in Verse, consisting of about eighty lines, which Collier had first discovered and had printed in The Alieyn Papers (p. 8) from a single MS. folio at Dulwich College. This fragment, which is written in the MS. (Dulwich College MS. I. f 272) as prose and possesses neither any likeness to Marlowe's work nor any great poetic merit, has inscribed on the back in an unknown hand the words Kitt Marlowe. The folly of taking too seriously such vague hints, particularly in the case of suspected manuscripts like those at Dulwich, has often been made evident.

Only the most indispensable critical matter could be admitted into this volume. Each work is preceded by an introduction which sets forth briefly the facts of most importance and summarizes the editor's conclusions. For further details on all these points the reader must be referred to the library edition of Marlowe now in preparation. There will be found also the discussion of Marlowe's life and genius by Professor Raleigh, as well as the explanatory notes on the text and the investigation of Marlowe's claims to partial or complete authorship of Henry VI, Titus Andronicus, The Taming of a Shrew, Lust's Dominion, and the other supposititious works.

The editor feels himself greatly indebted for the loan of early Marlowe editions to the kindness of his Grace the Duke of Devonshire, the Earl of Ellesmere, and the directors of numerous public and private libraries. He owes particular thanks for critical help and assistance to Professor Walter Raleigh, Mr. Percy Simpson, and Mr. J. Le Gay Brereton. To all of these and to others who have been generous of assistance he begs to offer his sincere acknowledgements, while awaiting the opportunity of a specific statement of indebtedness, along with bibliographical and textual details, in the forthcoming larger edition.

TAMBURLAINE

Date. The two parts of Tamburlaine are commonly ascribed to the years 1587 and 1588 respectively, and these dates are almost certainly correct, at least as regards theatrical presentation. It is possible that some portion of the first part may have been written during Marlowe's residence at Cambridge, but it can hardly have been acted on any stage before the poet came to London in 1586. The downward limit is fixed by a sneer of Robert Greene in the epistle 'to the gentlemen readers' of Perimedes the Blacke-Smith, where he ridicules the popular tragedy of the time, 'daring God out of heauen with that Atheist Tamburlan,' and goes on to speak of the 'mad and scoffing poets, that haue prophetically spirits, as bred of Merlin's race, if there be anye in England that set the end of schollarisme in an English blanck verse. . . .' The first allusion is pretty clearly to Tamburlaine's speech in Act v of the second part (ll. 4290-4313), while the words 'Merlin's race' are a punning reference to 'Marlin', the common Elizabethan variant of Marlowe's name.

Early editions and stage history. Tamburlaine was entered at Stationers' Hall in 1590. The entry reads as follows: 'xiiij^{to} die Augusti (1590) Richard Jones. Entred vnto him for his Copie The twooe commicall discourses of TOMBERLEIN the Cithian shepparde vnder the handes of Master Abraham Hartewell, and the Wardens. vj^d.' The two parts were issued together in octavo form in 1590, and again in 1592, the publisher in both cases being Jones, who takes occasion to announce in his epistle to the readers (cf. p. 7) that he has omitted 'some fond and friuolous Iestures'. How great these omissions were there is no likelihood of our learning. Certainly in their present form the two plays have little claim to the title of 'commicall discourses', even when we allow for Elizabethan roughness of definition.

Henslowe's diary records fifteen performances of Part I and seven performances of Part II between August 28, 1594, and November 13, 1595; the profits are in nearly every case large. From this and from the letter 'j' affixed to the notice of the first performance,¹ it may be assumed that Tamburlaine had been to some extent re-written for revival in 1594-5 by the same company which had originally produced it—the Lord Admiral's or Henslowe's. The revised text seems never to have been printed. In 1605-6 Edward White printed a third edition, based on that of 1590; the two parts are here for the first time given separate title pages, and they were published in successive years. There is no reason to believe that any other text of Tamburlaine existed until the beginning of the nineteenth century. Bibliographers' allusions to a quarto of 1590, and to editions of 1593, 1597, and 1600 respectively, are not supported by any discoverable evidence, and the statements of all modern editors previous to A. Wagner (1885) contain inaccuracies.

Authorship. The two parts of Tamburlaine differ from all the other works of Marlowe here printed, in that there is no documentary evidence to establish their authenticity. The title pages of the three early editions bear no author's name, and it so happens that among the myriad allusions to these plays prior to the Restoration we find no pronouncement on the subject of their origin. A reference in Henslowe's Diary² to 'Marloes tambelan' turns out to be a flat forgery, another mention in the 'Gorgon' poems suffixed to Gabriel Harvey's New Letter of Notable Contents (1593) is much too obscure to prove anything, and the lines in Heywood's second Prologue to the Jew of Malta,³ once taken as a statement of Marlowe's authorship of Tamburlaine, make in fact no such assertion.

That a young poet's first experiment in a not very aristocratic species of literature should go publicly unclaimed and unheralded, even after it had achieved success, is, of course, in the Elizabethan age the reverse of surprising. The fact has for us no earthly significance except that it explains what would otherwise be almost inexplicable, namely, the way in which Milton's blundering nephew, Edward Phillips,⁴ came to ascribe the plays to Thomas Newton, author of a prose history touching the same events; and the repudiation of Marlowe's authorship in later years by Malone, Broughton, and the compiler of the first¹ collected edition of the poet's works. The question has now settled itself beyond the imaginable possibility of change, and the two parts of Tamburlaine will continue to head the list of Marlowe's writings, until we are able to establish the chronological priority of some other work of the same poet—Dido, for instance, or the Ovid translations. For the Marlovian authorship of Tamburlaine an almost overwhelming case could be made out, if need were, from circumstantial evidence alone, but there is no reason for resorting to such proof. The personality of the writer is everywhere apparent in these plays. We are not merely assured that no poet except Marlowe was desirous or capable, about 1587, of starting the dramatic and stylistic revolution which Tamburlaine inaugurated. We perceive also that the individual artistic development which we can trace backwards from Edward II to Dr. Faustus must inevitably have had its rise in Tamburlaine.

The dominant trait of Marlowe's genius is its youthfulness; and we approach nowhere else so near to the essential character of the poet as in these two early plays, which, if they did not actually begin his career of authorship, certainly introduced him first to public notice. To a higher degree perhaps than is usually apprehended our conception of Marlowe as a personal influence in poetry is derived from the enthusiastic lyricism of Tamburlaine, and it remains a very open question whether the gain in form and objectivity in the later dramas brings with it an altogether sufficient compensation for the decrease in boyish ideality.

Source. The question of the sources whence Marlowe derived his material for Tamburlaine has been much discussed, and is still not entirely solved. For the first part it seems clear that the poet was indebted primarily to the fourteenth chapter of the second part of Fortescue's Foreste, published in 1571, and again in 1576. Fortescue's book is a translation of Pedro Mexia's Silva de varia lecion (1543), which in its turn is based largely, as regards the chapter in question, but by no means entirely, on the chronicle of Andreas Cambinus. A direct translation from the Italian of Cambinus by John Shute² appears to have been entirely ignored by Marlowe, and there is no reason for assuming the poet's acquaintance with George Whetstone's condensed version of Fortescue in The English Myrror, 1586 (pp. 78-83). It would seem probable, however, that Thomas Newton's Notable History of the Saracens, 1575, furnished Marlowe with a number of proper names and suggested the story of Sigismund in Part II, while Messrs. Herford and Wagner¹ have shown that individual passages of Part I are taken in all probability from the Latin of Petrus Peron-dinus (1553).

The second part of Tamburlaine is confessedly an after-thought, not contemplated when the first part was written. It is mostly Marlowe's invention. The story of Olympia, however, was taken, as Collier first pointed out, from Ariosto (Orlando Furioso, Bk. XXIX). It would be of interest to determine the precise channel through which this tale reached the dramatist; he may, of course, have known it in the Italian, but it is more likely that he read it in MS. in Sir John Harington's translation, which after years of preparation was published in 1591. A similar instance of borrowing from a MS. source occurs at the end of the fourth act of Part II (ll. 4098-4103), where six lines are copied from the as yet unpublished Fairy Queen, and copied so carelessly as to leave a tell-tale Alexandrine in the midst of the usual pentameters of dramatic verse,

To the Gentlemen Readers : and others that take pleasure in reading Histories.

Gentlemen, and curteous Readers whosoener : I haue here published in print for your sakes, the two tragical Discourses of the Scythian Shepheard, Tamburlaine, that became so great a Conquerour, and so mightie a Monarque : My hope is, that they wil be now no lesse acceptable vnto you to read after your serious affaires and studies, then they haue bene (lately) delightfull for many of you to see, when the same were shewed in London vpon stages : I haue (purposely) omitted and left out some fond and trinuolous Iestures, digressing (and in my poore opinion) far vnmeet for the matter, which I thought, might seeme more tedious vnto the wise, than any way els to be regarded, though (happly) they haue bene of some vaine conceited fondlings greatly gaped at, what times they were shewed vpon the stage in their graced deformities : neuertheles now, to be mixtured in print with such matter of worth, it wuld prooue a great disgrace to so honorable & stately a historie : Great folly were it in me, to commend vnto your wisdomes, either the eloquence of the Authour that writ them, or the worthinesse of the matter it selfe ; I therefore leaue vnto your learned censures, both the one and the other, and my selfe the poore printer of them vnto your most curteous and fauourable protection ; which if you vouchsafe to accept, you shall euermore binde mee to imploy what trauell and service I can, to the aduancing and pleasuring of your excellent degree.

The plot is laid by Persean Noble men,
And Captaines of the Medean garrisons,
To crowne me Emperour of Asia, 120

But this it is that doth excruciate
The verie substance of my vexed soule :
To see our neighbours that were woont to quake
And tremble at the Persean Monarkes name,
Now sits and laughs our regiment to scorne, 125
And that which might resolue me into teares :
Men from the farthest Equinoctiall line,

And continent to your Dominions :
How easely may you with a mightie hoste,

Ort. Magnificent and mightie Prince Cosroe,
We in the name of other Persean states, 145
And commons of this mightie Monarchie,
Present thee with th' Emperiall Diadem.

Cene. The warlike Souldiers, & the Gentlemen,
That heretofore haue fild Persepolis
With Affrike Captaines, taken in the field : 150
Whose ransome made them martch in coates of gold,
With costlie iewels hanging at their eares,
And shining stones vpon their loftie Crestes,
Now liuing idle in the walled townes,
Wanting both pay and martiall discipline, 155
Begin in troopes to threaten ciuill warre,
And openly exclaime against the King.
Therefore to stay all sodaine mutinies,
We will inuest your Highnesse Emperour :
Whereat the Souldiers will conceiue more ioy, 160
Then did the Macedonians at the spoile
Of great Darius and his wealthy hoast.

Cosr. Wel, since I see the state of Persea droope,
And languish in my brothers gouernment :
I willingly receiue th' mperiall crowne, 165
And vow to weare it for my countries good :
In spite of them shall malice my estate.

Ortyg. And in assurance of desir'd successe,
We here doo crowne thee Monarch of the East,
Emperour of Asia, and of Persea, 170
Great Lord of Medea and Armenia :
Duke of Affrica and Albania,
Mesopotamia and of Parthia,
East India and the late discovered Isles,
Chiefe Lord of all the wide vast Euxine sea, 175
And of the euer raging Caspian Lake :
Long liue Cosroe mighty Emperour.

Cos. And Ioue may neuer let me longer liue,
Then I may seeke to gratifie your loue,
And cause the souldiers that thus honour me, 180
To triumph ouer many Prouinces.

 Intending your inuestion so neere
 The residence of your dispised brother,
 The Lords would not be too exasperate, 190

 Or if they would, there are in readines

 The iewels and the treasure we haue tane
 Shall be reseru'd, and you in better state,
 Than if you were arriu'd in Siria. 200

Zeno. Ah Shepheard, pity my distressed plight,
 (If as thou seem'st, thou art so meane a man)
 And seeke not to inrich thy followers, 205
 By lawlesse rapine from a silly maide,
 Who traueiling with these Medean Lords
 To Memphis, from my vncles country of Medea,
 Where all my youth I haue bene gouerned,
 Haue past the armie of the mightie Turke : 210
 Bearing his priuie signet and his hand :
 To safe conduct vs thorow Africa.

Tam. But now you see these letters & commandes
 Are countermanded by a greater man :
 And through my prouinces you must expect
 Letters of conduct from my mightinesse, 220
 If you intend to keep your treasure safe.
 But since I loue to liue at liberty,
 As easely may you get the Souldans crowne,
 As any prizes out of my precinct.
 For they are friends that help to weane my state, 225
 Till men and kingdomes help to strengthen it :
 And must maintaine my life exempt from seruitude.
 But tell me Maddam, is your grace betroth'd ?

Zen. I am (my Lord,) for so you do import.

Tam. I am a Lord, for so my deeds shall prooue, 230
 And yet a shepheard by my Parentage :
 But Lady, this faire face and heauenly hew
 Must grace his bed that conquers Asia :
 And meanes to be a terrour to the world,
 Measuring the limits of his Emperie 235
 By East and west, as Phœbus doth his course :
 Lie here ye weedes that I disdaine to weare,
 This compleat armor, and this curtle-axe
 Are adiuncts more beseeing Tamburlaine.
 And Maddam, whatsoeuer you esteeme 240

 Both may inuest you Empresse of the East :
 And these that seeme but silly country Swaines,
 May haue the leading of so great an host,
 As with their waight shall make the mountains quake, 245
 Euen as when windy exhalations,
 Fighting for passage, tilt within the earth.

Tec. As princely Lions when they rouse themselues,
 Stretching their pawes, and threatning heardes of Beastes.
 So in his Armour looketh Tamburlaine : 250

Me thinks I see kings kneeling at his feet,
 And he with frowning browes and fiery lookes,
 Spurning their crownes from off their captiue heads.

Vsum. And making thee and me Techelles, kings,
 That euen to death will follow Tamburlaine. 255

Tam. Nobly resolu'd, sweet friends and followers,
 These Lords (perhaps) do scorne our estimates :
 And thinke we prattle with distempered spirits
 But since they measure our deserts so meane,
 That in conceit bear Empires on our speares, 260

Affecting thoughts coequall with the cloudes,
They shall be kept our forced followers,
Till with their eies they view vs Emperours.

Zen. The Gods, defenders of the innocent,
Will neuer prosper your intended driftes, 265
That thus oppresse poore friendles passengers.
Therefore at least admit vs libertie,
Euen as thou hop'st to be eternized,
By liuing Asias mightie Emperour.

Agid(as). I hope our Ladies treasure and our owne,

That we may traueile into Siria,
Where her betrothed Lord Alcidamus,
Expects th' arriuell of her highnesse person. 275

Mag. And wheresoeuer we repose our selues,
We will report but well of Tamburlaine.

Tamb. Disdaines Zenocrate to liue with me ?
Or you my Lordes to be my followers ?
Thinke you I way this treasure more than you ? 280

Shall buy the meanest souldier in my traine.
Zenocrate, louelier than the Loue of Ioue,
Brighter than is the siluer Rhodope,
Fairer than whitest snow on Scythian hils, 285
Thy person is more woorth to Tamburlaine,

Which gracious starres haue promist at my birth.
A hundreth Tartars shall attend on thee,
Mounted on Steeds, swifter than Pegasus. 290
Thy Garments shall be made of Medean silke,
Enchast with precious iuelles of mine owne :
More rich and valurous than Zenocrates,
With milke-white Hartes vpon an Iuorie sled,
Thou shalt be drawen amidst the frosen Pooles, 295

Which with thy beautie will be soone resolu'd.

Tech. What now ? In loue ?

Tam. Techelles, women must be flattered.
But this is she with whom I am in loue.

Enter a Souldier.

Sould. Newes, newes. 305

Tamb. How now, what's the matter ?

Sould. A thousand Persean horsmen are at hand,
Sent from the King to ouercome vs all.

Tam. How now my Lords of Egypt & Zenocrate ?
Now must your iewels be restor'd againe : 310
And I that triumpht so be ouercome.

How say you Lordings, Is not this your hope ?

Agid. We hope your selfe wil willingly restore them.

Tamb. Such hope, such fortune haue the thousand horse.
Soft ye my Lords and sweet Zenocrate. 315

You must be forced from me ere you goe :
A thousand horsmen ? We fife hundred foote ?

An ods too great, for vs to stand against :
But are they rich ? And is their armour good ?

Sould. Their plumed helmes are wrought with beaten golde. 320

Their swords enameld, and about their neckes
Hangs massie chaines of golde downe to the waste,
In euery part exceeding braue and rich.

Tam. Then shall we fight courageously with them,
Or looke you, I should play the Orator ? 325

Tech. No : cowards and fainthearted runawaies,
Looke for orations when the foe is neere.
Our swordes shall play the Orators for vs.

Vsum. Come let vs meet them at the mountain foot,
And with a sodaine and an hot alarme 330
Drue all their horses headlong down the hill.

Tech. Come let vs march.

Tam. Stay Techelles, aske a parlee first,

The Souldiers enter.

Open the Males, yet guard the treasure sure, 335
Lay out our golden wedges to the view,
That their reflexions may amaze the Perseans.
And looke we friendly on them when they come :

But if they offer word or violence,
 Weele fight fūe hundred men at armes to one,
 Before we part with our possession. 340
 And gainst the Generall we will lift our swords,
 And either lanch his greedy thirsting throat,
 Or take him prisoner, and his chaine shall serue
 For Manackles, till he be ransom'd home.

Tech. I heare them come, shal we encounter them ?

Tam. Keep all your standings, and not stir a foote, 346
 My selfe will bide the danger of the brunt.

Enter Theridamas with others.

Ther. Where is this Scythian Tamberlaine ?

Tam. Whom seekst thou Persean ? I am Tamburlain.

Ther. Tamburlaine ? A Scythian Shepheard, so imbellished 350

 His fierie eies are fixt vpon the earth,

Tamb. Noble and milde this Persean seemes to be,
 If outward habit iudge the inward man.

Tech. His deep affections make him passionate.

Tamb. With what a maiesty he rears his looks : 360
 In thee (thou valiant man of Persea)
 I see the folly of thy Emperour :

Art thou but Captaine of a thousand horse,
 That by Characters grauen in thy browes,
 And by thy martiall face and stout aspect, 365
 Deseru'st to haue the leading of an hoste ?
 Forsake thy king and do but ioine with me
 And we will triumph ouer all the world.
 I hold the Fates bound fast in yron chaines,
 And with my hand turne Fortunes wheel about, 370
 And sooner shall the Sun fall from his Spheare,
 Than Tamburlaine be slaine or ouercome.

 Intending but to rase my charmed skin :

Mess. My Lord, we haue discovered the enemie
Ready to chardge you with a mighty armie.

Cos. Come, Tamburlain, now whet thy winged sword
And lift thy lofty arme into the cloudes, 650
That it may reach the King of Perseas crowne,
And set it safe on my victorious head.

Tam. See where it is, the keenest Cutle-axe,
That ere made passage thorow Persean Armes.
These are the wings shall make it flie as swift, 655
As dooth the lightening : or the breath of heauen,
And kill as sure as it swiftly flies.

Cos. Thy words assure me of kind successe :
Go valiant Souldier, go before and charge
The fainting army of that foolish King. 660

Tamb. Vsumcasane and Techelles come,
We are enough to scarre the enemy,
And more than needes to make an Emperour. (Exeunt.)

(Scene IV.)

To the Battaile, and Mycetes comes out alone with his Crowne in his hand, offering to hide it.

Myc. Accurst be he that first inuented war,
They knew not, ah, they knew not simple men, 665
How those were hit by pelting Cannon shot,
Stand staggering like a quiuering Aspen leafe,
Fearing the force of Boreas boistrous blasts.
In what a lamentable case were I,
If Nature had not giuen me wisdomes lore ? 670
For Kings are clouts that euery man shoots at,
Our Crowne the pin that thousands seeke to cleaue.
Therefore in pollicie I thinke it good
To hide it close : a goodly Stratagem,
And far from any man that is a foole. 675

Here will I hide it in this simple hole.

Enter Tamburlain.

Tam. What fearful coward stragling from the camp
When Kings themselues are present in the field? 680

Myc. Thou liest.

Tam. Base villaine, darst thou giue the lie?

Myc. Away, I am the King: go, touch me not.
Thou breakst the law of Armes vnlesse thou kneele,
And cry me mercie, noble King. 685

Tam. Are you the witty King of Persea?

Myc. I marie am I: haue you any suite to me?

Tam. I would intreat you to speak but three wise wordes.

Myc. So I can when I see my time.

Tam. Is this your Crowne? 690

Myc. I, Didst thou euer see a fairer?

Tamb. You will not sell it, wil ye?

Myc. Such another word, and I will haue thee executed.
Come giue it me.

Tamb. No, I tooke it prisoner. 695

Myc. You lie, I gaue it you.

Tam. Then tis mine.

Myc. No, I meane, I let you keep it.

Tamb. Wel, I meane you shall haue it againe.
Here take it for a while, I lend it thee, 700
Till I may see thee hem'd with armed men.

Then shalt thou see me pull it from thy head:
Thou art no match for mightie Tamburlaine. <Exit.>

Myc. O Gods, is this Tamburlaine the thiefe,
I marueile much he stole it not away. 705

Sound trumpets to the battell, and he runs in.

<Scene V.>

Cosroe, Tamburlaine, Theridamas, Menaphon, Meander, Ortygius, Techelles, Vsumcasane, with others.

Tamb. Holde thee Cosroe, weare two imperiall Crownes.
Thinke thee inuested now as royally,

Cosr. So do I thrice renowned man at armes,
And none shall keepe the crowne but Tamburlaine :
Thee doo I make my Regent of Persea,
And Generall Liefutenant of my Armies.
Meander, you that were our brothers Guide, 715
And chiefest Counsailor in all his acts,
Since he is yeelded to the stroke of War,
On your submission we with thanks excuse,
And giue you equall place in our affaires.

Mean. Most happy Emperour in humblest tearms 720
I vow my seruice to your Maiestie,
With vtmost vertue of my faith and dutie.

Cosr. Thanks good Meander, then Cosroe raign
And gouerne Persea in her former pomp :
Now send Ambassage to thy neighbor Kings, 725
And let them know the Persean King is chang'd :
From one that knew not what a King should do,
To one that can commaund what longs thereto :
And now we will to faire Persepolis,
With twenty thousand expert souldiers. 730
The Lords and Captaines of my brothers campe,
With litle slaughter take Meanders course,
And gladly yeeld them to my gracious rule :
Ortigijs and Menaphon, my trustie friendes,
Now will I gratify your former good, 735
And grace your calling with a greater sway.

Ort. And as we euer aimd at your behoofe,
And sought your state all honor it deseru'd,
So will we with our powers and our liues,

Cos. I will not thank thee (sweet Ortigijs)
Better replies shall prooue my purposes.
And now Lord Tamburlaine, my brothers Campe
I leaue to thee, and to Theridamas,
To follow me to faire Persepolis. 745
Then will we march to all those Indian Mines,

And ransome them with fame and vsurie.

Manent Tamb. Tech. Ther. Vsum.

Tamb. And ride in triumph through Persepolis ? 755
Is it not braue to be a King, Techelles ?

Vsumcasane and Theridamas,
Is it not passing braue to be a King,
And ride in triumph through Persepolis ?

Tech. O my Lord, tis sweet and full of pompe. 760

Vsum. To be a King, is halfe to be a God.

Ther. A God is not so glorious as a King :
I thinke the pleasure they enioy in heauen
Can not compare with kingly ioyes in earth.
To weare a Crowne enchac'd with pearle and golde, 765
Whose vertues carie with it life and death,
To aske, and haue : commaund, and be obei'd :
When looks breed loue, with lookes to gaine the prize.
Such power attractiue shines in princes eies.

Tam. Why say Theridamas, wilt thou be a king ? 770

Ther. Nay, though I praise it, I can liue without it.

Tam. What saies my other friends; wil you be kings ?

Tec. I, if I could with all my heart my Lord.

Tam. Why, that's wel said Techelles, so would I,
And so would you my maisters, would you not ? 775

Vsum. What then my Lord ?

Tam. Why then Casane shall we wish for ought
The world affoords in greatest noueltie,
And rest attemplesse faint and destitute ?
Me thinks we should not, I am strongly moou'd, 780
That if I should desire the Persean Crowne,
I could attaine it with a woondrous ease,
And would not all our souldiers soone consent,
If we should aime at such a dignitie ?

Ther. I know they would with our perswasions. 785

Tam. Why then Theridamas, Ile first assay,
To get the Persean Kingdome to my selfe :
Then thou for Parthia, they for Scythia and Medea.
And if I prosper, all shall be as sure,

As if the Turke, the Pope, Affrike and Greece, 790
Came creeping to vs with their crownes apeece.

Tech. Then shall we send to this triumphing King,
And bid him battell for his nouell Crowne?

Vsum. Nay quickly then, before his roome be hot.

Tam. Twil prooue a pretie iest (in faith) my friends.

The. A iest to chardge on twenty thousand men? 796
I iudge the purchase more important far.

Tam. Iudge by thy selfe Theridamas, not me,

For presently Techelles here shal haste, 800
To bid him battaile ere he passe too farre,

And lose more labor than the gaine will quight.

Then shalt thou see the Scythian Tamburlaine,

Make but a iest to win the Persean crowne.

Techelles, take a thousand horse with thee, 805
And bid him turne his back to war with vs,

That onely made him King to make vs sport.

We will not steale vpon him cowardly,

But giue him warning and more warriours.

Haste the Techelles, we will follow thee.

What saith Theridamas? 810

Ther. Goe on for me.

Exeunt.

In loue of honor & defence of right,

And with the same proportion of Elements,

That worke such trouble to your woonted rest ?
Tis more then pittty such a heauenly face
Should by hearts sorrow wax so wan and pale, 990
When your offensiu rape by Tamburlaine,
(Which of your whole displeasures should be most)
Hath seem'd to be digested long agoe.

Zen. Although it be digested long agoe,
As his exceding fauours haue deseru'd, 995
And might content the Queene of heauen as well
As it hath chang'd my first conceiu'd disdain.
Yet since a farther passion feeds my thoughts,
With ceaselesse and disconsolate conceits,
Which dies my lookes so liewlesse as they are, 1000
And might, if my extreame had full euent,
Make me the gastly counterfeite of death.

Agid. Eternall heauen sooner be dissolu'd,

 Let not a man so vile and barbarous,
 That holds you from your father in despight,
 And keeps you from the honors of a Queene,
 Being supposde his worthlesse Concubine,
 Be honored with your loue, but for necessity. 1015
 So now the mighty Souldan heares of you,
 Your Highnesse needs not doubt but in short time,
 He will with Tamburlaines destruction
 Redeeme you from this deadly seruitude.

Zen. (Agydas,) leaue to wound me with these words,
 And speake of Tamburlaine as he deserues : 1021
 The entertainment we haue had of him,
 Is far from villanie or seruitude,
 And might in noble minds be counted princely.

Agid. How can you fancie one that lookes so fierce,
 Onelie disposed to martiall Stratagems? 1026
 Who when he shall embrace you in his armes,
 Will tell how many thousand men he slew,
 And when you looke for amorous discourse,
 Will rattle foorth his facts of war and blood, 1030
 Too harsh a subiect for your dainty eares.

Zen. As looks the sun through Nilus flowing stream,
 Or when the morning holds him in her armes,
 So lookes my Lordly loue, faire Tamburlaine :
 His talke much sweeter than the Muses song, 1035
 They sung for honor gainst Pierides.
 Or when Minerua did with Neptune striue,
 And higher would I reare my estimate,
 Than Iuno sister to the highest God,
 If I were matcht with mightie Tamburlaine. 1040

Agid. Yet be not so inconstant in your loue,
 But let the yong Arabian liue in hope,
 After your rescue to e(n)ioy his choise.
 You see though first the King of Persea
 (Being a Shepheard) seem'd to loue you much, 1045
 Now in his maiesty he leaues those lookes,
 Those words of fauour, and those comfortings,
 And giues no more than common courtesies.

(Exeunt all except Agydas.)

Agid. Betraide by fortune and suspitious loue,
Threatned with frowning wrath and iealousie,
Surpriz'd with feare of hideous reuenge,
I stand agast : but most astonied
To see his choller shut in secrete thoughtes, 1055
And wrapt in silence of his angry soule
Vpon his browes was pourtraid vgly death,
And in his eies the furie of his hart,
That shine as Comets, menacing reuenge,
And casts a pale complexion on his cheeks. 1060
As when the Sea-man sees the Hyades
Gather an armye of Cemerian clouds,
(Auster and Aquilon with winged Steads
All sweating, tilt about the watery heauens,
With shiuering speares enforcing thunderclaps, 1065
And from their shieldes strike flames of lightening)
All fearefull foldes his sailes, and sounds the maine,
Lifting his prayers to the heauens for aid,
Against the terrour of the winds and waues.
So fares Agydas for the late felt frownes 1070
That sent a tempest to my daunted thoughtes,
And makes my soule deuine her ouerthrow.

Tech. Vsumcasane, see how right the man
 Hath hit the meaning of my Lord the King.

Vsum. Faith, and Techelles, it was manly done.
 And since he was so wise and honorable, 1095
 Let vs affoord him now the bearing hence,
 And craue his triple worthy buriall.

Tech. Agreed Casane, we wil honor him.

(Exeunt, bearing out the body.)

Act. 3. Scæna 3.

Tamburlain, Techelles, Vsumcasane, Theridamas,
Bassoe, Zenocrate, with others.

Tamburlaine. Bassoe, by this thy Lord and maister knowes,
 I meane to meet him in Bithynia: 1100

See how he comes! Tush. Turkes are ful of brags
 And menace more than they can wel performe:
 He meet me in the field and fetch thee hence?
 Alas (poore Turke) his fortune is to weake,
 T'incounter with the strength of Tamburlaine. 1105
 View well my Camp, and speake indifferently,
 Doo not my captaines and my souldiers looke
 As if they meant to conquer Africa.

Bass. Your men are valiant but their number few,
 And cannot terrefie his mightie hoste. 1110
 My Lord, the great Commander of the worlde,
 Besides fifteene contributorie kings,
 Hath now in armes ten thousand Ianisaries,
 Mounted on lusty Mauritanian Steeds.
 Brought to the war by men of Tripoly. 1115

In two set battels fought in Grecia :
And for the expedition of this war,
If he think good, can from his garrisons,
Withdraw as many more to follow him. 1120

Tech. The more he brings, the greater is the spoile,
For when they perish by our warlike hands,
We meane to seate our footmen on their Steeds,
And rifle all those stately Ianisars. 1124

Tam. But wil those Kings accompany your Lord ?

Bass. Such as his Highnesse please, but some must stay
To rule the prouinces he late subdude.

Tam. Then fight couragiously, their crowns are yours.
This hand shal set them on your conquering heads :
That made me Emperour of Asia. 1130

Vsum. Let him bring millions infinite of men,
Vnpeopling Western Affrica and Greece :
Yet we assure vs of the victorie.

Ther. Euen he that in a trice vanquisht two kings,
More mighty than the Turkish Emperour : 1135
Shall rouse him out of Europe, and pursue
His scattered armie til they yeeld or die.

Tamb. Wel said Theridamas, speake in that mood,
For Wil and Shall best fitteth Tamburlain,
Whose smiling stars giues him assured hope 1140
Of martiall triumph, ere he meete his foes :
I that am tearm'd the Scourge and Wrath of God,
The onely feare and terrour of the world,
Wil first subdue the Turke, and then inlarge
Those Christian Captiues, which you keep as slaues, 1145
Burdening their bodies with your heauie chaines,
And feeding them with thin and slender fare,
That naked rowe about the Terrene sea.
And when they chance to breath and rest a space,
Are punisht with Bastones so grieuously, 1150
That they lie panting on the Gallies side,
And strue for life at euery stroke they giue.

These are the cruell pirates of Argetre,

Kinges. (Zabina and Ebea.)*

Bai. Bassoes and Ianisaries of my Guard,
Attend vpon the person of your Lord, 1160
The greatest Potentate of Affrica.

Tam. Techelles, and the rest prepare your swordes.
I meane t'incounter with that Baiazeth.

Bai. Kings of Fesse, Moroccus and Argier,
He cals me Baiazeth, whom you call Lord. 1165
Note the presumption of this Scythian slaue :
I tell thee villaine, those that lead my horse
Haue to their names tytles of dignity,
And dar'st thou bluntly call me Baiazeth ?

Tam. And know thou Turke, that those which lead my horse, 1170

Shall lead thee Captiue thorow Affrica.
And dar'st thou bluntly call me Tamburlaine ?

Bai. By Mahomet, my Kinsmans sepulcher,
And by the holy Alcaron I sweare,
He shall be made a chaste and lustlesse Eunuke, 1175
And in my Sarell tend my Concubines :
And all his Captaines that thus stoutly stand,
Shall draw the chariot of my Emperesse,
Whom I haue brought to see their ouerthrow.

Tam. By this my sword that conquer'd Persea, 1180
Thy fall shall make me famous through the world :
I will not tell thee how Ile handle thee,
But euery common souldier of my Camp
Shall smile to see thy miserable state.

Fess. What meanes the mighty Turkish Emperor 1185
To talk with one so base as Tamburlaine ?

Moro. Ye Moores and valiant men of Barbary,
How can ye suffer these indignities ?

Arg. Leaue words and let them feele your lances pointes,
Which glided through the bowels of the Greekes. 1190

Did pash the iawes of Serpents venomous :
Whose hands are made to gripe a warlike Lance,
Their shoulders broad, for complet armour fit, 1205
Their lims more large and of a bigger size

Me martch victoriously with all my men, 1225
Triumphing ouer him and these his kings,
Which I will bring as Vassals to thy feete.
Til then take thou my crowne, vaunt of my worth,
And manage words with her as we will armes.

Zen. And may my Loue, the king of Persea 1230
Returne with victorie, and free from wound.

 If they should yeeld their necks vnto the sword, 1240
 Thy souldiers armes could not endure to strike
 So many blowes as I haue heads for thee.
 Thou knowest not (foolish hardy Tamburlaine)
 What tis to meet me in the open field,
 That leaue no ground for thee to march vpon. 1245
Tam. Our conquering swords shall marshal vs the way
 We vse to march vpon the slaughtered foe :
 Trampling their bowels with our horses hooffes :
 Braue horses, bred on the white Tartarian hills :
 My Campe is like to Iulius Cæsars Hoste, 1250
 That neuer fought but had the victorie :
 Nor in Pharsalia was there such hot war,
 As these my followers willingly would haue :
 Legions of Spirits fleeting in the aire,
 Direct our Bullets and our weapons pointes 1255
 And make our strokes to wound the sencelesse aire,
 And when she sees our bloody Collours spread,
 Then Victorie begins to take her flight,
 Resting her selfe vpon my milk-white Tent :
 But come my Lords, to weapons let vs fall. 1260
 The field is ours, the Turk, his wife and all.

Exit, with his followers.

Bai. Come Kings and Bassoes, let vs glut our swords
 That thirst to drinke the feble Perseans blood.

Ebea. Madame, she thinks perhaps she is too fine.
But I shall turne her into other weedes,
And make her daintie fingers fall to woorke.

Zen. Hearst thou Anippe, how thy drudge doth talk,
And how my slaue, her mistresse menaceth. 1281

To dresse the common souldiers meat and drink.
For we will scorne they should come nere our selues.

Anip. Yet somtimes let your highnesse send for them
To do the work my chamber maid disdaines. 1286

They sound the battell within, and stay.

Zen. Ye Gods and powers that gouerne Persea :
And made my lordly Loue her worthy King :
Now strengthen him against the Turkish Baiazeth,
And let his foes like flockes of fearfull Roes, 1290

As when my Emperour ouerthrew the Greeks :
And led them Captiue into Africa.

Tech. We haue their crownes their bodies strowe the Tam. Each man a crown ? why kingly fought ifaith.

Zen. Now let me offer to my gracious Lord
His royall Crowne againe, so highly won.

Tam. Nay take the Turkish Crown from her, Zen(ocrate)
And crowne me Emperour of Affrica. 1319

Zab. No Tamburlain, though now thou gat the best
Thou shalt not yet be Lord of Affrica.

Ther. Giue her the Crowne Turkesse you wer best.

He takes it from her, and giues it Zenocrate.

Zab. Iniurious villaines, thieues, runnagates,
How dare you thus abuse my Maiesty ?

Ther. Here Madam, you are Empresse, she is none. 1325

Tam. Not now Theridamas, her time is past :
The pillers that haue bolstered vp those tearmes,
Are false in clusters at my conquering feet.

Zab. Though he be prisoner, he may be ransomed.

Tamb. Not all the world shall ransom Baiazeth. 1330

Bai. Ah faire Zabina, we haue lost the field.

And neuer had the Turkish Emperour

So great a foile by any forraine foe.

Now will the Christian miscreants be glad,

Ringing with ioy their superstitious belles : 1335

And making bonfires for my ouerthrow.

But ere I die those foule Idolaters

Shall make me bonfires with their filthy bones,

For though the glorie of this day be lost,

Affrik and Greece haue garrisons enough 1340

To make me Soueraigne of the earth againe.

Tam. Those walled garrisons wil I subdue,

And write my selfe great Lord of Affrica :

 Offer their mines (to sew for peace) to me,
 And dig for treasure to appease my wrath :

 As Crocodiles that vnaffrighted rest,
 While thundring Cannons rattle on their Skins.

Mess. Nay (mightie Souldan) did your greatnes see
 The frowning lookes of fiery Tamburlaine,
 That with his terrour and imperious eles, 1385
 Commandes the hearts of his associates,
 It might amaze your royall maiesty.

Soul. Villain, I tell thee, were that Tamburlaine

 The Souldane would not start a foot from him. 1390
 But speake, what power hath he ?

Mess. Mightie Lord,
 Three hundred thousand men in armour clad,
 Vpon their pransing Steeds, disdainfully
 With wanton paces trampling on the ground. 1395
 Fiue hundred thousand footmen threatning shot,
 Shaking their swords, their speares and yron bils,

Soul. Nay could their numbers counteruail the stars
 Or euer drisling drops of Aprill showers,
 Or withered leaues that Autume shaketh downe :
 Yet would the Souldane by his conquering power, 1405

 That not a man should liue to rue their fall.

Cap. So might your highnesse, had you time to sort

 Aduantage takes of your vnreadinesse.

Soul. Let him take all th'aduantages he can,

 Shall not defend it from our battering shot.
 The townes-men maske in silke and cloath of gold,
 And euery house is as a treasure.
 The men, the treasure, and the towne is ours.
Ther. Your tentes of white now pitch'd before the gates
 And gentle flags of amitie displaid, 1556
 I doubt not but the Gouvernour will yeeld,
 Offering Damascus to your Maiesty.
Tam. So shall he haue his life, and all the rest.
 But if he stay vntil the bloody flag 1560
 Be once aduanc'd on my vermilion Tent,
 He dies, and those that kept vs out so long.
 And when they see me march in black aray,
 With mournfull streamers hanging down their heads,
 Were in that citie all the world contain'd, 1565
 Not one should scape : but perish by our swords.
Zen. Yet would you haue some pitie for my sake,
 Because it is my countries, and my Fathers.

Souldane, Arabia, Capoline, with sk(r)eamng collors and Souldiers.

Souldan. Me thinks we martch as Meliager did,
Enuironed with braue Argolian knightes :
To chace the sauage Cal(i)donian Boare,
Or Cephalus with lustie Thebane youths
Against the Woolfe that angrie Themis sent, 1575
To waste and spoile the sweet Aonian fieldes.
A monster of fiue hundred thousand heades,
Compact of Rapine, Pyracie, and spoile,
The Scum of men, the hate and Scourge of God,
Raues in Egyptia, and annoyeth vs. 1580
My Lord it is the bloody Tamburlaine,
A sturdy Felon and a base-bred Thiefe,
By murder raised to the Persean Crowne,
That dares controll vs in our Territories.
To tame the pride of this presumptuous Beast, 1585
Ioine your Arabians with the Souldans power :
Let vs vnite our royall bandes in one,
And hasten to remooue Damascus siege.
It is a blemish to the Maiestie
And high estate of mightie Emperours, 1590
That such a base vsurping vagabond
Should braue a king, or weare a princely crowne.
Ara. Renowmed Souldane, haue ye lately heard
The ouerthrow of mightie Baiazeth,
About the confines of Bythinia ? 1595
The slauerie wherewith he persecutes
The noble Turke and his great Emperesse ?
Soul. I haue, and sorrow for his bad successe :
But noble Lord of great Arabia,
Be so perswaded, that the Souldan is 1600
No more dismaide with tidings of his fall,
Than in the hauen when the Pilot stands
And viewes a strangers ship rent in the winds,
And shiuered against a craggie rocke,
Yet in compassion of his wretched state, 1605
A sacred vow to heauen and him I make,
Confirming it with Ibis holy name,

 Wherein he wrought such ignominious wrong
 Vnto the hallowed person of a prince, 1610
 Or kept the faire Zenocrate so long,
 As Concubine, I feare to feed his lust.

Ara. Let grieve and furie hasten on reuenge,
 Let Tamburlaine for his offences feelee
 Such plagues as heauen and we can poure on him. 1615
 I long to breake my speare vpon his crest,
 And prooue the waight of his victorious arme :
 For Fame I feare hath bene too prodigall
 In sounding through the world his partiall praise.

Soul. Capolin, hast thou suruaid our powers. 1620

Cap. Great Emperours of Egypt and Arabia,
 The number of your hostes vnited is,
 A hundred and fifty thousand horse,
 Two hundred thousand foot, braue men at armes, 1625
 Couragious and full of hardinesse :
 As frolike as the hunters in the chace
 Of sauage beastes amid the desert woods.

Arab. My mind presageth fortunate successe,
 And Tamburlaine, my spirit doth foresee 1630
 The viter ruine of thy men and thee.

Soul. Then reare your standardes, let your sounding Drummes

Direct our Souldiers to Damascus walles.
 Now Tamburlaine, the mightie Souldane comes,
 And leads with him the great Arabian King,
 To dim thy basenesse and obscurity, 1635
 Famous for nothing but for theft and spoile,
 To race and scatter thy inglorious crue,
 Of Scythians and slauish Persians.

Exeunt.

Halfe dead for feare before they feele my wrath :
Then let vs freely banquet and carouse
Full bowles of wine vnto the God of war,
That meanes to fill your helmets full of golde : 1645
And make Damascus spoiles as rich to you,
As was to Iason Colchos golden fleece.
And now Baiazeth, hast thou any stomacke ?

Bai. I, such a stomacke (cruel Tamburlane) as I could willingly feed vpon thy blood-raw hart. 1650

Tam. Nay, thine owne is easier to come by, plucke out that, and twil serue thee and thy wife : Wel Zenocrate, Techelles, and the rest, fall to your victuals.

Bai. Fall to, and neuer may your meat digest.

Zen. My Lord, how can you suffer these Outragious curses by these slaues of yours ? 1665

Tam. To let them see (diuine Zenocrate)

Hauing the power from the Emperiall heauen,
To turne them al vpon their proper heades. 1669

Tech. I pray you give them leaue Madam, this speech

Ther. But if his highnesse would let them be fed, it

Breake vp the earth, and with their firebrands, 2000
Enforce thee run vpon the banefull pikes.
Volleyes of shot pierce through thy charmed Skin,
And euery bullet dipt in poisoned drugs,
Or roaring Cannons seuer all thy ioints,
Making thee mount as high as Eagles soare. 2005

Zab. Let all the swords and Lances in the field,
Stick in his breast, as in their proper roomes,
At euery pore let blood comme dropping foorth,
That lingring paines may massacre his heart,
And madnesse send his damned soule to hell. 2010

 He brings a world of people to the field,
 From Scythia to the Orientall Plage
 Of India, wher raging Lantchidol
 Beates on the regions with his boysterous blowes, 2395
 That neuer sea-man yet discovered :
 All Asia is in Armes with Tamburlaine,
 Euen from the midst of fiery Cancers Tropick,
 To Amazonia vnder Capricorne.
 And thence as far as Archipellago, 2400
 All Affrike is in Armes with Tamburlaine.
 Therefore Vicerioies the Christians must haue peace.

Act. I. Scena 2.

Sigismond, Fredericke, Baldwine, and their traine with drums and trumpets.

Sigis. Orcanes (as our Legates promist thee)
 Wee with our Peeres haue crost Danubius stream
 To treat of friendly peace or deadly war : 2405
 Take which thou wilt, for as the Romans vsde
 I here present thee with a naked sword.
 Wilt thou haue war, then shake this blade at me,
 If peace, restore it to my hands againe :
 And I wil sheath it to confirme the same. 2410
Orc. Stay Sigismond, forgetst thou I am he
 That with the Cannon shooke Vienna walles,
 And made it dance vpon the Continent :
 As when the massy substance of the earth,
 Quiuer about the Axeltree of heauen. 2415
 Forgetst thou that I sent a shower of dartes
 Mingled with powdered shot and fethered steele
 So thick vpon the blink-ei'd Burghers heads,
 That thou thy self, then County-Pallatine,
 The king of Boheme, and the Austrich Duke, 2420
 Sent Herralds out, which basely on their knees
 In all your names desirde a truce of me ?
 Forgetst thou, that to haue me raise my siege,
 Wagons of gold were set before my tent :
 Stampd with the princely Foule that in her wings 2425

 2415 Quivers Rob. to Bull.

2402 Vicerioie 1592, Dyce to Bull.

Caries the fearfull thunderbolts of Ioue,
How canst thou think of this and offer war ?

Sig. Vienna was besieg'd, and I was there,
Then County-Pallatine, but now a king :
And what we did, was in extremity : 2430
But now Orcanes, view my royall hoste,
That hides these plaines, and seems as vast and wide,
As dooth the Desart of Arabia

To those that stand on Badgeths lofty Tower,
Or as the Ocean to the Traueiler 2435
That restes vpon the snowy Appenines :
And tell me whether I should stoope so low,
Or treat of peace with the Natolian king ?

Byr. Kings of Natolia and of Hungarie,
We came from Turkey to confirme a league, 2440
And not to dare ech other to the field :
A friendly parle might become ye both.

Fred. And we from Europe to the same intent,
Which if your General refuse or scorne,
Our Tents are pitcht, our men stand in array, 2445
Ready to charge you ere you stir your feet.

Nat. So prest are we, but yet if Sigismond
Speake as a friend, and stand not vpon tearmes,
Here is his sword, let peace be ratified
On these conditions specified before, 2450
Drawen with aduise of our Ambassadors.

Sig. Then here I sheath it, and giue thee my hand,
Neuer to draw it out, or manage armes
Against thy selfe or thy confederates :
But whilst I liue will be at truce with thee. 2455

Nat. But (Sigismond) confirme it with an oath,
And sweare in sight of heauen and by thy Christ.

Sig. By him that made the world and sau'd my soule
The sonne of God and issue of a Mayd,
Sweet Iesus Christ, I sollemnly protest, 2460
And vow to keepe this peace inuiolable.

Nat. By sacred Mahomet, the friend of God,
Whose holy Alcaron remaines with vs,
Whose glorious body when he left the world,
Closde in a coffyn mounted vp the aire, 2465
And hung on stately Mecas Temple roofe,

2438 Or] As Rob., Cunn. 2442 ye] you 1592, Dyce to Bull.

I sweare to keepe this truce inuiolable :
 Of whose conditions, and our solemne othes
 Sign'd with our handes, each shal retaine a scrowle :
 As memorable witsnesse of our league. 2470
 Now Sigismond, if any Christian King
 Encroche vpon the confines of thy realme,
 Send woord, Orcanes of Natolia
 Confirm'd this league beyond Danubius streame,
 And they will (trembling) sound a quicke retreat, 2475
 So am I fear'd among all Nations.
Sig. If any heathen potentate or king
 Inuade Natolia, Sigismond will send
 A hundred thousand horse train'd to the war,
 And backt by stout Lanceres of Germany, 2480
 The strength and sinewes of the imperiall seat.
Nat. I thank thee Sigismond, but when I war
 All Asia Minor, Africa, and Greece
 Follow my Standard and my thundring Drums :
 Come let vs goe and banquet in our tents : 2485
 I will dispatch chiefe of my army hence
 To faire Natolia, and to Trebizon,
 To stay my comming gainst proud Tamburlaine.
 Freend Sigismond, and peeres of Hungary,
 Come banquet and carouse with vs a while, 2490
 And then depart we to our territories.

Exeunt.Actus I. Scæna 3.Callapine with Almeda, his keeper.

Callap. Sweet Almeda, pity the ruthfull plight
 Of Callapine, the sonne of Baiazeth,
 Born to be Monarch of the Western world :
 Yet here detain'd by cruell Tamburlaine. 2495
Alm. My Lord I pitie it, and with my heart
 Wish your release, but he whose wrath is death,
 My soueraigne Lord, renowmed Tamburlaine,
 Forbids you further liberty than this.
Cal. Ah were I now but halfe so eloquent 2500
 To paint in woords, what Ile perfourme in deeds,
 I know thou wouldst depart from hence with me.
Al. Not for all Afrika, therefore mooue me not.
Cal. Yet heare me speake my gentle Almeda.

Al. No speach to that end, by your fauour sir. 2505

Cal. By Cario runs.

Al. No talke of running, I tell you sir.

Cal. A litle further, gentle Almeda.

Al. Wel sir, what of this ?

Cal. By Cario runs to Alexandria Bay, 2510

Darotes streames, wherin at anchor lies

A Turkish Gally of my royall fleet,

Waiting my comming to the riuer side,

Hoping by some means I shall be releast,

Which when I come aboard will hoist vp saile, 2515

And soon put foorth into the Terrene sea :

Where twixt the Isles of Cyprus and of Crete,

We quickly may in Turkish seas arriue.

Then shalt thou see a hundred kings and more

Vpon their knees, all bid me welcome home. 2520

Amongst so many crownes of burnisht gold,

Choose which thou wilt, all are at thy command,

A thousand Gallies mann'd with Christian slaues

I freely giue thee, which shall cut the straights,

And bring Armados from the coasts of Spaine, 2525

Fraughted with golde of rich America :

The Grecian virgins shall attend on thee,

Skilful in musicke and in amorous laies :

As faire as was Pigmaliions Iuory gyrl,

Or louely Io metamorphosed. 2530

With naked Negros shall thy coach be drawen,

And as thou rid'st in triumph through the streets,

The pauement vnderneath thy chariot wheels

With Turky Carpets shall be couered :

And cloath of Arras hung about the walles, 2535

Fit obiects for thy princely eie to pierce.

A hundred Bassoes cloath'd in crimson silk

Shall ride before the on Barbarian Steeds :

And when thou goest, a golden Canapie

Enchac'd with pretious stones, which shine as bright 2540

As that faire vail that couers all the world :

When Phœbus leaping from his Hemi-Spheare,

Discendeth downward to th' Antipodes.

And more than this, for all I cannot tell.

Alm. How far hence lies the Galley, say you ? 2545

Cal. Sweet Almeda, scarce halfe a league from hence.

Alm. But need we not be spied going aboard?

Cal. Betwixt the hollow hanging of a hill
And crooked bending of a craggy rock,
The sailes wrapt vp, the mast and tacklings downe, 2550
She lies so close that none can find her out.

Alm. I like that well: but tel me my Lord, if I should let you goe, would you bee as good as your word? Shall
I be made a king for my labour?

Cal. As I am Callapine the Emperour, 2555
And by the hand of Mahomet I sweare,
Thou shalt be crown'd a king and be my mate.

Alm. Then here I sweare, as I am Almeda,
Your Keeper vnder Tamburlaine the great,
(For that's the style and tytle I haue yet) 2560
Although he sent a thousand armed men
To intercept this haughty enterprize,
Yet would I venture to conduct your Grace,
And die before I brought you backe again.

Cal. Thanks gentle Almeda, then let vs haste, 2565
Least time be past, and lingring let vs both.

Al. When you will my Lord, I am ready.

Cal. Euen straight: and farewell cursed Tamburlaine.
Now goe I to reuenge my fathers death.

Exeunt.

Actus 1. Scæna 4.

Tamburlaine with Zenocrate, and his three sonnes, Calyphas, Amyras, and Celebinus, with drummes and trumpets.

Tamb. Now, bright Zenocrate, the worlds faire eie, 2570
Whose beames illuminate the lamps of heauen,
Whose chearful looks do cleare the clowdy aire
And cloath it in a christall liuerie,
Now rest thee here on faire Larissa Plaines,
Where Egypt and the Turkish Empire parts, 2575
Betweene thy sons that shall be Emperours,
And euery one Commander of a world.

Zen. Sweet Tamburlain, when wilt thou leaue these armes
And saue thy sacred person free from scathe:
And dangerous chances of the wrathfull war. 2580

Tam. When heauen shal cease to mooue on both the poles
& when the ground wheron my souldiers march
Shal rise aloft and touch the horned Moon,

And not before my sweet Zenocrate :
 Sit vp and rest thee like a louely Queene. 2585
 So, now she sits in pompe and maiestie :
 When these my sonnes, more precious in mine eies
 Than all the wealthy kingdomes I subdewed :
 Plac'd by her side, looke on their mothers face.
 But yet me thinks their looks are amorous, 2590
 Not martiall as the sons of Tamburlaine.
 Water and ayre being simbolisde in one
 Argue their want of courage and of wit,
 Their haire as white as milke and soft as Downe,
 Which should be like the quilles of Porcupines, 2595
 As blacke as Ieat, and hard as Iron or steel,
 Bewraies they are too dainty for the wars.
 Their fingers made to quauer on a Lute,
 Their armes to hang about a Ladies necke :
 Their legs to dance and caper in the aire : 2600
 Would make me thinke them Bastards, not my sons,
 But that I know they issued from thy wombe,
 That neuer look'd on man but Tamburlaine.

Zen. My gracious Lord, they haue their mothers looks
 But when they list, their conquering fathers hart : 2605
 This louely boy the yongest of the three,
 Not long agoe bestrid a Scythian Steed :
 Trotting the ring, and tilting at a gloue :
 Which when he tainted with his slender rod,
 He raig'n'd him straight and made him so curuet, 2610
 As I cried out for feare he should haue falne.

Tam. Wel done my boy, thou shalt haue shield and lance
 Armour of proffe, horse, helme, & Curtile-axe
 And I will teach thee how to charge thy foe,
 And harmelesse run among the deadly pikes. 2615
 If thou wilt loue the warres and follow me,
 Thou shalt be made a King and raigne with me,
 Keeping in yron cages Emperours.
 If thou exceed thy elder Brothers worth,
 And shine in compleat vertue more than they, 2620
 Thou shalt be king before them, and thy seed
 Shall issue crowned from their mothers wombe.

Cel. Yes father, you shal see me if I liue,
 Haue vnder me as many kings as you,
 And march with such a multitude of men, 2625
 As all the world shall tremble at their view.

2594 and] as 1606 2626 shall] should 1606

I. iv. 2584-2626

Tam. These words assure me boy, thou art my sonne.
When I am old and cannot mannage armes,
Be thou the scourge and terrour of the world.

Amy. Why may not I my Lord, as wel as he, 2630
Be tearm'd the scourge and terrour of the world?

Tam. Be al a scourge and terror to the world,
Or els you are not sons of Tamburlaine.

Cal. But while my brothers follow armes my lord
Let me accompany my gracious mother, 2635
They are enough to conquer all the world
And you haue won enough for me to keep.

Tam. Bastardly boy, sprong from some cowards loins :
And not the issue of great Tamburlaine,
Of all the prouinces I haue subdued 2640
Thou shalt not haue a foot, vnlesse thou beare
A mind corragious and inuincible :

For he shall weare the crowne of Persea, Whose head hath deepest scarres, whose breast most woundes,

Which being wroth, sends lightning from his eies, 2645
And in the furrowes of his frowning browes,
Harbors reuenge, war, death and cruelty :
For in a field whose superficies

Is couered with a liquid purple veile,
And sprinkled with the braines of slaughtered men, 2650
My royal chaire of state shall be aduanc'd :
And he that meanes to place himselfe therein
Must armed wade vp to the chin in blood.

Zen. My Lord, such speeches to our princely sonnes,
Dismaies their mindes before they come to prooue 2655
The wounding troubles angry war affoord.

Cel. No Madam, these are speeches fit for vs,
For if his chaire were in a sea of blood,
I would prepare a ship and saile to it,
Ere I would loose the tytle of a king. 2660

Amy. And I would striue to swim through pooles of blood,

Or make a bridge of murdered Carcases,
Whose arches should be fram'd with bones of Turks,
Ere I would loose the tytle of a king.

Tam. Wel louely boies, you shal be Emperours both 2665

2631 of] to 1606 2632 to] of 1606 2648 superficies Rob. etc. :

Bull.

Stretching your conquering armes from east to west :
 And sirha, if you meane to weare a crowne,
 When we shall meet the Turkish Deputie
 And all his Vicerioies, snatch it from his head,
 And cleaue his Pericranion with thy sword. 2670

Cal. If any man will hold him, I will strike,
 And cleaue him to the channell with my sword.

Tamb. Hold him, and cleaue him too, or Ile cleaue thee
 For we will martch against them presently.

Theridamas, Techelles, and Casane 2675

Promist to meet me on Larissa plaines
 With hostes apeece against this Turkish crue,
 For I haue sworne by sacred Mahomet,
 To make it parcel of my Empery,
 The trumpets sound Zenocrate, they come. 2680

Actus 1. Scæna 5.

Enter Theridamas, and his traine with Drums and Trumpets.

Tamb. Welcome Theridamas, king of Argier.

Ther. My Lord the great and mighty Tamburlain,
 Arch-Monarke of the world, I offer here,
 My crowne, my selfe, and all the power I haue,
 In all affection at thy kingly feet. 2685

Tam. Thanks good Theridamas.

Ther. Vnder my collors march ten thousand Greeks
 And of Argier and Afriks frontier townes,
 Twise twenty thousand valiant men at armes,
 All which haue sworne to sacke Natolia : 2690
 Fiue hundred Briggandines are vnder saile,
 Meet for your seruice on the sea, my Lord,
 That lanching from Argier to Tripoly,
 Will quickly ride before Natolia :
 And batter downe the castles on the shore. 2695

Tam. Wel said Argier, receiue thy crowne againe.

Actus 1. Scæna 6.

Enter Techelles and Vsumcasane together.

Tamb. Kings of Morocus and of Fesse, welcome
Vsu. Magnificent & peerlesse Tamburlaine,
 I and my neighbor King of Fesse haue brought

To aide thee in this Turkish expedition, 2700
 A hundred thousand expert souldiers :
 From Azamor to Tunys neare the sea,
 Is Barbary vnpeopled for thy sake,
 And all the men in armour vnder me,
 Which with my crowne I gladly offer thee. 2705

Tam. Thanks king of Morocus, take your crown again.

Tech. And mighty Tamburlaine, our earthly God,
 Whose lookes make this inferiour world to quake,
 I here present thee with the crowne of Fesse,
 And with an hoste of Moores trainde to the war, 2710
 Whose coleblacke faces make their foes retire,
 And quake for feare, as if infernall Ioue
 Meaning to aid thee in these Turkish armes,
 Should pierce the blacke circumference of hell,
 With vgly Furies bearing fiery flags, 2715
 And millions of his strong tormenting spirits :
 From strong Tesella vnto Biledull,
 All Barbary is vnpeopled for thy sake.

Tam. Thanks king of Fesse, take here thy crowne again.

Your presence (louing friends and fellow kings) 2720
 Makes me to surfet in conceiuing ioy,
 If all the christall gates of Ioues high court
 Were opened wide, and I might enter in
 To see the state and maiesty of heauen,
 It could not more delight me than your sight. 2725
 Now will we banquet on these plaines a while,
 And after martch to Turkey with our Campe,
 In number more than are the drops that fall
 When Boreas rents a thousand swelling cloudes.
 And proud Orcanes of Natolia, 2730
 With all his vicerioies shall be so affraide,
 That though the stones, as at Deucalions flood,
 Were turnde to men, he should be ouercome :
 Such lauish will I make of Turkish blood,
 That Ioue shall send his winged Messenger 2735
 To bid me sheath my sword, and leaue the field :
 The Sun vnable to sustaine the sight,
 Shall hide his head in Thetis watery lap,
 And leaue his steeds to faire Bootes charge :
 For halfe the world shall perish in this fight : 2740

But now my friends, let me examine ye,
How haue ye spent your absent time from me ?

Vsum. My Lord our men of Barbary haue marcht
Foure hundred miles with armour on their backes,
And laine in leagre fiteene moneths and more, 2745
For since we left you at the Souldans court,
We haue subdude the Southerne Guallatia,
And all the land vnto the coast of Spaine.
We kept the narrow straight of Gibraltar,
And made Canarea cal vs kings and Lords, 2750
Yet neuer did they recreate themselues,
Or cease one day from war and hot alarms,
And therefore let them rest a while my Lord.

Tam. They shal Casane, and tis time yfaith.

Tech. And I haue march'd along the riuier Nile, 2755
To Machda, where the mighty Christian Priest
Cal'd Iohn the great, sits in a milk-white robe,
Whose triple Myter I did take by force,
And made him sweare obedience to my crowne.
From thence vnto Cazates did I march, 2760
Wher Amazonians met me in the field :
With whom (being women) I vouchsaft a league,
And with my power did march to Zansibar
The Western part of Affrike, where I view'd
The Ethiopian sea, riuers and lakes : 2765
But neither man nor child in al the land :
Therefore I tooke my course to Manico,
Where vnresisted I remoou'd my campe :
And by the coast of Byather at last,
I came to Cubar, where the Negros dwell, 2770
And conquering that, made haste to Nubia,
There hauing sackt Borno the Kingly seat,
I took the king, and lead him bound in chaines
Vnto Damasco, where I staid before.

Tamb. Well done Techelles : what saith Theridamas ?

Ther. I left the confines and the bounds of Affrike 2776
And made a voyage into Europe,
Where by the riuier Tyros I subdew'd
Stoka, Padalia, and Codemia.
Then crost the sea and came to Oblia, 2780
And Nigra Silua, where the Deuils dance,

2764 Western] eastern conj. Broughton, Cunn., Bull. 2774
Damascus Dyce, Cunn. 2777 made] thence I made Cunn., Bull.
Europa conj. Elze, Wag.

Which in despight of them I set on fire :
 From thence I crost the Gulfe, call'd by the name
Mare maggiore, of th' inhabitantes :
 Yet shall my souldiers make no period 2785
 Vntill Natolia kneele before your feet.

Tamb. Then wil we triumph, banquet and carouse,
 Cookes shall haue pensions to prouide vs cates,
 And glut vs with the dainties of the world,
Lachrima Christi and Calabrian wines 2790
 Shall common Souldiers drink in quaffing boules,
 I, liquid golde when we haue conquer'd him,
 Mingled with corral and with orient pearle :
 Come let vs banquet and carrouse the whiles. Exeunt.

Finis Actus primi.

Actus 2. Scæna 1.

Sigismond, Fredericke, Baldwine, with their traine

Sigis. Now say my Lords of Buda and Bohemia, 2795
 What motion is it that inflames your thoughts,
 And stirs your valures to such soddaine armes ?

Fred. Your Maiesty remembers I am sure
 What cruell slaughter of our Christian bloods,
 These heathnish Turks and Pagans lately made, 2800
 Betwixt the citie Zula and Danubius,
 How through the midst of Verna and Bulgaria
 And almost to the very walles of Rome,
 They haue not long since massacred our Camp.
 It resteth now then that your Maiesty 2805
 Take all aduantages of time and power,
 And worke reuenge vpon these Infidels :
 Your Highnesse knowes for Tamburlaines repaire,
 That strikes a terrour to all Turkish hearts,
Natolia hath dismist the greatest part 2810
 Of all his armie, pitcht against our power
 Betwixt Cutheia and Orminius mount :
 And sent them marching vp to Belgasar,
Acaniha, Antioch, and Cæsaria,
 To aid the kings of Soria and Ierusalem. 2815
 Now then my Lord, aduantage take hereof,
 And issue sodainly vpon the rest :

2793 orient Rob. etc. : orientall 1590-1606 2816 hereof] thereof
 1592, Rob. to Bull.

That in the fortune of their ouerthrow,
We may discourage all the pagan troope,
That dare attempt to war with Christians. 2820

Sig. But cal's not then your Grace to memorie
The league we lately made with king Orcanes,
Confirm'd by oth and Articles of peace,
And calling Christ for record of our trueths ?
This should be treacherie and violence, 2825
Against the grace of our profession.

Bald. No whit my Lord : for with such Infidels,
In whom no faith nor true religion rests,
We are not bound to those accomplishments,
The holy lawes of Christendome inioine : 2830
But as the faith which they prophanely plight
Is not by necessary pollycy,
To be esteem'd assurance for our selues,
So what we vow to them should not infringe
Our liberty of armes and victory. 2835

Sig. Though I confesse the othes they vndertake,
Breed litle strength to our securitie,
Yet those infirmities that thus defame
Their faiths, their honors, and their religion,
Should not giue vs presumption to the like. 2840
Our faiths are sound, and must be consummate,
Religious, righteous, and inuiolate.

Fred. Assure your Grace tis superstition
To stand so strictly on dispensiu' faith :
And should we lose the opportunity 2845
That God hath giuen to venge our Christians death
And scourge their foule blasphemous Paganisme,
As fell to Saule, to Balaam, and the rest,
That would not kill and curse at Gods command,
So surely will the vengeance of the highest 2850
And iealous anger of his fearefull arme
Be pour'd with rigour on our sinfull heads,
If we neglect this offered victory.

Sig. Then arme my Lords, and issue sodainly,
Giuing commandement to our generall hoste, 2855
With expedition to assaile the Pagan,
And take the victorie our God hath giuen. Exeunt.

Orcanes, Gazellus, Vribassa with their traine.

Orcanes. Gazellus, Vribassa, and the rest,
Now will we march from proud Orminus mount
To faire Natolia, where our neighbour kings 2860
Expect our power and our royall presence,
T'incounter with the cruell Tamburlain,
That nigh Larissa swaies a mighty hoste,
And with the thunder of his martial tooles
Makes Earthquakes in the hearts of men and heauen. 2865

Gaz. And now come we to make his sinowes shake,
With greater power than erst his pride hath felt,
An hundred kings by scores wil bid him armes,
And hundred thousands subiects to each score :
Which if a shower of wounding thunderbolts 2870
Should breake out off the bowels of the clowdes
And fall as thick as haile vpon our heads,
In partiall aid of that proud Scythian,
Yet should our courages and steeled crestes,
And numbers more than infinit of men, 2875
Be able to withstand and conquer him.

Vrib. Me thinks I see how glad the christian King
Is made, for ioy of your admitted truce :
That could not but before be terrified :
With vnacquainted power of our hoste. 2880

Enter a messenger.

Mess. Arme dread Soueraign and my noble Lords.
The treacherous army of the Christians,
Taking aduantage of your slender power,
Comes marching on us, and determines straight,
To bid vs battaile for our dearest liues. 2885

Orc. Traitors, villaines, damned Christians.
Haue I not here the articles of peace,
And solemne couenants we haue both confirm'd,
He by his Christ, and I by Mahomet ?

Gaz. Hel and confusion light vpon their heads, 2890

 Whose shape is figure of the highest God ? 2895
 Then if there be a Christ, as Christians say,
 But in their deeds deny him for their Christ :
 If he be son to euerliuing Ioue,

 If he be iealous of his name and honor, 2900

 If thou wilt prooue thy selfe a perfect God,
 Worthy the worship of all faithfull hearts,
 Be now reueng'd vpon this Traitors soule, 2915

The Arras is drawn, and Zenocrate lies in her bed of state, Tamburlaine sitting by her: three Physicians about her bed, tempering potions. Theridamas, Techelles, Vsumcasane, and the three sonnes.

Tamburlaine.

Blacke is the beauty of the brightest day,
 The golden balle of heauens eternal fire, 2970
 That danc'd with glorie on the siluer waues :
 Now wants the fewell that enflamde his beames
 And all with faintnesse and for foule disgrace,
 He bindes his temples with a frowning cloude,
 Ready to darken earth with endlesse night : 2975
Zenocrate that gaue him light and life,
 Whose eies shot fire from their Iuory bowers,
 And tempered euery soule with liuely heat,
 Now by the malice of the angry Skies,
 Whose iealousie admits no second Mate, 2980
 Drawes in the comfort of her latest breath
 All dasled with the hellish mists of death.
 Now walk the angels on the walles of heauen,
 As Centinels to warne th' immortall soules,
 To entertaîne deuine Zenocrate. 2985
Apollo, Cynthia, and the ceaslesse lamps
 That gently look'd vpon this loathsome earth,
 Shine downwards now no more, but deck the heauens
 To entertaîne diuine Zenocrate.
 The christall springs whose taste illuminates 2990
 Refined eies with an eternall sight,

 And if she passe this fit, the worst is past.

Tam. Tell me, how fares my faire Zenocrate ?

Zen. I fare my Lord, as other Emperesses, 3010
 That when this fraile and transitory flesh
 Hath suckt the measure of that vitall aire
 That feeds the body with his dated health,
 Wanes with enforst and necessary change.

Tam. May neuer such a change transfourme my loue 3015
 In whose sweet being I repose my life,

And scourge the Scourge of the immortall God :
Now are those Spheares where Cupid vsde to sit,
Wounding the world with woonder and with loue, 3050
Sadly supplied with pale and ghastly death :
Whose darts do pierce the Center of my soule.

Raise Caualleros higher than the cloudes,
And with the cannon breake the frame of heauen,
Batter the shining pallace of the Sun,
And shiuer all the starry firmament :
For amorous Ioue hath snatcht my loue from hence, 3075
Meaning to make her stately Queene of heauen.
What God so euer holds thee in his armes,
Giuing thee Nectar and Ambrosia,
Behold me here diuine Zenocrate,
Rauing, impatient, desperate and mad, 3080
Breaking my steeled lance, with which I burst
The rusty beames of Ianus Temple doores,

Letting out death and tyrannising war:
To march with me vnder this bloody flag,
And if thou pitiest Tamburlain the great, 3085
Come downe from heauen and liue with me againe.

Ther. Ah good my Lord be patient, she is dead,
And all this raging cannot make her liue,
If woords might serue, our voice hath rent the aire,
If teares, our eies haue watered all the earth : 3090
If grieue, our murthered harts haue straind forth blood.
Nothing preuailes, for she is dead my Lord.

Tam. For she is dead? thy words doo pierce my soule.
Ah sweet Theridamas, say so no more,
Though she be dead, yet let me think she liues, 3095
And feed my mind that dies for want of her :
Where ere her soule be, thou shalt stay with me
Embalmd with Cassia, Amber Greece and Myrre,
Not lapt in lead but in a sheet of gold,
And till I die thou shalt not be interr'd. 3100
Then in as rich a tombe as Mausolus,
We both will rest and haue one Epitaph
Writ in as many seuerall languages,
As I haue conquered kingdomes with my sword.
This cursed towne will I consume with fire, 3105
Because this place bereft me of my Loue :
The houses burnt, wil looke as if they mourn'd
And here will I set vp her stature,

Drooping and pining for Zenocrate. 3110

Ther. Capitaine, that thou yeeld vp thy hold to vs.

Cap. To you ? Why, do you thinke me weary of it ?

Tech. Nay Captain, thou art weary of thy life, 3366
If thou withstand the friends of Tamburlain.

Ther. These Pioners of Argier in Affrica,
Euen in the cannons face shall raise a hill
Of earth and fagots higher than thy Fort, 3370
And ouer thy Argins and couered waies
Shal play vpon the bulwarks of thy hold
Volleies of ordinance til the breach be made,
That with his ruine fils vp all the trench.
And when we enter in, not heauen it selfe 3375
Shall ransom thee, thy wife and family.

 And lie in trench before thy castle walles :
 That no supply of victuall shall come in, 3380
 Nor (any) issue foorth, but they shall die :
 And therefore Captaine, yeeld it quietly.

Cap. Were you that are the friends of Tamburlain
 Brothers to holy Mahomet himselfe,
 I would not yeeld it : therefore doo your worst. 3385
 Raise mounts, batter, intrench, and vndermine,
 Cut off the water, all conuoiues that can,
 Yet I am resolute, and so farewell. (Exeunt.)

Ther. Pioners away, and where I stuck the stake,
 Intrench with those dimensions I prescribed : 3390
 Cast vp the earth towards the castle wall,
 Which til it may defend you, labour low :
 And few or none shall perish by their shot.

Pion. We will my Lord. Exeunt.

Tech. A hundred horse shall scout about the plaines
 To spie what force comes to relieue the holde. 3396
 Both we (Theridamas) wil intrench our men,
 And with the Iacobs staffe measure the height
 And distance of the castle from the trench,
 That we may know if our artillery 3400
 Will carie full point blancke vnto their wals

Ther. Then see the bringing of our ordinance
 Along the trench into the battery,
 Where we will haue Gabions of sixe foot broad,
 To saue our Cannoniers from musket shot, 3405
 Betwixt which, shall our ordinance thunder foorth,
 And with the breaches fall, smoake, fire, and dust,
 The cracke, the Ecchoe and the souldiers crie
 Make deafe the aire, and dim the Christall Sky.

Enter the Captaine with {Olympia} his wife and sonne.

Olym. Come good my Lord, & let vs haste from hence
Along the caue that leads beyond the foe,
No hope is left to saue this conquered hold.

Cap. A deadly bullet gliding through my side, 3415
Lies heauy on my heart, I cannot liue.
I feele my liuer pierc'd and all my vaines,
That there begin and nourish euery part,
Mangled and torne, and all my entrals bath'd
In blood that straineth from their orifex. 3420
Farewell sweet wife, sweet son farewell, I die.

Olym. Death, whether art thou gone that both we liue ?
Come back again (sweet death) & strike vs both :
One minute end our daies, and one sepulcher
Containe our bodies : death, why comm'st thou not ? 3425
Wel, this must be the messenger for thee.

Now vgly death stretch out thy Sable wings,
And carie both our soules, where his remains.
Tell me sweet boie, art thou content to die ?
These barbarous Scythians full of cruelty, 3430
And Moores, in whom was neuer pitie found,
Will hew vs peecemeale, put vs to the wheele,
Or els inuent some torture worse than that,
Therefore die by thy louing mothers hand,
Who gently now wil lance thy Iuory throat, 3435
And quickly rid thee both of paine and life.

Son. Mother dispatch me, or Ile kil my selfe,
For think ye I can liue, and see him dead ?
Giue me your knife, (good mother) or strike home :
The Scythians shall not tyrannise on me. 3440
Sweet mother strike, that I may meet my father.

She stabs him.

Olym. Ah sacred Mahomet, if this be sin,
Intreat a pardon of the God of heauen,
And purge my soule before it come to thee.

Olim. Killing my selfe, as I haue done my sonne,
Whose body with his fathers I haue burnt,
Least cruell Scythians should dismember him.

Tech. Twas brauely done, and like a souldiers wife.
Thou shalt with vs to Tamburlaine the great, 3450
Who when he heares how resolute thou wert,
Wil match thee with a viceroy or a king.

Olym. My Lord deceast, was dearer vnto me,
Than any Viceroy, King or Emperour,
And for his sake here will I end my daies. 3455

Ther. But Lady goe with vs to Tamburlaine,
And thou shalt see a man greater than Mahomet,
In whose high lookes is much more maiesty
Than from the Concaue superficies

Of Ioues vast pallace the imperiall Orbe, 3460
Vnto the shining bower where Cynthia sits,
Like louely Thetis in a Christall robe :

That treadeth Fortune vnderneath his feete,
And makes the mighty God of armes his slaue :
On whom death and the fatall sisters waite, 3465

With naked swords and scarlet liueries :
Before whom (mounted on a Lions backe)

Rhamnusia beares a helmet ful of blood,
And strowes the way with braines of slaughtered men :
By whose proud side the vgly furies run, 3470
Harkening when he shall bid them plague the world.

Ouer whose Zenith cloth'd in windy aire,
And Eagles wings ioin'd to her feathered breast,
Fame houereth, sounding of her golden Trumpe :

That to the aduerse poles of that straight line, 3475
Which measureth the glorious frame of heauen,
The name of mightie Tamburlain is spread :

And him faire Lady shall thy eies behold.
Come.

Olim. Take pitie of a Ladies ruthfull teares, 3480

That you must goe with vs, no remedy. 3490

Olim. Then carie me I care not where you will,
And let the end of this my fatall iourney,
Be likewise end to my accursed life.

Tech. No Madam, but the beginning of your ioy,
Come willinglie, therefore. 3495

Ther. Souldiers now let vs meet the Generall,
Who by this time is at Natolia,
Ready to charge the army of the Turke.

Actus 3. Scæna 5.

Callepine, Orcanes, Ierusalem, Trebizon, Soria, Almeda, with their traine (and Messenger).

Messenger. Renowmed Emperour, mighty Callepine,
Gods great lieftenant ouer all the world :
Here at Alepo with an hoste of men 3505
Lies Tamburlaine, this king of Persea :
In number more than are the quyuering leaues
Of Idas forrest, where your highnesse hounds,
With open crie pursues the wounded Stag :
Who meanes to gyrt Natolias walles with siege, 3510
Fire the towne and ouerrun the land.

Cal. My royal army is as great as his,
That from the bounds of Phrigia to the sea
Which washeth Cyprus with his brinish waues,
Couers the hills, the valleies and the plaines. 3515

Orc. Now, he that cal's himself the scourge of Ioue,
The Emperour of the world, and earthly God,
Shal end the warlike progresse he intends, 3525
And traueile hedlong to the lake of hell :
Where legions of deuils (knowing he must die
Here in Natolia, by your highnesse hands)
All brandishing their brands of quenchlesse fire,
Streching their monstrous pawes, grin with their teeth,
And guard the gates to entertaine his soule. 3531

Cal. Tel me Vicerioies the number of your men,
And what our Army royall is esteem'd.

Ier. From Palestina and Ierusalem,
Of Hebrewes, three score thousand fighting men 3535
Are come since last we shewed your maiesty.

Orc. So from Arabia desart, and the bounds
Of that sweet land, whose braue Metropolis
Reedified the faire Semyramis,
Came forty thousand warlike foot and horse, 3540
Since last we numbred to your Maiesty.

Treb. From Trebizon in Asia the lesse,
Naturalized Turks and stout Bythinians
Came to my bands full fifty thousand more,
That fighting, knowes not what retreat doth meane, 3545

Since last we numbred to your maiesty.

Sor. Of Sorians from Halla is repair'd
And neighbor cities of your highnesse land,
Ten thousand horse, and thirty thousand foot, 3550
Since last we numbred to your maiestie :
So that the Army royall is esteem'd
Six hundred thousand valiant fighting men.

Callep. Then welcome Tamburlaine vnto thy death.

Sitting as if they were a telling riddles.

Vsu. My Lord, your presence makes them pale and wan.
Poore soules they looke as if their deaths were neere.

Tamb. Why, so he is Casane, I am here,
But yet Ile saue their liues and make them slaues. 3565
Ye petty kings of Turkye I am come,
As Hector did into the Grecian campe,
To ouerdare the pride of Græcia,
And set his warlike person to the view
Of fierce Achilles, riually of his fame. 3570

I doe you honor in the simile,

Orc. Now thou art fearfull of thy armies strength,
Thou wouldst with ouermatch of person fight,
But Shepheards issue, base borne Tamburlaine,
Thinke of thy end, this sword shall lance thy throat. 3580

Tamb. Villain, the shepheards issue, at whose byrth
Heauen did affoord a gracious aspect,
And ioin'd those stars that shall be opposite,
Euen till the dissolution of the world,
And neuer meant to make a Conquerour, 3585
So famous as is mighty Tamburlain:

That like a roguish runaway, suborn'd
That villaine there, that slaue, that Turkish dog,
To false his seruice to his Soueraigne, 3590
As ye shal curse the byrth of Tamburlaine.

Cal. Raile not proud Scythian, I shall now reuenge
My fathers vile abuses and mine owne.

That most may vex his body and his soule.

Tam. Sirha, Callapine, Ile hang a clogge about your thus to come and fetch you.

But as for you (Viceroy) you shal haue bits, 3605
And harnest like my horses, draw my coch :
And when ye stay, be lasht with whips of wier,
Ile haue you learne to feed on prouander,
And in a stable lie vpon the planks.

Or. But Tamburlaine, first thou shalt kneele to vs
And humbly craue a pardon for thy life. 3611

Treb. The common souldiers of our mighty hoste
Shal bring thee bound vnto the Generals tent.

Sor. And all haue iointly sworne thy cruell death,
Or bind thee in eternall torments wrath. 3615

Tam. Wel sirs, diet your selues, you knowe I shall haue occasion shortly to iourney you.

Cal. See father, how Almeda the Taylor lookes vpon vs.

Tam. Villaine, traitor, damned fugitiue,
Ile make thee wish the earth had swallowed thee : 3620
Seest thou not death within my wrathfull looks.
Goe villaine, cast thee headlong from a rock,
Or rip thy bowels, and rend out thy heart,
T' appease my wrath, or els Ile torture thee,
Searing thy hatefull flesh with burning yrons, 3625

For if thou liuest, not any Element

Tamb. No, let him hang a bunch of keies on his standerd, to put him in remembrance he was a Iailor, that when I take him, I may knocke out his braines with them, and lock you in the stable, when you shall come sweating from my chariot.

Treb. Away, let vs to the field, that the villaine may be slaine. 3646

Tamb. Sirha, prepare whips, and bring my chariot to my Tent : For as soone as the battaile is done, Ile ride in triumph through the Camp.

Enter Theridamas, Techelles, and their traine.

Ther. I, my Lord, he was Calapines keeper. 3655

Tam. Wel, now you see hee is a king, looke to him
Theridamas, when we are fighting, least hee hide his crowne as the foolish king of Persea did.

Sor. No Tamburlaine, hee shall not be put to that

Alarme: Amyras and Celebinus issues from the tent where Caliphaz sits a sleepe.

(Amyras.) Now in their glories shine the golden crownes
Of these proud Turks, much like so many suns 3675
That halfe dismay the maiesty of heauen :
Now brother, follow we our fathers sword,
That flies with fury swifter than our thoughts,
And cuts down armies with his conquering swings.

Cel. Call forth our laisie brother from the tent, 3680
For if my father misse him in the field,
Wrath kindled in the furnace of his breast,
Will send a deadly lightening to his heart.

Amy. Brother, ho, what, giuen so much to sleep
You cannot leaue it, when our enemies drums 3685
And ratling cannons thunder in our eares
Our proper ruine, and our fathers foile ?

Cal. Away ye fools, my father needs not me,
Nor you in faith, but that you wil be thought
More childish valourous than manly wise : 3690
If halfe our campe should sit and sleepe with me,
My father were enough to scar the foe :
You doo dishonor to his maiesty,
To think our helps will doe him any good.

Amy. What, dar'st thou then be absent from the fight,
Knowing my father hates thy cowardise, 3696
And oft hath warn'd thee to be stil in field,
When he himselfe amidst the thickest troopes
Beats downe our foes to flesh our taintlesse swords.

Cal. I know sir, what it is to kil a man, 3700
It works remorse of conscience in me,
I take no pleasure to be murtherous,
Nor care for blood when wine wil quench my thirst.

Cel. O cowardly boy, fie for shame, come forth.
Thou doost dishonor manhood, and thy house. 3705

Cal. Goe, goe tall stripling, fight you for vs both,

Cal. You say true.

Amy. Were all the lofty mounts of Zona mundi, 3715
 That fill the midst of farthest Tartary,
 Turn'd into pearle and proffered for my stay,
 I would not bide the furie of my father :
 When made a victor in these hautie arms,
 He comes and findes his sonnes haue had no shares 3720
 In all the honors he proposde for vs.

Cal. Take you the honor, I will take my ease,
 My wisdom shall excuse my cowardise :
 I goe into the field before I need ?

Alarme, and Amy. and Celeb. run in.

The bullets fly at random where they list. 3725
 And should I goe and kill a thousand men,
 I were as soone rewarded with a shot,
 And sooner far than he that neuer fights.
 And should I goe and do nor harme nor good,
 I might haue harme, which all the good I haue 3730

Per. Agreed yfaith. 3739

Cal. They say I am a coward, (Perdicas) and I feare

Tam. See now ye slaues, my children stoops your pride And leads your glories sheep-like to the sword. 3751

Bring them my boyes, and tel me if the warres
Be not a life that may illustrate Gods,
And tickle not your Spirits with desire

Amy. Shal we let goe these kings again my Lord
To gather greater numbers gainst our power,
That they may say, it is not chance doth this,
But matchlesse strength and magnanimity ?

Tamb. No, no Amyras, tempt not Fortune so, 3760
Cherish thy valour stil with fresh supplies :
And glut it not with stale and daunted foes.
But wher's this coward, villaine, not my sonne,
But traitor to my name and maiesty.

 Whose matter is the flesh of Tamburlain,
 Wherein an incorporeall spirit mooues,
 Made of the mould whereof thy selfe consists,
 Which makes me valiant, proud, ambitious, 3790
 Ready to leuie power against thy throne,
 That I might mooue the turning Spheares of heauen,
 For earth and al this aery region
 Cannot containe the state of Tamburlaine.

(Stabs Calyphas.)

By Mahomet, thy mighty friend I sweare, 3795
 In sending to my issue such a soule,
 Created of the massy dregges of earth,
 The scum and tartar of the Elements,
 Wherein was neither corrage, strength or wit,
 But follie, sloth, and damned idlenesse : 3800
 Thou hast procur'd a greater enemy,
 Than he that darted mountaines at thy head,
 Shaking the burthen mighty Atlas beares :
 Whereat thou trembling hid'st thee in the aire,
 Cloth'd with a pitchy cloud for being seene. 3805
 And now ye cankered curres of Asia,
 That will not see the strength of Tamburlaine,
 Although it shine as brightly as the Sun.
 Now you shal feele the strength of Tamburlain,
 And by the state of his supremacie, 3810

Actus 4. Scæna 2.

Olympia alone.

{Olympia.} Distrest Olympia, whose weeping eies
 Since thy arriuall here beheld no Sun,
 But closde within the compasse of a tent,
 Hath stain'd thy cheekes, & made thee look like death,
 Deuise some meanes to rid thee of thy life, 3886
 Rather than yeeld to his detested suit,
 Whose drift is onely to dishonor thee.
 And since this earth, dew'd with thy brinish teares,
 Affoords no hearbs, whose taste may poison thee, 3890

Let this inuention be the instrument.

Enter Theridamas.

The. Wel met Olympia, I sought thee in my tent 3895
But when I saw the place obscure and darke,
Which with thy beauty thou wast woont to light,
Enrag'd, I ran about the fields for thee,
Supposing amorous Ioue had sent his sonne,
The winged Hermes, to conuay thee hence : 3900
But now I finde thee, and that feare is past.
Tell me Olympia, wilt thou graunt my suit ?

Olym. My Lord and husbandes death, with my sweete sons,
With whom I buried al affections,
Saue grieue and sorrow which torment my heart, 3905
Forbids my mind to entertaine a thought
That tends to loue, but meditate on death,
A fitter subiect for a pensiuie soule.

Ther. Olympia, pitie him, in whom thy looks
Haue greater operation and more force 3910
Than Cynthias in the watery wildernes,
For with thy view my ioyes are at the full,
And eb againe, as thou departst from me.

Olim. Ah, pity me my Lord, and draw your sword,
Making a passage for my troubled soule, 3915
Which beates against this prison to get out,
And meet my husband and my louing sonne.

Ther. Nothing, but stil thy husband and thy sonne ?
Leaue this my Loue, and listen more to me,
Thou shalt be stately Queene of faire Argier, 3920
And cloth'd in costly cloath of massy gold,
Vpon the marble turrets of my Court
Sit like to Venus in her chaire of state,
Commanding all thy princely eie desires,
And I will cast off armes and sit with thee, 3925
Spending my life in sweet discourse of loue.

Olym. No such discourse is pleasant in mine eares,

Gouer. What saith Maximus ?

Max. My Lord, the breach the enimie hath made
Giues such assurance of our ouerthrow, 4115
That litle hope is left to saue our liues,
Or hold our citie from the Conquerours hands.
Then hang out flagges (my Lord) of humble truce,
And satisfie the peoples generall praiers,
That Tamburlains intollorable wrath 4120
May be suppress by our submission.

Gou. Villaine, respects thou more thy slauish life,
Than honor of thy countrie or thy name ?
Is not my life and state as deere to me,
The citie and my natie countries weale, 4125
As any thing of price with thy conceit ?
Haue we not hope, for all our battered walles,
To liue secure, and keep his forces out,
When this our famous lake of Limnasphaltis
Makes walles a fresh with euery thing that falles 4130
Into the liquid substance of his streame,
More strong than are the gates of death or hel ?
What faintnesse should dismay our courages,
When we are thus defenc'd against our Foe,
And haue no terrour but his threatning lookes ? 4135

Enter another, kneeling to the Gouvernour.

(Citizen.) My Lord, if euer you did deed of ruth,
And now will work a refuge to our liues,
Offer submission, hang vp flags of truce,

Amy. See now my Lord how braue the Captaine hangs.

Tam. Tis braue indeed my boy, wel done, 4261
 Shoot first my Lord, and then the rest shall follow.

Ther. Then haue at him to begin withall.

Theridamas shootes.

Gou. Yet saue my life, and let this wound appease
 The mortall furie of great Tamburlain. 4265

Tam. No, though Asphaltis lake were liquid gold,
 And offer'd me as ransome for thy life,
 Yet shouldst thou die, shoot at him all at once.

They shoote.

So now he hangs like Bagdets Gouernour,
 Hauing as many bullets in his flesh, 4270

As there be breaches in her battered wall.

Goe now and bind the Burghers hand and foot,

And cast them headlong in the cities lake :

Tartars and Perseans shall inhabit there,

And to command the citie, I will build 4275

A Cytadell, that all Affrica

Shall pay me tribute for, in Babylon.

Tech. What shal be done with their wiues and children

Tam. Techelles, drowne them all, man, woman, and

Leaue not a Babylonian in the towne.

Tech. I will about it straight, come Souldiers. Exit.

Tam. Now Casane, wher's the Turkish Alcaron,

Cas. Here they are my Lord.

Tam. Wel said, let there be a fire presently.

(They light a fire.)

In vaine I see men worship Mahomet. 4290
My sword hath sent millions of Turks to hell,
Slew all his Priests, his kinsmen, and his friends,
And yet I liue vntoucht by Mahomet:
There is a God full of reuenging wrath,
From whom the thunder and the lightning breaks, 4295
Whose Scourge I am, and him will I obey
So Casane, fling them in the fire.

(They burn the books.)

Now Mahomet, if thou haue any power,
Come downe thy selfe and worke a myracle,
Thou art not woorthy to be worshipped, 4300
That suffers flames of fire to burne the writ
Wherein the sum of thy religion rests.
Why send'st thou not a furious whyrlwind downe,
To blow thy Alcaron vp to thy throne,
Where men report, thou sitt'st by God himselfe, 4305
Or vengeance on the head of Tamburlain,
That shakes his sword against thy maiesty,
And spurns the Abstracts of thy foolish lawes.
Wel souldiers, Mahomet remaines in hell,
He cannot heare the voice of Tamburlain, 4310
Seeke out another Godhead to adore,
The God that sits in heauen, if any God,
For he is God alone, and none but he.

(Re-enter Techelles.)

Tech. I haue fulfil'd your highnes wil, my Lord,
Thousands of men drown'd in Asphaltis Lake, 4315

And fishes fed by humane carkasses,

As when they swallow Assafitida,

Enter Callapine, Amasia, with drums and trumpets.

Callap. King of Amasia, now our mighty hoste,
Marcheth in Asia maior, where the streames, 4335
Of Euphrates and Tigris swiftly runs,
And here may we behold great Babylon,
Circled about with Limnasphaltis Lake,
Where Tamburlaine with all his armie lies,
Which being faint and weary with the siege, 4340
Wee may lie ready to encounter him,
Before his hoste be full from Babylon,
And so reuenge our latest grieuous losse,
If God or Mahomet send any aide.

Ama. Doubt not my lord, but we shal conquer him.
The Monster that hath drunke a sea of blood, 4346
And yet gapes stil for more to quench his thirst,
Our Turkish swords shal headlong send to hell,
And that vile Carkasse drawne by warlike kings,
The Foules shall eate, for neuer sepulchre 4350
Shall grace that base-borne Tyrant Tamburlaine.

Cal. When I record my Parents slauish life,
Their cruel death, mine owne captiuity,
My Vicerioies bondage vnder Tamburlaine,
Me thinks I could sustaine a thousand deaths, 4355
To be reueng'd of all his Villanie.

Ama. Feare not my Lord, I see great Mahomet
 Clothed in purple clowdes, and on his head 4365
 A Chaplet brighter than Apollos crowne,
 Marching about the ayer with armed men,
 To ioine with you against this Tamburlaine.
 Renowned Generall, mighty Callapine,
 Though God himselfe and holy Mahomet, 4370
 Should come in person to resist your power,
 Yet might your mighty hoste incounter all,
 And pull proud Tamburlaine vpon his knees,
 To sue for mercie at your highnesse feete.

Cal. Captaine, the force of Tamburlaine is great, 4375
 His fortune greater, and the victories
 Wherewith he hath so sore dismaide the world,
 Are greatest to discourage all our drifts,
 Yet when the pride of Cynthia is at full,
 She waines againe, and so shall his I hope, 4380
 For we haue here the chiefe selected men
 Of twenty seuerall kingdomes at the least :
 Nor plowman, Priest, nor Merchant staires at home,
 All Turkie is in armes with Callapine,
 And neuer wil we sunder camps and armes, 4385

 This is the time that must eternize me,
 For conquering the Tyrant of the world.

 Being distant lesse than ful a hundred leagues,
 I meant to cut a channell to them both,
 That men might quickly saile to India.
 From thence to Nubia neere Borno Lake,
 And so along the Ethiopian sea, 4530
 Cutting the Tropicke line of Capricorne,

DOCTOR FAUSTUS

Date. The position of Doctor Faustus as the immediate successor of Tamburlaine in the series of Marlowe's works is well established by the testimony of metre and dramatic structure. External evidence verifies the conclusions of literary criticism and points with tolerable certainty to the winter of 1588/9 as the date of the play's completion. The allusions to the 'fiery keele at Antwarpes bridge' (l. 124) and to the Duke of Parma as oppressor of the Netherlands (l. 121) determine the extreme limits of composition—1585 and 1590 respectively. A more exact terminus a quo is furnished by the date of the second part of Tamburlaine, which belongs almost certainly to 1588, and presumably to the earlier part of the year. On the other hand, it is probable from what we know of the procedure of ballad writers of the time that the 'ballad of the life and deathe of Doctor Ffaustus the great Cungerer', which was licensed on the last day of February, 1588/9 was inspired by the successful production of the play, and it is practically certain that the latter must have been acted before November 6, 1589, when the company which produced it had been silenced by the Lord Mayor on complaint of the Master of the Revels.¹

Stage history and early editions. Henslowe's Diary mentions twenty-four performances of Doctor Faustus by the Lord Admiral's Company between September 30, 1594, and January 5, 1596/7. In October, 1597, it was produced once again by the Lord Admiral's and Lord Pembroke's players in conjunction, this time apparently without any profits. The first recorded presentation, however, brought Henslowe in the unusually large sum of £3 12s., from which, as well as from the number of performances, it must be inferred that the piece was then a novelty, though Henslowe does not mark it as a 'new' play. The probability is that it had been acted during 1589, till the inhibition of the players, and was next brought before the public five

On January 7, 1600/1, 'a booke called the plaie of Doctor Faustus' was entered for publication by Thomas Bushell, and it is likely that an edition was issued the same year, though no copy is apparently extant. All the early editions of Faustus are of excessive rarity. The oldest now known was published by Bushell in 1604, a unique copy being preserved in the Bodleian. Under date of September 13, 1610, the Stationers' Register records the transfer of copyright in Doctor Faustus from Bushell to John Wright, who had already in 1609 published an edition of the play, now known from two exemplars, and who issued the next six editions, dated respectively 1611, 1616, 1619, 1620, 1624, 1631. Of the last-named texts all except that of 1631 appear to exist in unique copies. In 1663 the play was again published, this time in an excessively maimed and corrupted state.

Text and Authorship. The quartos of 1604-31 present Faustus in two very different shapes. The more original type is represented by the editions of 1604, 1609, and 1611; those of 1616 to 1631 offer a text which has been amplified to the extent of one-half the original, while the old matter has been in some cases omitted, and in others completely recast. With the question of the relation of the two texts is bound up the further question, What part of each version is to be ascribed to Marlowe? Both points have been much discussed, and the credible evidence is too scanty to justify dogmatic assertion. There seems, however, at present to be small warrant for the belief that the 1616 edition contains any matter by Marlowe not found in the earlier versions, with the exception of a few single lines (e.g. 835, 836), which may have been in the problematical 1601 text, and were possibly omitted by the negligence of the compositor of the 1604 edition. The other changes of the later texts—which consist in the bowdlerizing of certain 'atheistical' passages, the addition of a number of crude scenes taken mostly from the prose Faustbook, and the expansion of a few brief speeches into longer passages of tolerable blank verse—all these changes are sufficiently accounted for by Henslowe's memorandum of the payment of £4 on November 22, 1602, to William Birde and Samuel Rowley 'for ther adicyones in doctor fostes'. Four pounds is most ample payment, at Henslowe's rate, for all the new passages in the 1616 edition, and there appears to be nothing in any of these passages, with the exception of the few scattered lines already referred to,¹ which is beyond the capacity of Rowley, or suggests the authorship of Marlowe.

The text of 1604-11 is almost certainly that prepared for publication, and perhaps published, by Thomas Bushell in 1601, before Birde and Rowley's alterations had been made. The views of nearly all critics concerning this earlier text appear to have been coloured, perhaps unconsciously, by the well-known forgery in Henslowe's Diary, which professes to record a payment to Dekker in 1597 for additions to Faustus. It is morally certain that no such additions were made at that time, and there seems no reason to imagine that the 1604 text is anything else than Marlowe's original version of 1588/9, debased by a dozen years of theatrical manipulation and by careless printing. The blank verse is occasionally faulty, and it is very likely that some of the comic matter, like that omitted by the publisher of Tamburlaine (cf. p. 7, ll. 8 ff.), represents the improvisation of the company's clown. It is evident enough, for example, that the author of ll. 994-6 totally failed to understand Marlowe's conception of the effects of conjuring as Mephistopheles explains it in ll. 281-9. Yet with all its corruptions the text of 1604 is probably the most faithful representative extant of Marlowe's manuscript, and it is the principle of the present editor to follow that edition, relegating to an Appendix the probably spurious additions and revisions of 1616.

The edition of 1663 varies greatly from all the others, and has no authority. Several weak comic insertions appear, the most notable being in large measure plagiarized from the Jew of Malta.² This edition carries to a ridiculous degree the prudery of the version of 1616-31. Lines and phrases alluding to the deity, to eternal punishment, or to religious scepticism are ruthlessly expunged. It may well be that the text was prepared for acting by strolling companies during the Commonwealth period. We know that Mucedorus and other plays were so acted in defiance of Puritan regulations, and such an origin would account for the extraordinary efforts of the editor to remove all moral grounds of offence.

² Cf. pp. 198-202.

Source. The material out of which Marlowe constructed his tragedy of Doctor Faustus comes ultimately from the German Faustbuch, or 'Historia von D. Johann Fausten', published at Frankfort-on-the-Main by Johann Spies in 1587. The particular channel through which Marlowe became acquainted with the story has been the subject of much debate; it has been argued both that he knew the original German text and that his information was drawn from the verbal reports of actors newly returned from theatrical tours in Germany. It seems now certain, however, that Marlowe's only source was an English translation of the 1587 Faustbuch, published probably in 1588. It is true that no copy of so early an edition of the translation has so far been discovered, but the earliest extant issue—that of 1592—bears a very close resemblance to Marlowe's text, and is shown not to be the editio princeps by the words on the title page: 'Newly imprinted, and in convenient places imperfect matter amended.' Further proof of the same point has been collected by Dr. H. Logeman.¹

The English translation was used not only by Marlowe himself, but also by the elaborators of the 1616 text. The play, however, contains much for which the translation furnished no suggestion. Thus the good and evil angels are an addition of Marlowe, and only the barest hint for the mask of the seven deadly sins can be found in the prose history.

The Stationers' Register, under date of October 16, 1609, records the transfer of copyright in a work called 'Doctor Ffaustus the 2 parte' from Mistress Burby to Master Welby. Nothing appears to be known of the book in question. As a sequel to the play of Faustus is hardly imaginable, it is probable that the title is that of one of the numerous continuations of the Faustus-Wagner history.

Me. Now Faustus aske what thou wilt.
Fau. First will I question with thee about hell,
 Tel me, where is the place that men call hell?
Me. Vnder the heauens.
Fau. I, but where about? 550
Me. Within the bowels of these elements,
 Where we are tortur'd and remaine for euer.
 Hell hath no limits, nor is circumscrib'd
 In one selfe place, for where we are is hell,
 And where hell is, must we euer be : 555
 And to conclude, when all the world dissolues,
 And euery creature shalbe purified,
 All places shall be hell that is not heauen.
Fau. Come, I thinke hell's a fable.
Me. I, thinke so still, till experience change thy minde.
Fau. Why? thinkst thou then that Faustus shall bee damn'd? 561
Me. I, of necessitie, for here's the scrowle,
 Wherein thou hast giuen thy soule to Lucifer.
Fau. I, and body too, but what of that?
 Thinkst thou that Faustus is so fond, to imagine, 565
 That after this life there is any paine?
 Tush, these are trifles and meere olde wiues tales.
Me. But Faustus, I am an instance to proue the contrary,
 For I am damnd, and am now in hell. 569

Me. How, a wife? I prithee Faustus talke not of a wife.

Fau. Nay sweete Mephastophilis fetch me one, for I will haue one.

Me. Well thou wilt haue one, sit there till I come, Ile fetch thee a wife in the diuels name. (Exit.)

Enter (Mephastophilis) with a diuell drest like a woman, with fier workes.

Me: Tel (me) Faustus, how dost thou like thy wife?

Fau: A plague on her for a hote whore. 581

Me: Tut Faustus,

Marriage is but a ceremoniall toy,

If thou louest me, thinke (no) more of it.

Ile cull thee out the fairest curtezans, 585

And bring them eu'ry morning to thy bed.

She whome thine eie shall like, thy heart shal haue,

Be she as chaste as was Penelope,

As wise as Saba, or as beautiful

As was bright Lucifer before his fall. 590

Hold, take this booke, peruse it thorowly,

The iterating of these lines brings golde,

The framing of this circle on the ground,

Brings whirlwindes, tempests, thunder and lightning.

Pronounce this thrice deuoutly to thy selfe, 595

And men in armour shal appeare to thee,

Ready to execute what thou desirst.

Fau. What art thou ? the fourth.

Envy. I am Envy, begotten of a Chimney-sweeper, and an Oyster wife : I cannot reade, and therefore wish al bookes were burnt : I am leane with seeing others eate. O that there would come a famine through all the worlde, that all might die, and I liue alone, then thou shouldst see how fatt I would be : but must thou sit and I stand ? come downe with a vengeance. 751

Fau. Away enuious rascall : what art thou ? the fift.

Glut. Who I sir ? I am Gluttony : my parents are al dead, and the diuel a peny they haue left me, but a bare pention, and that is 30. meales a day, and tenne beauers, a small trifle to suffice nature. O I come of a royall parentage, my grandfather was a gammon of bacon, my grandmother a hogs head of Claret-wine : My godfathers were these, Peter Pickle-herring, and Martin Martlemas-biefe. O but my godmother she was a iolly gentlewoman, and welbeloued in euery good towne and Citie : her name was mistresse Margery March-beere : now Faustus, thou hast heard all my Progeny, wilt thou bid me to supper ? 763

Wag. Learned Faustus,
To know the secrets of Astronomy,
Grauen in the booke of Ioues hie firmament,
Did mount himsele to scale Olympus top, 795
Being seated in a chariot burning bright,
Drawne by the strength of yoky dragons neckes :
He now is gone to prooue Cosmography,
And as I guesse, wil first ariue at Rome,
To see the Pope, and manner of his court, 800
And take some part of holy Peters feast,
That to this day is highly solemnizd. Exit Wagner

Enter Faustus and Mephastophilus.

Fau. Hauing now, my good Mephastophilus,
Past with delight the stately towne of Trier,
Inuirond round with ayrie mountaine tops, 805
With walles of flint, and deepe intrenched lakes,
Not to be wonne by any conquering prince,
From Paris next coasting the Realme of France,
Wee sawe the riuer Maine fall into Rhine,
Whose bankes are set with groues of fruitful vines. 810
Then vp to Naples, rich Campania,
Whose buildings faire and gorgeouse to the eye,
The streetes straight forth, and pau'd with finest bricke,
Quarters the towne in foure equiuolence.

As I was sometime solitary set,
Within my Closet, sundry thoughts arose,
About the honour of mine auncestors,
Howe they had wonne by prowesse such exploits,
Gote such riches, subdued so many kingdomes, 1030
As we that do succeede, or they that shal
Hereafter possesse our throne, shal

The bright shining of whose glorious actes
Lightens the world with his reflecting beames,
As when I heare but motion made of him,
It grieues my soule I neuer saw the man : 1040
If therefore thou, by cunning of thine Art,
Canst raise this man from hollow vaults below,
Where lies intombde this famous Conquerour,
And bring with him his beauteous Paramour,
Both in their right shapes, gesture, and attire 1045
They vsde to weare during their time of life,
Thou shalt both satisfie my iust desire,

Kn. Do you heare maister Doctor ? you bring Alexander and his paramour before the emperour ? 1066

Fau. How then sir ?

Kn. Ifaith thats as true as Diana turnd me to a stag.

Fau. No sir, but when Acteon died, he left the hornes for you : Mephastophilis be gone. Exit Meph.

Kn. Nay, and you go to coniuring, Ile be gone. Exit Kn.

Fau. Ile meete with you anone for interrupting me so : heere they are, my gracious Lord. 1073

Enter Meph: with Alexander and his paramour.

Emp. Maister Doctor, I heard this Lady while she liu'd had a wart or moale in her necke, how shal I know whether it be so or no ?

Fau. Your highnes may boldly go and see. Exit Alex:

Emp. Sure these are no spirites, but the true substantiall bodies of those two deceased princes. 1079

Fau. Wilt please your highnes now to send for the knight that was so pleasant with me here of late ?

Emp. One of you call him foorth.

Enter the Knight with a paire of hornes on his head.

Emp. How now sir Knight ? why I had thought thou hadst beene a batcheler, but now I see thou hast a wife, that not only giues thee hornes, but makes thee weare them : feele on thy head. 1086

Kn. Thou damned wretch, and execrable dogge, Bred in the concaue of some monstrous rocke : How darst thou thus abuse a Gentleman ?

Vilaine I say, vndo what thou hast done. 1090

Fau. O not so fast sir, theres no haste : but good, are you remembered how you crossed me in my conference with the emperour ? I thinke I haue met with you for it.

Emp: Good Maister Doctor, at my intreaty release him,
he hath done penance sufficient. 1095

Fau: My Gracious Lord, not so much for the iniury hee offred me heere in your presence, as to delight you with some mirth, hath Faustus worthily requited this iniurious knight, which being all I desire, I am content to release him of his hornes : and sir knight, hereafter speake well of Scholars : Mephastophilis, transforme him strait. Now my good Lord hauing done my duety, I humbly take my leau. 1103

Emp: Farewel maister Doctor, yet ere you goe,
Expect from me a bounteous reward. Exit Emperour.

Fau: Now Mephastophilis, the restlesse course
That time doth runne with calme and silent foote,
Shortning my dayes and thred of vitall life,
Calls for the payment of my latest yeares,
Therefore sweet Mephastophilis, let vs 1110
Make haste to Wertemberge.

Me: What, wil you goe on horse backe, or on foote?

Fau: Nay, til I am past this faire and pleasant greene, ile walke on foote.

Enter a Horse-courser

Hors: I haue beene al this day seeking one maister Fustian : masse, see where he is. God saue you maister doctor. 1117

Fau: What horse-courser, you are wel met.

Hors: Do you heare sir? I haue brought you forty dollers for your horse. 1120

Fau: I cannot sel him so : if thou likst him for fifty,
take him.

No, will you not wake ? Ile make you wake ere I goe.

Pull him by the legge, and pull it away.

Alas, I am vndone, what shall I do ?

Fau. O my legge, my legge, helpe Mephastophilis, call the Officers, my legge, my legge. 1181

Me. Come villaine to the Constable.

Hors. O Lord sir, let me goe, and Ile giue you fortie dollers more.

Me. Where be they ? 1185

Hors. I haue none about me, come to my Oastrie, and Ile giue them you.

Me. Be gone quickly. Horsecourser runnes away.

Fau. The Duke of Vanholt ! an honourable gentleman, to whom I must be no niggard of my cunning, come Mephastophilis, let's away to him. Exeunt.

Enter to them the Duke, and the Dutches, the Duke speakes.

Du. Beleeue me maister Doctor, this merriment hath much pleased me. 1200

Fau. My gracious Lord, I am glad it contents you so wel : but it may be Madame, you take no delight in this. I haue heard that great bellied women do long for some dainties or other, what is it Madame ? tell me, and you shal haue it. 1205

Dutch. Thankes, good maister doctor,

And for I see your curteous intent to pleasure me, I will not hide from you the thing my heart desires, and were it nowe summer, as it is Ianuary, and the dead time of the winter, I would desire no better meate then a dish of ripe grapes. 1211

Fau. Alas Madame, thats nothing, Mephastophilis, be gone. Exit Meph.

Were it a greater thing then this, so it would content you, you should haue it. 1215

Enter Mephasto: with the grapes.

Here they be madam, wilt please you taste on them ?

Du. Beleeue me master Doctor, this makes me wonder aboute the rest, that being in the dead time of winter, and in the month of Ianuary, how you shuld come by these grapes.

Fau. If it like your grace, the yeere is diuided into twoo circles ouer the whole worlde, that when it is heere winter with vs, in the contrary circle it is summer with them, as

Du. Come Madame, let vs in, where you must wel reward this learned man for the great kindnes he hath shewed to you.

Dut. And so I wil my Lord, and whilst I liue, Rest beholding for this curtesie.

Fau. I humbly thanke your Grace. 1235

Du. Come, maister Doctor follow vs, and receiue your reward. Exeunt.

Enter Wagner solus.

Wag. I thinke my maister meanes to die shortly, For he hath giuen to me al his goodes, And yet me thinkes, if that death were neere, 1240 He would not banquet, and carowse, and swill Amongst the Students, as euen now he doth, Who are at supper with such belly-cheere, As Wagner nere beheld in all his life. See where they come : belike the feast is ended. (Exit.)

Enter Faustus with two or three Schollers (and Mephistophilis).

1. Sch. Maister Doctor Faustus, since our conference about faire Ladies, which was the beutifulst in all the world, we haue determined with our selues, that Helen of Greece was the admirablest Lady that euer liued : therefore master Doctor, if you wil do vs that fauor, as to let vs see that peerelesse Dame of Greece, whome al the world admires for maiesty, wee should thinke our selues much beholding vnto you. 1253

Fau. Gentlemen,
 For that I know your friendship is vnained,
 And Faustus custome is not to denie
 The iust requests of those that wish him well,
 You shall behold that pearelesse dame of Greece,
 No otherwaies for pompe and maiestie,
 Then when sir Paris crost the seas with her, 1260
 And brought the spoiles to rich Dardania.
 Be silent then, for danger is in words.

Musicke sounds, and Helen passeth ouer the Stage.

2. Sch. Too simple is my wit to tell her praise,
 Whom all the world admires for maiestie.
 3. Sch. No maruel tho the angry Greekes pursude 1265
 With tenne yeares warre the rape of such a queene,
 Whose heauenly beauty passeth all compare.
 1. Since we haue seene the pride of natures workes,
 And onely Paragon of excellence,

Enter an old man.

Let vs depart, and for this glorious deed 1270
 Happy and blest be Faustus euermore.
Fau. Gentlemen farwel, the same I wish to you.

Exeunt Schollers.

Old. Ah Doctor Faustus, that I might preuaile,
 To guide thy steps vnto the way of life,
 By which sweete path thou maist attaine the gole 1275
 That shall conduct thee to celestial rest.

 The stench whereof corrupts the inward soule 1280
 With such flagitious crimes of hainous sinnes,
 As no commiseration may expel,
 But mercie Faustus of thy Sauour sweete,
 Whose blood alone must wash away thy guilt.

Fau. Where art thou Faustus? wretch what hast thou done? 1285

Damnd art thou Faustus, damnd, dispaire and die.
 Hell calls for right, and with a roaring voyce
 Sayes, Faustus come, thine houre is come,
 And Faustus will come to do thee right.

Mepha. giues him a dagger.

Old. Ah stay good Faustus, stay thy desperate steps,
 I see an Angell houters ore thy head, 1291
 And with a violl full of precious grace,
 Offers to powre the same into thy soule,
 Then call for mercie and auoyd dispaire.

Fau. Ah my sweete friend, I feele 1295

2. Sch. Yet Faustus, looke vp to heauen, remember gods mercies are infinite. 1370

Fau. But Faustus offence can nere be pardoned. The Serpent that tempted Eue may be sau'd, but not Faustus : Ah Gentlemen, heare me with patience, and tremble not at my speeches. Though my heart pants and quiuers to remember that I haue beene a student here these thirty yeeres, O would I had neuer seene Wertenberge, neuer read booke : and what wonders I haue done, al Germany can witnes, yea all the world, for which Faustus hath lost both Germany, and the world, yea heauen it selfe, heauen the seate of God, the throne of the blessed, the kingdome of ioy, and must remaine in hel for euer, hel, ah hel for euer, sweete friends, what shall become of Faustus, being in hel for euer ? 1383

3. Sch. Yet Faustus call on God.

Fau. On God whome Faustus hath abiurde, on God, whome Faustus hath blasphemed : ah my God, I would weepe, but the diuel drawes in my teares. Gush foorth bloud, insteade of teares, yea life and soule. Oh he stayes my tong, I would lift vp my hands, but see, they hold them, they hold them. 1390

All. Who Faustus ?

Fau. Lucifer and Mephastophilis.

Ah Gentlemen ! I gaue them my soule for my cunning.

All. God forbid. 1394

Fau. God forbade it indeede, but Faustus hath done it : for vaine pleasure of 24. yeares hath Faustus lost eternall ioy and felicitie. I writ them a bill with mine owne bloud, the date is expired, the time wil come, and he wil fetch mee.

1. Schol. Why did not Faustus tel vs of this before, that Diuines might haue prayed for thee ? 1401

Faustus. Talke not of me, but saue your selues, and depart.

3. Sch. God wil strengthen me, I wil stay with Faustus.

1. Sch. Tempt not God, sweete friend, but let vs into the next roome, and there pray for him. 1411

Fau. I, pray for me, pray for me, and what noyse soeuer yee heare, come not vnto me, for nothing can rescue me.

2. Sch. Pray thou, and we wil pray that God may haue mercy vpon thee. 1415

Fau. Gentlemen farewel, if I liue til morning, Ile visite you : if not, Faustus is gone to hel.

All. Faustus, farewel.

Exeunt Sch.

The clocke strikes eleauen.

Fau. Ah Faustus,

Now hast thou but one bare hower to liue, 1420

And then thou must be damnd perpetually :

Stand stil you euer moouing spheres of heauen,

That time may cease, and midnight neuer come :

Faire Natures eie, rise, rise againe, and make

Perpetuall day, or let this houre be but 1425

A yeere, a moneth, a weeke, a naturall day,

That Faustus may repent, and saue his soule,

O lente, lente currite noctis equi :

The starres mooue stil, time runs, the clocke wil strike,

The diuel wil come, and Faustus must be damnd. 1430

O Ile leape vp to my God : who pulles me downe ?

See see where Christs blood streames in the firmament.

One drop would saue my soule, halfe a drop, ah my Christ.

APPENDIX TO DR. FAUSTUS

Instead of ll. 351-432, the quartos of 1616-63 have the following:

Enter Wagner and the Clowne.

- Wag.* Come hither sirra boy. 351
Clo. Boy? O disgrace to my person: Zounds boy in your face, you haue seene many boyes with beards, I am sure.
Wag. Sirra, hast thou no commings in?
Clo. Yes, and goings out too, you may see sir. 355
Wag. Alas poore slaue, see how pouerty iests in his nakednesse, I know the Villaines out of seruice, and so hungry, that I know he would giue his soule to the deuill for a shoulder of Mutton, tho it were bloud raw.
Clo. Not so neither; I had need to haue it well roasted, and good sauce to it, if I pay so deere, I can tell you. 361
Wag. Sirra, wilt thou be my man and waite on me? and I will make thee go, like Qui mihi discipulus.
Clo. What, in Verse?
Wag. No slaue, in beaten silke, and staues-aker. 365
Clo. Staues-aker? that's good to kill Vermine: then, belike if I serue you, I shall be lousy.
Wag. Why so thou shalt be, whether thou dost it or no: for sirra, if thou dost not presently bind thy selfe to me for seuen yeares, I'lle turne all the lice about thee into Familiars, and make them tare thee in peeces. 371
Clo. Nay sir, you may saue your selfe a labour, for they are as familiar with me, as if they payd for their meate and drinke, I can tell you.
Wag. Well sirra, leaue your iesting, and take these Guilders. (Gives money.)
Clo. Yes marry sir, and I thanke you to. 376
Wag. So, now thou art to bee at an howres warning, whensoever, and wheresoeuer the deuill shall fetch thee.
Clo. Here, take your Guilders, I'lle none of 'em.
Wag. Not I, thou art prest, prepare thy selfe, for I will presently raise vp two deuils to carry thee away: Banio, Belcher.

I am not afraid of a deuill. 384

Enter 2 deuils.

Wag. How now sir, will you serue me now ?

Clow. I good Wagner, take away the deuill then.

Wag. Spirits away ; now sirra follow me.

Clow. I will sir ; but hearke you Maister, will you teach me this coniuring Occupation ?

Wag. I sirra, I'le teach thee to turne thy selfe to a Dog, or a Cat, or a Mouse, or a Rat, or any thing. 391

Clow. A Dog, or a Cat, or a Mouse, or a Rat ? O braue Wagner.

Wag. Villaine, call me Maister Wagner, and see that you walke attentiuely, and let your right eye be alwaies Diametrally fixt vpon my left heele, that thou maist, Quasi vestigias nostras insistere. 397

Clow. Well sir, I warrant you. Exeunt.

After line 791, Qq 1616-63 insert the following scene not found in Qq 1604-11 :

Enter the Clowne.

(Clown.) What Dick, looke to the horses there till I come againe. I haue gotten one of Doctor Faustus coniuring bookes, and now we'le haue such knauery, as't passes.

Enter Dick.

Dick. What Robin, you must come away & walk the horses. 796

Rob. I walke the horses ? I scorn't 'faith, I haue other matters in hand, let the horses walk themselues and they will.

Dick. 'Snayles, what hast thou got there, a book ? why thou canst not tell ne're a word on't. 802

Rob. That thou shalt see presently : keep out of the circle, I say, least I send you into the Ostry with a vengeance.

Dick. That's like 'faith : you had best leaue your foolery, for an my Maister come, he'le coniure you 'faith. 806

Rob. My Maister coniure me ? I'le tell thee what, an my Maister come here, I'le clap as faire a paire of hornes on's head as e're thou sawest in thy life.

Rob. I, there be of vs here, that haue waded as deepe into matters, as other men, if they were disposed to talke.

Dick. A plague take you, I thought you did not sneake vp and downe after her for nothing. But I prethee tell me, in good sadnesse Robin, is that a coniuring booke? 816

Rob. Do but speake what thou't haue me to do, and I'll do't: If thou't dance naked, put off thy cloathes, and I'll coniuere thee about presently: Or if thou't go but to the Tauerne with me, I'll giue thee white wine, red wine, claret wine Sacke, Muscadine, Malmesey and Whippincrust, hold belly hold, and wee'll not pay one peny for it. 822

Dick. O braue, prethee let's to it presently, for I am as dry as a dog.

Rob. Come then let's away.

Exeunt.

Immediately after the last line above (825), Qq 1616-63 print the following expanded version of the Chorus's (or Wagner's) speech. For the briefer form in which the speech occurs in Qq 1604-11 and, by mistake, at an earlier point in Qq 1616-63, cf. p. 172.

Enter the Chorus.

(Chorus.) Learned Faustus to find the secrets of Astronomy,
Grauen in the booke of Ioues high firmament, 827
Did mount him vp to scale Olimpus top.

Euen to the height of Primum Mobile:

And whirling round with this circumference, 835
Within the concaue compasse of the Pole,

From East to West his Dragons swiftly glide,
And in eight daies did bring him home againe.

Not long he stayed within his quiet house,
To rest his bones after his weary toyle, 840

But new exploits do hale him out agen,
And mounted then vpon a Dragons backe,

That with his wings did part the subtle aire:
He now is gone to proue Cosmography,

That measures costs, and kingdomes of the earth: 845

Instead of ll. 803-904, the edition of 1663 inserts the following new scene, partly plagiarized from the Jew of Malta :

ACT. III.

Enter Faustus and Mephostophilis.

Faust. Now,
Mephostophilis
Having past with delight the famous 805
Town of Tyre, environ'd round with Aiery
Mountain tops: we came to Rome, where There is a Bridge cal'd Pontio Angelo, upon which There is erected as many Cannons as there is
Days in a compleat year, besides the Gates 810
And high Piramedes, which Julius Cæsar
Brought from Affrica.
Meph. Having now Faustus past with delight
The famous City of Rome, and all the Monuments of Antiquity: our next shall be 815
To see the Sullians Court, and what Delight great Babylon affords. This day
The Soldan with his Bashawes holds a
Solemne Feast for his late Victory,
Obtain'd against the Christians: wee'l be 820
His guests, and though unbidden, bring no
Stooles with us: come stand by,
And thou shalt (see) the(m) come immediately.
Faust. Thou knowst my good Mephostophilis,
Within eight dayes we view'd the face of 825
Heaven, Earth, and Hell, so high our dragons
Sord into the skie, that looking downwards,
The Earth appear'd to me in quantity
No bigger then my hand.
Then in this shew let me an actor be, 830
That the proud Turk may Faustus cunning see.
Meph. Faustus I will, but first stay
And view their triumphs as they passe this way,
And then devise what mischief best contents
Thy mind: be cunning in thy art to crosse 835
Their mirth, or dash the pride of their Solemnity, to clap huge horns upon his
Bashawes head, or any villany thou canst
Devise, and I'll perform it Faustus. Hark they come,
This day shall make thee admir'd in Babylon. 840
Faust. One thing more my good Mephostophilis.
Let me intreat of thee that Faustus may Delight his mind, and through their follies cause

Some mirth: so charm me, I may appear
Invisible to all are here, and doe
What ere I please, unseen of any. 845

Meph. Faustus I will kneel down,
Whilst on thy head I lay my hand,
And charm thee with this Magick wand.
Take this girdle, thou shalt appear 850
Invisible to all are here;
The Planets seven, and the gloomy Air,
Hell, and the furies forked haer,
Pluto's blew fire, and Heccats tree,
With Magick charmes so compasse thee, 855
That no eye may thy body see.

Now Faustus for all their tricks, do what Thou wilt, thou shalt not be deceiv'd of any.

Faust. Thanks Mephostophilis.

Now Bashawes take heed 860
Lest Faustus make your shaven pates to bleed.

Enter Salomaine and two Bashawes.

Solo. Welcome Mephostophilis from the siege of Malta,
And though we use no great familiarity
Towards our Vassals, but with severe looks
Maintain the reverence due to the Ottoman 865
Family, and so strike terrour in our subjects
Hearts: yet since the fates have so much
Favour'd us, as we have gain'd that proud
Rebellious town, that refus'd payment of our Yearly tribute: we will recreate your wearied 870
Limbs: and pass the time with you my Lords in Mirth, and to increase our joyes the more, Caleph from
You, let us here the story of Malta's siege.

Ca. Dread Sovereigne,

We no sooner there arrived, but of the 875
Governour, in your most Royal name, we Demanded the ten months tribute left
Vnpaid: they desir'd time to make collection
Amongst the inhabitants of the Malta for it.
A moneth we granted, in which time 880
They seis'd on half the Estates of all
The Jews amongst them;
The time for truce allotted, scarce expir'd,
Arriv'd Martine Belbosco out of Spaine, who
With great promises of his Masters aid, 885
Incourag'd those of Malta not to render
Their promis'd tribute, but defend themselves:
They follow'd his advice, and made him general,
Who with those Malta Knights and lusty Seamen,
So valiantly the Sea and Coast defended, 890
That all our force in vain had been employ'd,
Had not an unexpected chance reliev'd us.

Mustapha may it please you finish the story,
For I was sent upon another design,
You know it better.

Mus. One morning as our scouts reliev'd our watch,
Hard by the City walls they found a body
Senseless, and speechless, yet gave some sign
Of life remaining in it: after some time
Spent in recovering to himself, he did
Confesse he was a Jew o'th town, who
To revenge some wrongs done him by
The Christians, would shew us how to Enter to the town, and in short time
Make us masters of it: he therefore led our Scouts through a vault, and rose with them in the Middle of the town, open'd the gates for us to Enter in, and by that means the place
Became our own.

Solo. Most grateful news.

Calph. Go call the Emperesse.

In the mean time prepare a banquet,
She shall partake with us in our joy and mirth,
It is too solitary to be alwaies pind up
In the Saralious solentary lodgings:
The greatest Princes are of humane mold,
No bow so good, but if still bent
Will break.—Welcome my dearest,
Whose soft embraces my wearied limbs refresh,
The pleasures we have receiv'd through this
The Christians overthrow, invites us sweet
To make a day of joy and triumph, which Caus'd us, dearest, desire thy company.

Emp. Great Solomaine,
The glory of the Ottomans,
My dear and honoured Lord,
Thus low your handmaid returns your Highnesse thanks, that you wo'd be pleas'd to Admit your humble Vassal to partake
Of your Joies, and the cause on't.
Mahomet preserve your Majesty,
And grant you may obtain
Many such victories.

Faus. An excellent beautie this Mephosphillis,
I must needs have a touch at her lips.

Mep. Do Faustus, enjoy thy wish, glut thy selfe
With pleasure whilst time and occasion permits.

Emp. Mahomet defend me.
What's that, that wisht to touch me?

Faust. Only a friend of yours inamour'd with Your beautie Ladie.

906 Scouts T.B.: Stote 1663 917 still] steel 1663 920 this

Solo. You seem discontented, or else amaz'd
At some strange accident: what i'st
Offends you sweet? come drink of this Cordial
To revive thee.

Faust. Though I must confess I have no great need 945
Of cordial waters, yet i'll drink it, because
It came from an Empresses hand:
Here Solomaine, here's to thee, and all thy mens Confusion.

Solo. Hell, Furies, traytors look about, 950
See what tis that thus disturbs our mirth, and tell me
Dogs, or by our holy Prophets tomb I swear
Ye all shall die the miserablest death, that Ever witty cruelty invented: how my soul is 955
Tortur'd with these villianous charms: some Musick there to moderate these passions in
My breast: ha! do devils haunt my Palace,
Or are they come to ccelebrate such meetings
As the Christians use? 960
I'll find the cause of all these strange events,
And by our counter charmes cross their intents.
Call our Majecian forth, and let him bring
Such necessaries as his Art requires, to force
An answer from this infernal fiend, 965
That does disturb our mirth.

Meph. Faustus stand by, and give me leave to act
My part: we spirits take no pleasure in wine,
Or women, all our delights to hurt and torture
Men, which i'll perform on his majecian. 970
Vnless he serve a power above me, as we
Have order in our confusion, and different degrees
Amongst us, I'll carry him away out of His circle, and throw him down into some Stinking puddle. 975

Faust. Why, but tell me Mephostophilis, dar'st thou
Attempt to venter on a man in his circle?

Meph. Because thou art ours and sold to Lucifer, and I
Have promis'd to serve thee faithfully, I'll not Conceal the secrets of our state from thee, thou darling 980
Of great Lucifer: know all those rights and Spells which mortals use to make us rise,
Appear visible, answer to their demands,
Fullfill their wills, and execute their malice on
Their enemies, are very fables, forg'd at first 985
In hell, and thrust on credulous mortals
To deceive 'm.

Nor is there such a power in signes and words, to Make us to obey, that rule the elements, and in a Moment, if we had but leave, would turn the 990
World to a confus'd nothing. 'Tis true we seem

To come constrain'd, and by the power of their Charms: but are more willing to be imploy'd to Hurt and kill mankind, then they are willing to engage Vs in their service, and wheresoe'r we find one bent to our Familiarity, we fly then willingly to catch him. 996

Faust. Thanks good Mephostophilis for this discovering
 Of your misery. Enter Conjurer.

Solo. Majecian shew thy skill, and by thy art inquire
 What it is that thus disturbs our mirth, and then 1000
 Command it forthwith to depart.

Conju. I obey your Royal pleasure.

Within my circle here I stand,
 And in my hand, this silver wand
 Arm'd with the potent hell gods names 1005
 At which fiends tremble midst the flames.
 By fat of infants newly kill'd,
 And blood by cruel mothers spill'd,
 By Pluto's love to Proserpine,
 Which made his Hell-hood sigh and whine, 1010
 By Minos and by Æacus,
 By Radament and Serberus,
 I do conjure you hellish spirits,
 That the infernal vaul(t)es inherits;
 Send from your sooty palace hither, 1015
 One of your train to tell me whether
 He that disturbs the Emperours feast,
 Be a Devil, or a Ghost from hell releast.

Meph. A devil.

Conju. Thy name? who sent for thee? why dost not
 Shew thy self? scornst thou my charmes, 1021
 Which heretofore made thee fly as swift
 As lightning to obey my hest? i'le torture thee
 For this contempt of me, and sink thee to the Bottom of the Seas, or bind thee in the deserts of 1025
Arrabia a thousand years to punish thy disobedience.

Meph. Will you so audacious mortal? nay now you move
 Me, and because your fears have made you stone cold,
 I'le warm you for your threatening me with water,
 And for fear you should get a Feavour by this 1030
 Vnwonted fire, in the next pond you come at,
 I quench your heat.

Conju. Help, help, help.

Exit.

Sollo. Come my dearest, thy life is worth all ours. Exeunt.

For ll. 854-904 in Qq 1604-11, the editions of 1616-31 substitute the following greatly expanded passage:

The which, in state and high solemnity,
 This day is held through Rome and Italy, 855

1009 Plato's 1663 1025 bind thee T.B.: bind them 1663
 854 in state and 1619-31: this day with 1616

In honour of the Popes triumphant victory.

Faust. Sweete Mephosto(philis,) thou pleasest me:
Whilst I am here on earth, let me be cloyd
With all things that delight the heart of man.
My foure and twenty yeares of liberty 860
I'll spend in pleasure and in daliance,
That Faustus name, whilst this bright frame doth stand,
May be admired through the furthest Land.

Meph. 'Tis well said Faustus, come then stand by me
And thou shalt see them come immediately. 865

Faust. Nay stay my gentle Mephostophilis,
And grant me my request, and then I go.
Thou know'st within the compasse of eight daies,
We view'd the face of heauen, of earth and hell.
So high our Dragons soar'd into the aire, 870
That looking downe the earth appear'd to me,
No bigger then my hand in quantity.
There did we view the Kingdomes of the world,
And what might please mine eye, I there beheld.
Then in this shew let me an Actor be, 875
That this proud Pope may Faustus cunning see.

Meph. Let it be so my Faustus, but first stay,
And view their triumphs, as they passe this way.
And then deuise what best contents thy minde,
By cunning in thine Art to crosse the Pope, 880
Or dash the pride of this solemnity;
To make his Monkes and Abbots stand like Apes,
And point like Antiques at his triple Crowne:
To beate the beades about the Friers Pates,
Or clap huge hornes, vpon the Cardinals heads: 885
Or any villany thou canst deuise,
And I'll performe it Faustus: heark they come:
This day shall make thee be admir'd in Rome.

Enter the Cardinals and Bishops, some bearing Crosiers, some the Pillars, Monkes and Friers, singing their Procession: Then the Pope, and Raymond King of Hungary, with Bruno led in chaines.

Pope. Cast downe our Foot-stoole.

Ray. Saxon Bruno stoope, 890
Whilst on thy backe his hollinesse ascends
Saint Peters Chaire and State Pontificall.

Bru. Proud Lucifer, that State belongs to me:
But thus I fall to Peter, not to thee.

A Flourish while he ascends.

Thus, as the Gods creepe on with feete of wool,
 Long ere with Iron hands they punish men, 900
 So shall our sleeping vengeance now arise,
 And smite with death thy hated enterprise.

Lord Cardinals of France and Padua,
 Go forth-with to our holy Consistory,
 And read amongst the Statutes Decretall, 905
 What by the holy Councell held at Trent,
 The sacred Sinod hath decreed for him,
 That doth assume the Papall gouernment,
 Without election, and a true consent :
 Away and bring vs word with speed. 910

1 Card. We go my Lord. Exeunt Cardinals.
Pope. Lord Raymond.

Faust. Go hast thee gentle Mephostophilis,
 Follow the Cardinals to the Consistory ;
 And as they turne their superstitious Bookes, 915
 Strike them with sloth, and drowsy idlenesse ;
 And make them sleepe so sound, that in their shapes,
 Thy selfe and I, may parly with this Pope :
 This proud confronter of the Emperour,
 And in despite of all his Holinesse 920
 Restore this Bruno to his liberty,
 And beare him to the States of Germany.

Meph. Faustus, I goe.

Faust. Dispatch it soone,
 The Pope shall curse that Faustus came to Rome. 925
Exit Faustus and Meph.

Bruno. Pope Adrian let me haue some right of Law,
 I was elected by the Emperour.

Pope. We will depose the Emperour for that deed,
 And curse the people that submit to him ;
 Both he and thou shalt stand excommunicate, 930
 And interdict from Churches priuiledge,
 And all society of holy men :
 He growes to prowd in his authority,
 Lifting his loftie head aboue the clouds,
 And like a Steeple ouer-peeres the Church. 935
 But wee'le pul downe his haughty insolence :
 And as Pope Alexander our Progenitour,
 Trode on the neck of Germane Fredericke,
 Adding this golden sentence to our praise ;

And walke vpon the dreadfull Adders backe,
Treading the Lyon, and the Dragon downe,
And fearelesse spurne the killing Basiliske :
So will we quell that haughty Schismatique ;
And by authority Apostolicall
Depose him from his Regall Gouernment. 945

Bru. Pope Iulius swore to Princely Sigismond,
For him, and the succeeding Popes of Rome,
To hold the Emperours their lawfull Lords.

Pope. Pope Iulius did abuse the Churches Rites, 950
And therefore none of his Decrees can stand.

Is not all power on earth bestowed on vs ?
And therefore tho we would we cannot erre.
Behold this Siluer Belt whereto is fixt
Seuen golden seales fast sealed with seuen seales, 955
In token of our seuen-fold power from heauen,
To binde or loose, lock fast, condemne, or iudge,
Resigne, or seale, or what so pleaseth vs.
Then he and thou, and all the world shall stoope,
Or be assured of our dreadfull curse, 960
To light as heauy as the paines of hell.

Enter Faustus and Mephosto. like the Cardinals.

Meph. Now tell me Faustus, are we not fitted well ?

Faust. Yes Mephosto. and two such Cardinals
Ne're seru'd a holy Pope, as we shall do.
But whilst they sleepe within the Consistory, 965
Let vs salute his reuerend Father-hood.

Ray. Behold my Lord, the Cardinals are return'd.

Pope. Welcome graue Fathers, answere presently,
What haue our holy Councell there decreed,
Concerning Bruno and the Emperour, 970
In quittance of their late conspiracie
Against our State, and Papall dignitie ?

Faust. Most sacred Patron of the Church of Rome,
By full consent of all the Synod
Of Priests and Prelates, it is thus decreed : 975
That Bruno, and the Germane Emperour
Be held as Lollords, and bold Schismatiques,
And proud disturbers of the Churches peace.
And if that Bruno by his owne assent,
Without inforcement of the German Peeres, 980
Did seeke to weare the triple Dyadem,
And by your death to clime S. Peters Chaire,
The Statutes Decretall haue thus decreed,
He shall be streight condemn'd of heresie,
And on a pile of Fagots burnt to death. 985

Pope. It is enough : here, take him to your charge.
 And beare him streight to Ponto Angelo,
 And in the strongest Tower inclose him fast.
 To morrow, sitting in our Consistory,
 With all our Colledge of graue Cardinals, 990
 We will determine of his life or death.
 Here, take his triple Crowne along with you,
 And leaue it in the Churches treasury.
 Make haste againe, my good Lord Cardinalls,
 And take our blessing Apostolicall. 995

Meph. So, so, was neuer Diuell thus blest before.

Faust. Away sweet Mephosto, be gone,
 The Cardinals will be plagu'd for this anon.

Ex. Fa. & Meph. (with Bruno.)

Pope. Go presently, and bring a banquet forth,
 That we may solemnize S. Peters feast, 1000
 And with Lord Raymond, King of Hungary,
 Drinke to our late and happy victory. Exeunt.

A Sent while the Banquet is brought in ; and then Enter Faustus and Mephastophilis in their owne shapes.

Meph. Now Faustus, come prepare thy selfe for mirth,
 The sleepey Cardinals are hard at hand,
 To censure Bruno, that is posted hence, 1005
 And on a proud pac'd Steed, as swift as thought,
 Flies ore the Alpes to fruitfull Germany,
 There to salute the wofull Emperour.

Faust. The Pope will curse them for their sloth to day,
 That slept both Bruno and his crowne away, 1010
 But now, that Faustus may delight his minde,
 And by their folly make some merriment,
 Sweet Mephastophilis, so charme me here,
 That I may walke inuisible to all,
 And doe what ere I please, vnseene of any. 1015

Meph. Faustus thou shalt, then kneele downe presently,
 Whilst on thy head I lay my hand,
 And charme thee with this Magicke wand,
 First weare this girdle, then appeare
 Inuisible to all ere here : 1020
 The Planets seuen, the gloomy aire,
 Hell and the Furies forked haire,
 Pluto's blew fire, and Hecat's tree
 With Magicke spels so compasse thee,
 That no eye may thy body see. 1025

So Faustus, now for all their holinesse,
 Do what thou wilt, thou shalt not be discern'd.

Pope. Welcome Lord Cardinals: come sit downe.
Lord Raymond, take your seate, Friers attend,
And see that all things be in readinesse,
As best becomes this solemne festiuall.

1. Card. First, may it please your sacred Holinesse, 1035
To view the sentence of the reuerend Synod,
Concerning Bruno and the Emperour.

Pope. What needs this question? Did I not tell you,
To morrow we would sit i'th Consistory,
And there determine of his punishment? 1040
You brought vs word euen now, it was decreed,
That Bruno and the cursed Emperour
Were by the holy Councell both condemn'd
For lothed Lollords, and base Schismatiques:
Then wherefore would you haue me view that booke? 1045

1. Card. Your Grace mistakes, you gaue vs no such charge.

Ray. Deny it not, we all are witnesses
That Bruno here was late deliuered you,
With his rich triple crowne to be reseru'd,
And put into the Churches treasury. 1050

Amb. Card. By holy Paul we saw them not.

Pope. By Peter you shall dye,
Vnlesse you bring them forth immediatly:
Hale them to prison, lade their limbes with gyues:
False Prelates, for this hatefull treachery, 1055
Curst be your soules to hellish misery.

(Exeunt Attendants with the two Cardinals.)

Faust. So, they are safe: now Faustus to the feast,
The Pope had neuer such a frolicke guest.

Pope. Lord Archbishop of Reames, sit downe with vs.

Bish. I thanke your Holinesse. 1060

Faust. Fall to, the Diuell choke you an you spare.

Pope. Who's that spoke? Friers looke about,
Lord Raymond pray fall too, I am beholding
To the Bishop of Millaine, for this so rare a present.

Faust. I thanke you sir. (Snatches the dish.)

Pope. How now? who snatch't the meat from me! 1066

Pope. Lord Raymond, I drink vnto your grace.

Faust. I pledge your grace. (Snatches the cup.)

Pope. My wine gone too ? yee Lubbers look about 1076
And find the man that doth this villany,
Or by our sanctitude you all shall die.

I pray my Lords haue patience at this Troublesome banquet. 1080

Bish. Please it your holinesse, I thinke it be some Ghost crept out of Purgatory, and now is come vnto your holinesse for his pardon.

Pope. It may be so :

Go then command our Priests to sing a Dirge, 1085
To lay the fury of this same troublesome ghost.

(Exit an Attendant.—The Pope crosses himself.)

Faust. How now ?

Must euery bit be spiced with a Crosse ?

Nay then take that. (Strikes the Pope.)

Pope. O I am slaine, help me my Lords : 1090

O come and help to beare my body hence :

Good Fredericke see the roomes be voyded straight,
His Maiesty is comming to the Hall; 1010
Go backe, and see the State in readinesse.

Fre. But where is Bruno our elected Pope,
That on a furies back came post from Rome,
Will not his grace consort the Emperour? 1014

Mart. O yes, and with him comes the Germane Coniurer,
The learned Faustus, fame of Wittenberge,
The wonder of the world for Magick Art;
And he intends to shew great Carolus,
The race of all his stout progenitors;
And bring in presence of his Maiesty, 1020
The royall shapes and warlike semblances
Of Alexander and his beauteous Paramour.

Fre. Where is Benuolio?

Mart. Fast a sleepe I warrant you,
He took his rouse with stopes of Rhennish wine, 1025
So kindly yesternight to Bruno's health,
That all this day the sluggard keepes his bed.

Fre. See, see his window's ope, we'll call to him.

Mart. What hoe, Benuolio.

Enter Benuolio aboue at a window, in his nightcap: buttoning.

Benu. What a deuill ayle you two? 1030

For Faustus at the Court is late arriu'd,
And at his heeles a thousand furies waite,
To accomplish what soeuer the Doctor please.

Benu. What of this? 1035

Mart. Come leaue thy chamber first, and thou shalt see
This Coniurer performe such rare exploits,
Before the Pope and royall Emperour,
As neuer yet was seene in Germany.

Benu. Has not the Pope enough of coniuring yet? 1040
He was vpon the deuils backe late enough;
And if he be so farre in loue with him,
I would he would post with him to Rome againe.

Fre. Speake, wilt thou come and see this sport?

say, if a man be drunke ouer night, the Diuell cannot hurt him in the morning: if that bee true, I haue a charme in

A Senit. Charles the Germane Emperour, Bruno, Saxony, Faustus, Mephosophilis, Fredericke, Martino, and Attendants.

Emp. Wonder of men, renown'd Magitian,
Thrice learned Faustus, welcome to our Court.
This deed of thine, in setting Bruno free
From his and our professed enemy,
Shall adde more excellence vnto thine Art, 1060
Then if by powerfull Necromantick spels,
Thou couldst command the worlds obedience:
For euer be belou'd of Carolus.

And if this Bruno thou hast late redeem'd,
In peace possesse the triple Diadem, 1065
And sit in Peters Chaire, despite of chance,
Thou shalt be famous through all Italy,
And honour'd of the Germane Emperour.

Faust. These gracious words, most royall Carolus,
Shall make poore Faustus to his vtmost power, 1070
Both loue and serue the Germane Emperour,
And lay his life at holy Bruno's feet.
For prooffe whereof, if so your Grace be pleas'd,
The Doctor stands prepar'd, by power of Art,
To cast his Magicke charmes, that shall pierce through 1075
The Ebon gates of euer-burning hell,
And hale the stubborne Furies from their caues,
To compasse whatsoere your grace commands.

Ben. Bloud he speakes terribly: but for all that, I doe not greatly beleeeue him, he lookes as like (a) Coniurer as the Pope to a Coster-monger. (Aside.)

Emp. Then Faustus as thou late didst promise vs, 1082
We would behold that famous Conquerour, who leauing his State, offers to embrace them, which Faustus seeing, suddenly states him. Then trumpets cease, and Musicke sounds.

My gracious Lord, you doe forget your selfe,
These are but shadowes, not substantiall.

Emp. O pardon me, my thoughts are so rauished
With sight of this renowned Emperour,
That in mine armes I would haue compast him. 1115
But Faustus, since I may not speake to them,
To satisfie my longing thoughts at full,
Let me this tell thee : I haue heard it said,
That this faire Lady, whilst she liu'd on earth,
Had on her necke a little wart, or mole ; 1120
How may I proue that saying to be true ?

Emp. Faustus I see it plaine,
And in this sight thou better pleasest me,
Then if I gain'd another Monarchie.

Faust. Away, be gone.

1125
Exit Show.

See, see, my gracious Lord, what strange beaſt is yon, that thrusts his head out at window.

Emp. O wondrous sight: ſee Duke of Saxony,
Two ſpreading hornes moſt ſtrangely faſtened
Vpon the head of yong Benvolio.

1130

Sax. What is he aſleepe, or dead?

Faust. He ſleeps my Lord, but dreames not of his hornes.

Emp. This ſport is excellent: wee'll call and wake him.
What ho, Benvolio.

1135

Ben. A plague vpon you, let me ſleepe a while.

Emp. I blame thee not to ſleepe much, hauing ſuch a head of thine owne.

Sax. Looke vp Benvolio, tis the Emperour calls.

Ben. The Emperour? where? O zounds my head.

1140

Emp. Nay, and thy hornes hold, tis no matter for thy head, for that's arm'd ſufficiently.

Faust. Why how now ſir Knight, what hang'd by the hornes? this (is) moſt horrible: fie, fie, pull in your head for ſhame, let not all the world wonder at you.

1145

Ben. Zounds Doctor, is this your villany?

Faust. O ſay not ſo ſir: the Doctor has no ſkill,

No Art, no cunning, to preſent theſe Lords,

Or bring before this royall Emperour

The mightie Monarch, warlicke Alexander.

1150

If Faustus do it, you are ſtraight reſolu'd,

In bold Acteons ſhape to turne a Stagge.

And therefore my Lord, ſo pleaſe your Maiesty,

Il'e raiſe a kennell of Hounds ſhall hunt him ſo,

As all his footmanſhip ſhall ſcarce preuaile,

To keepe his Carkasſe from their bloody phangs.

Ben. Hold, hold: zounds hee'll raiſe vp a kennell of Diuels
I thinke anon: good my Lord intreate for me: 'sbloud I am neuer able to endure theſe torments.

Emp. Then good M. Doctor,

Let me intreate you to remoue his hornes,

He has done penance now ſufficiently.

Enter Benvolio, Martino, Fredericke, and Souldiers.

Mar. Nay sweet Benvolio, let vs sway thy thoughts
From this attempt against the Coniurer. 1180

Ben. Away, you loue me not, to vrge me thus,
Shall I let slip so great an iniury,
When euery seruile groome ieasts at my wrongs,
And in their rusticke gambals proudly say,
Benvolio's head was grac't with hornes to day ? 1185
O may these eye-lids neuer close againe,
Till with my sword I haue that Coniurer slaine.
If you will aid me in this enterprise,
Then draw your weapons, and be resolute :
If not, depart : here will Benvolio die, 1190
But Faustus death shall quit my infamie.

Fred. Nay, we will stay with thee, betide what may,
And kill that Doctor if he come this way.

Ben. Then gentle Fredericke hie thee to the groue,
And place our seruants, and our followers 1195
Close in an ambush there behinde the trees,
By this, (I know) the Coniurer is neere,
I saw him kneele, and kisse the Emperours hand,
And take his leaue, laden with rich rewards.
Then Souldiers boldly fight ; if Faustus die, 1200
Take you the wealth, leaue vs the victorie.

Fred. Come souldiers, follow me vnto the groue,
Who kils him shall haue gold, and endlesse loue.

O were that damned Hell-hound but in place,
Thou soone shouldst see me quit my foule disgrace. 1210

Enter Fredericke.

Fred. Close, close, the Coniurer is at hand,
And all alone, comes walking in his gowne;
Be ready then, and strike the Peasant downe.

Ben. Mine be that honour then: now sword strike home,
For hornes he gaue, Il'e haue his head anone. 1215

Enter Faustus with the false head

Mar. See, see, he comes.

Ben. No words: this blow ends all,
Hell take his soule, his body thus must fall.

Faust. Oh.

Fred. Grone you Master Doctor? 1220

Ben. Breake may his heart with grones: deere Frederik see
Thus will I end his griefes immediatly.

Man. Strike with a willing hand, his head is off.

Ben. The Diuel's dead, the Furies now may laugh.

Fred. Was this that sterne aspect, that awfull frowne,
Made the grim monarch of infernall spirits, 1226
Tremble and quake at his commanding charmes?

Mar. Was this that damned head, whose heart conspir'd
Benvolio's shame before the Emperour.

Ben. I, that's the head, and here the body lies, 1230
Iustly rewarded for his villanies.

Fred. Come, let's devise how we may adde more shame
To the blacke scandall of his hated name.

Ben. First, on his head, in quittance of my wrongs,
I'le naile huge forked hornes, and let them hang 1235
Within the window where he yoak'd me first,
That all the world may see my iust reuenge.

Mar. What vse shall we put his beard to?

Ben. Wee'l sell it to a Chimny-sweeper: it will weare out ten birchin broomes I warrant you. 1240

Fred. What shall (his) eyes doe?

Faust. Nay keepe it: Faustus will haue heads and hands, I call your hearts to recompence this deed.

Knew you not Traytors, I was limited 1250

For foure and twenty yeares, to breathe on earth?

And had you cut my body with your swords,

Or hew'd this flesh and bones as small as sand,

Yet in a minute had my spirit return'd,

And I had breath'd a man made free from harme. 1255

Fred. Pitie vs gentle Faustus, saue our liues.

Faust. Away.

Fred. He must needs goe that the Diuell driues.

Exeunt Spirits with the knights.

Enter the ambusht Souldiers.

1 Sold. Come sirs, prepare your selues in readinesse, 1275

Make hast to help these noble Gentlemen,

I heard them parly with the Coniurer.

2 Sold. See where he comes, dispatch, and kill the slaue.

Faust. What's here? an ambush to betray my life:

Then Faustus try thy skill: base pesants stand, 1280

Mart. Nay chafe not man, we all are sped.

Benu. What deuill attends this damn'd Magician,
That spite of spite, our wrongs are doubled?

Fred. What may we do, that we may hide our shames?

Benu. If we should follow him to worke reuenge, 1305
He'd ioyne long Asses eares to these huge hornes,
And make vs laughing stockes to all the world.

Mart. What shall we then do deere Benuolio?

Benu. I haue a Castle ioyning neere these woods,
And thither wee'll repaire and liue obscure, 1310
Till time shall alter this our brutish shapes:
Sith blacke disgrace hath thus eclips'd our fame,
We'll rather die with grieve, then liue with shame.

Horse. I beseech your Worship accept of these forty Dollors. 1112

Faust. Friend, thou canst not buy so good a horse, for so small a price : I haue no great need to sell him, but if thou likest him for ten Dollors more, take him, because I see thou hast a good minde to him. 1116

Horse. I beseech you sir accept of this ; I am a very poore man, and haue lost very much of late by horse flesh, and this bargain will set me vp againe. 1123

Faust. Well, I will not stand with thee, giue me the money : now sirra I must tell you, that you may ride him o're hedge and ditch, and spare him not ; but do you heare ? in any case, ride him not into the water. 1123

Horse. How sir, not into the water ? why will he not drink of all waters ?

Faust. Yes, he will drinke of all waters, but ride him not into the water ; o're hedge and ditch, or where thou wilt, but not into the water : Go bid the Hostler deliuer him vnto you, and remember what I say. 1129

Horse. I warrant you sir ; O ioyfull day : Now am I a made man for euer. Exit.

Faust. What art thou Faustus but a man condemn'd to die ? Thy fatall time drawes to a finall end ;

Despaire doth driue distrust into my thoughts.

Confound these passions with a quiet sleepe : 1135

Tush, Christ did call the Theefe vpon the Crosse,

Then rest thee Faustus quiet in conceit.

He sits to sleepe.

Enter the Horse-courser wet.

Horse. O what a cosening Doctor was this ? I riding my horse into the water, thinking some hidden mystery had beene in the horse, I had nothing vnder me but a little straw, and had much ado to escape drowning : Well I'll go rouse him, and make him giue me my forty Dollors againe. Ho sirra Doctor, you cosoning scab ; Maister Doctor awake, and rise, and giue me my mony againe, for your horse is turned to a bottle of Hay,—Maister Doctor. He puls off his leg.

Faust. Stop him, stop him, stop him—ha, ha, ha, Faustus hath his leg againe, and the Horse-courser a bundle of hay for his forty Dollors.

Enter Wagner.

How now Wagner what newes with thee ?

Wag. If it please you, the Duke of Vanholt doth earnestly entreate your company, and hath sent some of his men to attend you with prouision fit for your iourney.

1156

Faust. The Duke of Vanholt's an honourable Gentleman, and one to whom I must be no niggard of my cunning : Come away.

11. 1199-1237 of Qq 1604-11 are expanded as follows in Qq. 1616-31 :

Enter Clowne, Dick, Horse-courser, and a Carter.

Cart. Come my Maisters, I'll bring you to the best beere in Europe, what ho, Hostis ; where be these Whores ? 1200

Enter Hostis.

Host. How now, what lacke you ? What my old Guesse, welcome.

Clow. Sirra Dick, dost thou know why I stand so mute ?

Dick. No Robin, why is't ?

Clow. I am eighteene pence on the score, but say nothing, see if she haue forgotten me.

1206

Host. Who's this, that stands so solemnly by himselfe : what my old Guest ?

Clow. O Hostisse how do you ? I hope my score stands still.

Host. I there's no doubt of that, for me thinkes you make no hast to wipe it out.

Dick. Why Hostesse, I say, fetch vs some Beere. (Exit.

Host. You shall presently : looke vp into th' hall there ho.

Dick. Come sirs, what shall we do now till mine Hostesse comes ?

All. O monstrous, eate a whole load of Hay!

Clow. Yes, yes, that may be; for I haue heard of one, that has eate a load of logges. 1230

Horse. Now sirs, you shall heare how villanously he seru'd mee: I went to him yesterday to buy a horse of him, and he would by no meanes sell him vnder 40 Dollors; so sir, because I knew him to be such a horse, as would run ouer hedge and ditch, and neuer tyre, I gaue him his money; so when I had my horse, Doctor Faustus bad me ride him night and day, and spare him no time; but, quoth he, in any case ride him not into the water. Now sir, I thinking the horse had had some quality that he would not haue me know of, what did I but rid him into a great riuer, and when I came iust in the midst my horse vanisht away, and I sate straddling vpon a bottle of Hay. 1243

All. O braue Doctor.

Horse. But you shall heare how brauely I seru'd him for it; I went me home to his house, and there I found him a sleepe; I kept a hallowing and whooping in his eares, but all could not wake him: I seeing that, tooke him by the leg, and neuer rested pulling, till I had pul'd me his leg quite off, and now 'tis at home in mine Hostry. 1249

Clow. And has the Doctor but one leg then? that's excellent, for one of his deuils turn'd me into the likenesse of an Apes face.

Carh. Some more drinke Hostesse. 1253

Clow. Hearke you, we'le into another roome and drinke a while, and then we'le go seeke out the Doctor. Exeunt omnes.

penced, in that it pleaseth your grace to thinke but well of that which Faustus hath performed. But gracious Lady, it may be, that you haue taken no pleasure in those sights; therefor I pray you tell me, what is the thing you most desire to haue, be it in the world, it shall be yours: I haue heard that great bellyed women do long for things, are rare and dainty. 1268

Lady. True Maister Doctor, and since I finde you so kind
I will make knowne vnto you what my heart desires to haue, and were it now Summer, as it is Ianuary, a dead time of the Winter, I would request no better meate, then a dish of ripe grapes.

Fau. This is but a small matter: Go Mephostophilis, away. Exit Mephosto.
Madam, I will do more then this for your content. 1275

Enter Mepho. agen with the grapes.

Here, now taste yee these, they should be good
For they come from a farre Country I can tell you.

Duke. This makes me wonder more then all the rest, that at this time of the yeare, when euery Tree is barren of his fruite, from whence you had these ripe grapes. 1280

Faust. Please it your grace, the yeare is diuided into two circles ouer the whole world, so that when it is Winter with vs, in the contrary circle it is likewise Summer with them, as in India, Saba, and such Countries that lye farre East, where they haue fruit twice a yeare. From whence, by meanes of a swift spirit that I haue, I had these grapes brought as you see. 1287

Lady. And trust me, they are the sweetest grapes that e're I tasted.

The Clowne bounce at the gate, within.

Duke. What rude disturbers haue we at the gate? 1290
Go pacifie their fury set it ope,
And then demand of them, what they would haue.

They knocke againe, and call out to talke with Faustus.

A Seruant. Why how now Maisters, what a coyle is there?
What is the reason you disturbe the Duke?

I haue procur'd your pardons: welcome all.

Clow. Nay sir, we will be wellcome for our mony, and we will pay for what we take: What ho, giue's halfe a dosen of Beere here, and be hang'd. 1316

Faust. Nay, hearke you, can you tell me where you are?

Carl. I marry can I, we are vnder heauen.

Ser. I but sir sauce box, know you in what place?

Horsc. I, I, the house is good enough to drink in: Zons fill vs some Beere, or we'll breake all the barrels in the house, and dash out all your braines with your Bottles. 1322

Faust. Be not so furious: come, you shall haue Beere.

My Lord, beseech you giue me leaue a while,
I'll gage my credit, 'twill content your grace. 1325

Duke. With all my heart kind Doctor, please thy selfe,
Our seruants, and our Courts at thy command.

Faust. I humbly thanke your grace: then fetch some Beere.

Horsc. I mary, there spake a Doctor indeed, and 'faith Ile drinke a health to thy woodden leg for that word. 1330

Faust. My woodden leg? what dost thou meane by that?

Carl. Ha, ha, ha, dost heare him Dick, he has forgot his legge.

Horsc. I, I, he does not stand much vpon that.

Faust. No faith, not much vpon a woodden leg. 1335

The text of 1663 agrees in the main with that of 1616-31 above, except that in place of ll. 1254-5 it adds the following:

Dic. Hostess, will you not give us a Song?
 You sung us a fine Song 1255
 When we were here last.
Host. Talk of Songs as soon as y' come into a house?
 Let's see what Guests you'l be first, you do not call
 For drink fast enough, I am a cup too low yet.
Clow. Where are you, Lick-spigot? fill us six Cans. 1260
Host. I marry, I know you can call apase, but have You any money to pay for them?
Clow. O yes Hostess, money in both pockets. Enter boy
Host. Come then, give me a Can. with Beer.
Horse. Here's to you Hostess. 1265
Host. I thank ye, what song shall I sing?
Cart. Good sweet Hostess sing my song.
Host. What's that?
Cart. The Chimney high.

Lines 1238-84 are given thus in Qq 1616-63:

Thunder and lightning: Enter devils with cover'd dishes:

Mephostophilis leads them into Faustus Study: Then enter Wagner.

Wag. I think my Maister means to die shortly, he has made his will, & giuen me his wealth, his house, his goods, & store of golden plate; besides two thousand duckets ready coin'd: I wonder what he meanes, if death were nie, he would not frolick thus: hee's now at supper with the schollers, where ther's such belly-cheere, as Wagner in his life nere saw the like: and see where they come, belike the feast is done.

Exit.

Enter Faustus, Mephostophilis, and two or three Schollers.

1 Schol. M. Doctor Faustus, since our conference about faire Ladies, which was the beautifullest in all the world, we haue determin'd with our selues, that Hellen of Greece was the admirablest Lady that euer liu'd : therefore M. Doctor, if you will doe vs so much fauour, as to let vs see that peerelesse dame of Greece, whom all the world admires for Maiesty, we should thinke our selues much beholding vnto you. 1251

Faust. Gentlemen, for $\frac{1}{2}$ I know your friendship is vnfaïn'd,

It is not Faustus custome to deny
The iust request of those that wish him well :
You shall behold that peerelesse dame of Greece, 1255
No otherwise for pompe or Maiesty,
Then when sir Paris crost the seas with her,
And brought the spoyles to rich Dardania :
Be silent then, for danger is in words.

Musicke sound, Mephosto brings in Hellen, she passeth ouer the stage.

2. Was this faire Hellen, whose admired worth 1260
Made Greece with ten yeares warres afflict poore Troy ?

3. Too simple is my wit to tell her worth,
Whom all the world admires for maiesty.

1. Now we haue seene the pride of Natures worke,
Wee'll take our leaues, and for this blessed sight 1265
Happy and blest be Faustus euermore. Exeunt Schollers.

Faust. Gentlemen farewell : the same wish I to you.

Enter an old Man.

Old Man. O gentle Faustus leaue this damned Art,
This Magicke, that will charme thy soule to hell,
And quite bereaue thee of saluation. 1270
Though thou hast now offended like a man,
Doe not perseuer in it like a Diuell ;
Yet, yet, thou hast an amiable soule,
If sin by custome grow not into nature :
Then Faustus, will repentance come too late, 1275
Then thou art banisht from the sight of heauen ;
No mortall can expresse the paines of hell.
It may be this my exhortation
Seemes harsh, and all vnpleasant ; let it not,
For gentle sonne, I speake it not in wrath, 1280
Or enuy of thee, but in tender loue,
And pittie of thy future miserie.
And so haue hope, that this my kinde rebuke,
Checking thy body, may amend thy soule.

1281 enuy of 1616, 1619 : of enuy to 1620-63

For the speech of the Old Man in Qq 1604-11 (ll. 1348-56),
Qq 1616-63 insert the following :

Thunder. Enter Lucifer, Belzebub, and Mephostophilis.

Lucif. Thus from infernall Dis do we ascend
To view the subiects of our Monarchy, 1349
Those soules which sinne seales the blacke sonnes of hell,
'Mong which as chiefe, Faustus we come to theo,
Bringing with vs lasting damnation,
To wait vpon thy soule ; the time is come
Which makes it forfeit.

Meph. And this gloomy night, 1355
Here in this roome will wretched Faustus be.

Bels. And here wee'l stay,
To marke him how he doth demeane himselfe.

Meph. How should he, but in desperate lunacie.
Fond worlding, now his heart bloud dries with griefe ; 1360
His conscience kils it, and his labouring braine,
Begets a world of idle fantasies,
To ouer-reach the Diuell ; but all in vaine,
His store of pleasures must be sauc'd with paine.
He and his seruant Wagner are at hand, 1365
Both come from drawing Faustus latest will.
See where they come.

Enter Faustus and Wagner.

Faust. Say Wagner, thou hast perus'd my will,
How dost thou like it ?

Wag. Sir, so wondrous well, 1370
As in all humble dutie, I do yeeld
My life and lasting service for your loue.

Enter the scholers.

Faust. Gramercies Wagner. Welcome gentlemen.

1. Now worthy Faustus : me thinks your looks are chang'd.

Between lines 1418 and 1419 of Qq 1604-11, the later quartos
add this passage :

Meph. I Faustus, now thou hast no hope of heauen,
Therefore despaire, thinke onely vpon hell ; 1420
For that must be thy mansion, there to dwell.

Faust. O thou bewitching fiend, 'twas thy temptation,
Hath rob'd me of eternall happinesse.

 To view the Scriptures, then I turn'd the leaues
 And led thine eye.
 What, weep'st thou ? 'tis too late, despaire, farewell,
 Fooles that will laugh on earth, must weepe in hell. Exit.

*Enter the good Angell, and the bad Angell at seuerall

Good. Oh Faustus, if thou hadst giuen eare to me, 1431
 Innumerable ioyes had followed thee.
 But thou didst loue the world.

Bad. Gaue eare to me,
 And now must taste hels paines perpetually. 1435

Good. O what will all thy riches, pleasures, pompes, Auaile thee now ?

Bad. Nothing but vexe thee more,
 To want in hell, that had on earth such store.

Musicke while the Throne descends.

Good. O thou hast lost celestiaall happinesse, 1440
 Pleasures vnspeakeable, blisse without end.
 Hadst thou affected sweet diuinitie,
 Hell, or the Diuell, had had no power on thee.
 Hadst thou kept on that way, Faustus behold,
 In what resplendant glory thou hadst set 1445
 In yonder throne, like those bright shining Saints,
 And triumpht ouer hell: that hast thou lost,
 And now poore soule must thy good Angell leaue thee,
 The iawes of hell are open to receiue thee. Exit.

Hell is discovered.

Bad. Now Faustus let thine eyes with horror stare 1450
 Into that vaste perpetuall torture-house.
 There are the Furies tossing damned soules,
 On burning forkes: their bodies broyle in lead.
 There are liue quarters broyling on the coles,
 That ner'e can die: this euer-burning chaire 1455

Between l. 1477 and the Chorus, Qq 1616-63 insert the following new scene :

Enter the Schollers.

THE JEW OF MALTA

Date. There is no evidence on which to determine very accurately the date of The Jew of Malta. The allusion to the death of the Duke of Guise in line 3 points to a period subsequent to December 23, 1588, for the composition of at least that part of the play. It is quite true, as Wagner has argued, that this Prologue of Macheuil may possibly have been written after the rest of the piece, but considerations of dramatic structure and versification make it well-nigh impossible to refer the play as a whole to an earlier year than 1589. It seems certainly to have been written and performed between the period of the composition of Doctor Faustus (? 1588-9) and February 26, 1591/2, when an entry in Henslowe's Diary shows it to be already an old play. The year 1590 cannot be far wrong.

Stage history and the early edition. The earliest mention of The Jew of Malta is that already referred to, which occurs very near the beginning of Henslowe's Diary: 'Rd. at the Jewe of malltuse the 26 of febrearye 1591 [1592, N.S.] 1s.' The play belonged apparently to Henslowe and was acted by each of the many companies with which he was connected during the next five years. It was one of the most popular pieces in the manager's repertoire: the Diary notes thirty-six representations, the last being on June 21, 1596. This record exceeds that of any other of Marlowe's plays,¹ even the very popular Doctor Faustus having only twenty-five certified performances.

In 1601 The Jew of Malta was certainly revived, probably in a somewhat altered form. Unfortunately the Diary does not mention the individual performances for this period, but it contains the following notes of expenditure: 'Lent vnto Robart shawe & mr. Jube the 19 of Maye 1601 to bye divers thinges for the Jewe of malta the some of . . . v^{li}.

¹ We have, however, no information concerning the number of performances of Edward II and Dido, which did not belong to Henslowe.

lent mor to the littell tayller the same daye for more thinges for the Jewe of malta some of . . x^s.’ Later—at some time before the end of 1633—as we learn from the extant text, the play was presented at Court and at the Cockpit Theatre with prologues and epilogues on both occasions by Thomas Heywood.

On the seventeenth of May, 1594, Nicholas Linge and Thomas Millington entered for publication on the Stationers’ Register the famousse tragedie of the Riche Jewe of Malta. On the previous day John Danter had licensed ‘a ballad intituled the murtherous life and terrible death of the riche Jew of Malta’, very obviously a piece inspired by the play.

It is peculiarly unfortunate that no copy of Linge and Millington’s contemplated edition has come down to us. Instead, all editors have had to base their texts on the faulty and unauthoritative version published in 1633. It is, of course, possible that Linge and Millington were by some accident prevented from bringing out the edition which they had already licensed, but this seems, on the whole, improbable. It is certainly not easy to believe that this one play of Marlowe—apparently the most popular of all on the stage—should have remained forty years and more unprinted after a text was already in publishers’ hands. Moreover, Heywood’s adverb in the Epistle Dedicatory to the 1633 edition, ‘now being newly brought to the Presse’ (p. 237), would normally indicate that there existed an earlier edition.¹

Text and authorship. It has been said that our only text of The Jew of Malta is that preserved in the 1633 version. There is no evidence that any one has seen an earlier edition, and we can hardly do more than hope that some happy accident may reveal a hitherto unknown and relatively correct text. Undoubtedly the 1633 quarto presents the tragedy in a form sadly corrupted and altered from that in which it left the hands of Marlowe. Besides the incidental impurities due to very bad printing and to the casual changes of actors during many decades, it is probable that the extant text incorporates the results of at least two separate revisions; the first carried out before the revival in 1601, to which Henslowe alludes, the second that which must have been necessary before so old a work could be presented at Court and at the Cock-pit. The author of the prologues and epilogues on these last occasions and of the dedicatory epistle of 1633 is Thomas Heywood, the dramatist. It is not improbable that he likewise altered the play for performance at Court. Mr. Fleay¹ has pointed out the close similarity between the last friars' scene (ll. 1623-1715) and the underplot in Heywood's newly discovered comedy, The Captives.² The relationship, however, cannot be held to prove that Heywood is author of the passage in The Jew of Malta, which is evidently earlier and less carefully worked out than the other version. In the part of The Captives alluded to, Heywood may be elaborating an earlier conception of his own, but he may equally well be plagiarizing from Marlowe.

All critics of the play have noticed with regret the failure of the last half of The Jew of Malta to fulfil the splendid promise of the first two acts. It is beyond question that the vigorous flow of tragic interest and character portrayal with which the play opens wastes away amid what, for the modern reader, is a wilderness of melodrama and farce. The change is so marked as to suggest grave doubt whether the tragedy as we have it can represent even remotely the conception of a single man. And yet, after recognizing the practical certainty that the 1633 text gives an extremely corrupt version of Marlowe's work, and that the elaborators here, as in the case of Doctor Faustus, found far greater opportunity for revision and expansion in the latter half of the drama than in the earlier part, we do not appear justified by the facts in denying that the thread of the plot is probably throughout Marlowe's contribution. There is, indeed, hardly any explanation short of insanity which in a modern dramatist would account for the sudden change from the vivid realization of Barabas's character, as indicated in the first two acts, to the complete absence of sympathetic insight which marks the last three. In the present case, however, it must be considered that we are dealing confessedly³ with a unique form of drama governed by rules of its own—the Machiavellian tragedy.

Machiavellianism was, on the Elizabethan stage, an avocation rather than a psychological necessity. In The Jew of Malta, as in Titus Andronicus and Richard III, the melodrama belongs to the first conception of the play; the deep humanity enters, as it were, by accidental inspiration. I believe that the heterogeneous character of The Jew of Malta is fundamental, not due in any essential degree either to excessive haste of composition or to plurality of authorship. The first two acts, as we have them, probably represent with moderate fidelity the deep study of a human passion with which Marlowe was inspired to preface, and partly to overlay, his drama of 'blood and thunder'. Few playwrights have ever shown such power in conceiving states of intense feeling, and surely none of comparable greatness has ever been less skilful than Marlowe in blending this lyric fabric with the structural framework of a tragedy. The last three acts appear to represent, though inaccurately, with possible interpolations and occasional changes, the original sensational plot of Marlowe, bare of the imaginative humanizing which the earlier acts received. I see little reason to believe that the poet's general design has anywhere been very seriously tampered with, and to the very end of the play there occur, among obvious corruptions, verses which it seems all but impossible to deny to Marlowe.¹

Source. A direct source of The Jew of Malta has not been discovered. Many of the incidents are undoubtedly based on history, though in each case the poet has allowed himself considerable licence. Malta was several times besieged by the Turks, notably in 1565, but unsuccessfully. L. Kellner (Englische Studien, x. 80 ff.) has drawn attention to the interesting parallel between the career of Barabas in the play and that of Juan Miques (Michesius), a Portuguese Jew who flourished during the middle of the sixteenth century. After enduring persecution in his own country, in Antwerp, and in Venice, Miques took refuge with the Turks in Constantinople, and there employed his enormous wealth and his influence over the Sultan Selim to the disadvantage of the Christians. He was made Duke of Naxos and the Cyclades, and caused the Turkish attack on Cyprus in 1570. This notorious foe to Christendom is mentioned by the historians Foglietta,² Strada,³ and others, but no such accounts known can claim to have done more than suggest in the vaguest way the character of Barabas.

A play called 'The Jew', of which we know nothing further, is mentioned in Stephen Gosson's School of Abuse as early as 1579, and a Viennese manuscript preserves the bare outlines of a comedy performed by English actors in which the plots of The Jew of Malta and The Merchant of Venice seem to be blended with some independent matter from the history of Michesius.¹

<The Epistle Dedicatory>¹

TO MY WORTHY
FRIEND, M^R THOMAS
HAMMON, OF GRAYES
INNE, &c.

This Play, composed by so worthy an Authour as Mr. Marlo; and the part of the Jew presented by so vnimitable an Actor as Mr. Allin, being in this later Age commended to the Stage: As I vshe'd it unto the Court, and presented it to the Cock-pit, with these Prologues; and Epilogues here inserted, so now being newly brought to the Presse, I was loath it should be published without the ornament of an Epistle; making choyce of you vnto whom to deuote it; then whom (of all those Gentlemen and acquaintance, within the compasse of my long know-¹⁰ ledge) there is none more able to taxe Ignorance, or attribute right to merit. Sir, you haue bin pleased to grace some of mine owne workes with your curteous patronage; I hope this will not be the worse accepted, because commended by mee; ouer whom none can clayme more power or¹⁵ priuilege than your selfe. I had no better a New-yeares gift to present you with; receiue it therefore as a continuance of that inuiolable obliegement, by which he rests still ingaged; who as he euer hath, shall alwayes remaine,

Tuissimus : 20

THO. HEYWOOD.

The Prologue spoken at Court.

*Gracious and Great, that we so boldly dare, ('Mongst other Playes that now in fashion are)
 To present this; writ many yeares agoe,
 And in that Age, thought second vnto none;
 We humbly crave your pardon : we pursue* 5
*The story of a rich and famous Jew
 Who liu'd in Malta : you shall find him still,
 In all his proiects, a sound Macheuill;
 And that's his Character : He that hath past
 So many Censures, is now come at last* 10
*To haue your princely Eares : grace you him ; then
 You crowne the Action, and renowne the pen.*

Epilogue.

*It is our feare (dread Soueraigne) we haue bin
 Too tedious ; neither can't be lesse than sinne
 To wrong your Princely patience : If we haue,
 (Thus low deieted) we your pardon craue :
 And if ought here offend your eare or sight,* 5
We onely Act, and Speake, what others writ.

The Prologue to the Stage, at the Cocke-pit.

We know not how our Play may passe this Stage,
*But by the best of * Poets in that age* * Marlo.
The Malta Jew had being, and was made ;
*And He, then by the best of * Actors play'd :* * Allin.
In Hero and Leander, one did gaine 5
A lasting memorie ; in Tamberlaine,
This Jew, with others many : th' other wan
The Attribute of peerelesse, being a man
Whom we may ranke with (doing no one wrong)
Proteus for shapes, and Roscius for a tongue, 10
So could he speake, so vary ; nor is't hate
*To merit in * him who doth personate* * Perkins.
Our Jew this day, nor is it his ambition
To exceed, or equall, being of condition
More modest ; this is all that he intends, 15
(And that too, at the vrgence of some friends)
To proue his best, and if none here gaine-say it,
The part he hath studied, and intends to play it.

Epilogue.

In Graving, with Pigmalion to contend ;
Or Painting, with Apelles ; doubtlesse the end
Must be disgrace : our Actor did not so,
He onely aym'd to goe, but not out-goe.
Nor thinke that this day any prize was plaid, 5
Here were no betts at all, no wagers laid ;
All the ambition that his mind doth swell,
Is but to heare from you, (by me) 'twas well.

THE IEW OF MALTA

Macheuil.

Albeit the world thinke Macheuill is dead,
 Yet was his soule but flowne beyond the Alpes,
 And now the Guize is dead, is come from France
 To view this Land, and frolicke with his friends.
 To some perhaps my name is odious, 5
 But such as loue me, gard me from their tongues,
 And let them know that I am Macheuill,
 And weigh not men, and therefore not mens words :
 Admir'd I am of those that hate me most.
 Though some speake openly against my bookes, 10
 Yet will they reade me, and thereby attaine
 To Peters Chayre : And when they cast me off,
 Are poyson'd by my climbing followers.
 I count Religion but a childish Toy,
 And hold there is no sinne but Ignorance. 15
 Birds of the Aire will tell of murders past ;
 I am asham'd to heare such fooleries :
 Many will talke of Title to a Crowne.
 What right had Cæsar to the Empire ?
 Might first made Kings, and Lawes were then most sure
 When like the Dracos they were writ in blood. 21
 Hence comes it, that a strong built Citadell
 Commands much more then letters can import :
 Which maxime had Phaleris obseru'd,

 But to present the Tragedy of a Jew, 30
 Who smiles to see how full his bags are cramb'd,
 Which mony was not got without my meanes.

 And of the third part of the Persian ships,
 There was the venture summ'd and satisfied.

 That bought my Spanish Oyles, and Wines of Greece, 40
 Here haue I purst their paltry siluerlings.
 Fye ; what a trouble tis to count this trash.
 Well fare the Arabians, who so richly pay
 The things they traffique for with wedge of gold,
 Whereof a man may easily in a day 45
 Tell that which may maintaine him all his life.
 The needy groome that neuer fingred groat,
 Would make a miracle of thus much coyne :
 But he whose steele-bard coffers are cramb'd full,
 And all his life time hath bin tired, 50
 Wearying his fingers ends with telling it,
 Would in his age be loath to labour so,
 And for a pound to sweat himselfe to death :

 And thus me thinkes should men of iudgement frame

 Are smoothly gliding downe by Candie shoare
 To Malta, through our Mediterranean sea.
 But who comes heare? How now.

Enter a Merchant.

Merch. Barabas, thy ships are safe,
 Riding in Malta Rhode: And all the Merchants 85
 With other Merchandize are safe arriu'd,
 And haue sent me to know whether your selfe
 Will come and custome them.

Iew. The ships are safe thou saist, and richly fraught.

Merch. They are. 90

Iew. Why then goe bid them come ashore,
 And bring with them their bills of entry:
 I hope our credit in the Custome-house
 Will serue as well as I were present there.
 Goe send 'vm threescore Camels, thirty Mules, 95

But art thou master in a ship of mine,
And is thy credit not enough for that ?

Merch. The very Custome barely comes to more
Then many Merchants of the Towne are worth, 100
And therefore farre exceeds my credit, Sir.

Jew. Goe tell 'em the Jew of Malta sent thee, man :
Tush, who amongst 'em knowes not Barrabas ?

Merch. I goe.

Jew. So then, there's somewhat come. 105
Sirra, which of my ships art thou Master of ?

Merch. Of the Speranza, Sir.

Jew. And saw'st thou not Mine Argosie at Alexandria ?
Thou couldst not come from Egypt, or by Caire 110
But at the entry there into the sea,
Where Nilus payes his tribute to the maine,
Thou needs must saile by Alexandria.

Merch. I neither saw them, nor inquir'd of them.
But this we heard some of our sea-men say, 115
They wondred how you durst with so much wealth
Trust such a crazed Vessel, and so farre.

Jew. Tush ; they are wise, I know her and her strength :
But goe, goe thou thy wayes, discharge thy Ship,
And bid my Factor bring his loading in. 120
(Exit 1st. Merchant.)

And yet I wonder at this Argosie.

Enter a second Merchant.

2. Merch. Thine Argosie from Alexandria,
Know Barabas, doth ride in Malta Rhode,
Laden with riches, and exceeding store
Of Persian silkes, of gold, and Orient Perle. 125

Jew. How chance you came not with those other ships
That sail'd by Egypt ?

2. Merch. Sir we saw 'em not.

Jew. Belike they coasted round by Candie shoare
About their Oyles, or other businesses. 130
But 'twas ill done of you to come so farre
Without the ayd or conduct of their ships.

2. Merch. Sir, we were wafted by a Spanish Fleet
That neuer left vs till within a league,
That had the Gallies of the Turke in chase. 135

Jew. Thus trowles our fortune in by land and Sea, 141

And thus are wee on euery side inrich'd :

These are the Blessings promis'd to the Iewes,

And herein was old Abrams happinesse :

What more may Heaven doe for earthly man 145

Then thus to powre out plenty in their laps,

Ripping the bowels of the earth for them,

Making the Sea their seruant, and the winds

To driue their substance with successefull blasts ?

Who hateth me but for my happinesse ? 150

Or who is honour'd now but for his wealth ?

Rather had I a Iew be hated thus,

Then pittied in a Christian pouerty :

For I can see no fruits in all their faith,

But malice, falshood, and excessiue pride, 155

Which me thinkes fits not their profession.

Happily some haplesse man hath conscience,

And for his conscience liues in beggery.

They say we are a scatter'd Nation :

I cannot tell, but we haue scrambled vp 160

More wealth by farre then those that brag of faith.

There's Kirriah Iairim, the great Iew of Greece,

Obed in Bairseth, Nones in Portugall,

My selfe in Maltia, some in Italy,

Many in France, and wealthy euery one : 165

I, wealthier farre then any Christian.

I must confesse we come not to be Kings :

That's not our fault : Alas, our number's few,

And Crownes come either by succession,

Or vrg'd by force ; and nothing violent, 170

Oft haue I heard tell, can be permanent.

Giue vs a peacefull rule, make Christians Kings,

That thirst so much for Principality.

I haue no charge, nor many children,

But one sole Daughter, whom I hold as deare 175

As Agamemnon did his Iphigen :

And all I haue is hers. But who comes here ?

1. Tush, tell not me, 'twas done of policie.
 2. Come therefore let vs goe to Barrabas ;
 For he can counsell best in these affaires ; 180
 And here he comes.

Jew. Why, how now, Countrymen ?
 Why flocke you thus to me in multitudes ?
 What accident's betided to the Jewes ?

1. A Fleet of warlike Gallies, Barabas, 195
 Are come from Turkey, and lye in our Rhode :
 And they this day sit in the Counsell-house
 To entertaine them and their Embassie.

Jew. Why, let 'em come, so they come not to warre ;
 Or let 'em warre, so we be conquerors : 190
 Nay, let 'em combat, conquer, and kill all, Aside.
 So they spare me, my daughter, and my wealth.

1. Were it for confirmation of a League,
 They would not come in warlike manner thus.

2. I feare their comming will afflict vs all. 195

Jew. Fond men, what dreame you of their multitudes ?
 What need they treat of peace that are in league ?
 The Turkes and those of Malta are in league.
 Tut, tut, there is some other matter in't.

1. Why, Barabas, they come for peace or warre. 200

Jew. Happily for neither, but to passe along
 Towards Venice by the Adriaticke Sea ;
 With whom they haue attempted many times,
 But neuer could effect their Stratagem.

3. And very wisely sayd, it may be so. 205

2. But there's a meeting in the Senate-house,
 And all the Jewes in Malta must be there.

Jew. Vmh ; All the Jewes in Malta must be there ?

I, like enough, why then let euery man
 Prouide him, and be there for fashion-sake. 210
 If any thing shall there concerne our state
 Assure your selues I'll looke vnto my selfe. Aside.

1. I know you will ; well brethren let vs goe.

2. Let's take our leaues ; Farewell good Barabas.

Gov. What's Cyprus, Candy, and those other Iles
 To vs, or Malta? What at our hands demand ye? 235

Calim. The ten yeares tribute that remaines vnpaid.

Gov. Alas, my Lord, the summe is ouergreat,
 I hope your Highnesse will consider vs.

Calim. I wish, graue Gouvernour 'twere in my power
 To fauour you, but 'tis my fathers cause, 240
 Wherein I may not, nay I dare not dally.

Gov. Then giue vs leaue, great Selim-Calymath.

Caly. Stand all aside, and let the Knights determine,
 And send to keepe our Gallies vnder-saile,
 For happily we shall not tarry here: 245
 Now Gouvernour, how are you resolu'd?

Gov. Thus: Since your hard conditions are such
 That you will needs haue ten yeares tribute past,
 We may haue time to make collection

1. Knight. Haue you determin'd what to say to them ?

Gov. Yes, giue me leaue, and Hebrewes now come neare.
 From the Emperour of Turkey is arriu'd
 Great Selim-Calymath, his Highnesse sonne, 270

 Now then here know that it concerneth vs.

 Your Lordship shall doe well to let them haue it.

Gov. Soft Barabas, there's more longs too't than so.
 To what this ten yeares tribute will amount 276
 That we haue cast, but cannot compasse it
 By reason of the warres, that robb'd our store ;
 And therefore are we to request your ayd.

Bar. Alas, my Lord, we are no souldiers : 280
 And what's our aid against so great a Prince ?

 Thou art a Merchant, and a monied man,
 And 'tis thy mony, Barabas, we seeke.

Bar. How, my Lord, my mony ? 285

Gov. Thine and the rest.

For, to be short, amongst you 'tmust be had.

Bar. How, equally ?

Gov. No, Iew, like infidels.

For through our sufferance of your hatefull liues, 295
Who stand accursed in the sight of heauen,
These taxes and afflictions are befall'ne,
And therefore thus we are determined ;
Reade there the Articles of our decrees. 299

Reader. First, the tribute mony of the Turkes shall all be leuyed amongst the Iewes, and each of them to pay one Halfe of his estate.

Bar. How, halfe his estate ? I hope you meane not mine.

Gov. Read on.

Read. Secondly, hee that denies to pay, shal straight become a Christian. 306

Bar. How, a Christian ? Hum, what's here to doe ?

Read. Lastly, he that denies this, shall absolutely lose all he has.

All 3 Iewes. Oh my Lord we will giue halfe. 310

Bar. Oh earth-mettall'd villaines, and no Hebrews born !
And will you basely thus submit your selues
To leaue your goods to their arbitrament ?

Gov. Why Barabas wilt thou be christned ?

Bar. No, Gouvernour, I will be no conuertite. 315

Gov. Then pay thy halfe.

Bar. Why know you what you did by this deuice ?
Halfe of my substance is a Cities wealth.
Gouvernour, it was not got so easily ;
Nor will I part so slightly therewithall. 320

Gov. Sir, halfe is the penalty of our decree,
Either pay that, or we will seize on all.

Bar. Corpo di deo ; stay, you shall haue halfe,
Let me be vs'd but as my brethren are.

Gov. No, Iew, thou hast denied the Articles, 325
And now it cannot be recall'd.

 But say the Tribe that I descended of

 And which of you can charge me otherwise ? 350

Gov. Out, wretched Barabas,
 Sham'st thou not thus to iustifie thy selfe,
 As if we knew not thy profession ?
 If thou rely vpon thy righteousness,
 Be patient and thy riches will increase. 355
 Excesse of wealth is cause of covetousnesse :
 And couetousnesse, oh 'tis a monstrous sinne.

Bar. I, but theft is worse : tush, take not from me then,
 For that is theft ; and if you rob me thus,
 I must be forc'd to steale and compasse more. 360

1. Kni. Graue Gouvernor, list not to his exclames :
 Conuert his mansion to a Nunnery, Enter Officers.
 His house will harbour many holy Nuns.

Gov. It shall be so : now Officers haue you done ?

Offic. I, my Lord, we haue seiz'd vpon the goods 365
 And wares of Barabas, which being valued
 Amount to more then all the wealth in Malta.
 And of the other we haue seized halfe.

Prefix om. 1633 : Fern. add. Dyce : Gov. add. Cunn.

My ships, my store, and all that I enioy'd ;
And hauing all, you can request no more ;
Vnlesse your vnrelenting flinty hearts
Suppresses all pittie in your stony breasts, 375
And now shall move you to bereave my life.

Gov. No, Barabas, to staine our hands with blood
Is farre from vs and our profession.

Bar. Why I esteeme the iniury farre lesse,
To take the liues of miserable men, 380
Then be the causers of their misery.
You haue my wealth, the labour of my life,
The comfort of mine age, my childrens hope,
And therefore ne're distinguish of the wrong.

Gov. Content thee, Barabas, thou hast nought but right.

Bar. Your extreme right does me exceeding wrong : 385
But take it to you i'th deuils name.

Gov. Come, let vs in, and gather of these goods
The mony for this tribute of the Turke.

1. Knight. 'Tis necessary that be look'd vnto : 390
For if we breake our day, we breake the league,
And that will proue but simple policie.

Exeunt, (all except Barabas and the Three Iews.)

Bar. I, policie ? that's their profession,
And not simplicity, as they suggest.
The plagues of Egypt, and the curse of heauen, 395
Earths barrennesse, and all mens hatred
Inflict vpon them, thou great Primus Motor.
And here vpon my knees, striking the earth,
I banne their soules to everlasting paines
And extreme tortures of the fiery deepe, 400
That thus haue dealt with me in my distresse.

1. Iew. Oh yet be patient, gentle Barabas.

Bar. Oh silly brethren, borne to see this day !
Why stand you thus vnmou'd with my laments ?
Why weepe you not to thinke vpon my wrongs ? 405
Why pine not I, and dye in this distresse ?

1. Iew. Why, Barabas, as hardly can we brooke
The cruell handling of our selues in this :
Thou seest they haue taken halfe our goods.

Bar. Why did you yeeld to their extortion ? 410
You were a multitude, and I but one,
And of me onely haue they taken all.

1. Jew. Yet brother Barabas remember Iob.

Bar. What tell you me of Iob? I wot his wealth
Was written thus: he had seven thousand sheepe, 415
Three thousand Camels, and two hundred yoke
Of labouring Oxen, and five hundred
Shee Asses: but for every one of those,
Had they beene valued at indifferent rate,
I had at home, and in mine Argosie 420
And other ships that came from Egypt last,
As much as would have bought his beasts and him,
And yet have kept enough to live vpon;
So that not he, but I may curse the day,
Thy fatall birth-day, forlorne Barabas; 425
And henceforth wish for an eternall night,
That clouds of darkenesse may inclose my flesh,
And hide these extreme sorrowes from mine eyes:
For onely I have toyl'd to inherit here
The months of vanity and losse of time, 430
And painefull nights have bin appointed me.

2. Jew. Good Barabas be patient.

Bar. I, I pray leave me in my patience.
You that were ne're possert of wealth, are pleas'd with want.

But giue him liberty at least to mourne, 435
That in a field amidst his enemies,
Doth see his souldiers slaine, himselfe disarm'd,
And knowes no meanes of his recouerie:
I, let me sorrow for this sudden chance,
'Tis in the trouble of my spirit I speake; 440
Great iniuries are not so soone forgot.

1. Jew. Come, let vs leaue him in his irefull mood,
Our words will but increase his extasie.

2. Jew. On, then: but trust me 'tis a misery
To see a man in such affliction: 445
Farewell Barabas. Exeunt.

Bar. I, fare you well.

See the simplicitie of these base slaues,
Who for the villaines haue no wit themselues,
Thinke me to be a senselesse lump of clay 450
That will with every water wash to dirt:
No, Barabas is borne to better chance,

And fram'd of finer mold then common men,
That measure nought but by the present time.
A reaching thought will search his deepest wits, 455
And cast with cunning for the time to come :
For euils are apt to happen euery day.
But whither wends my beauteous Abigall ?

Enter Abigall the Iewes daughter.

Oh what has made my louely daughter sad ?
What ? woman, moane not for a little losse : 460
Thy father has enough in store for thee.

Abig. Not for my selfe, but aged Barabas :
Father, for thee lamenteth Abigaile :
But I will learne to leaue these fruitlesse teares,
And vrg'd thereto with my afflictions, 465
With fierce exclames run to the Senate-house,
And in the Senate reprehend them all,
And rent their hearts with tearing of my haire,
Till they reduce the wrongs done to my father.

Bar. No, Abigail, things past recouery 470
Are hardly cur'd with exclamations.
Be silent, Daughter, sufferance breeds ease,
And time may yeeld vs an occasion
Which on the sudden cannot serue the turne.
Besides, my girle, thinke me not all so fond 475
As negligently to forgoe so much
Without prouision for thy selfe and me.
Ten thousand Portagues, besides great Perles,
Rich costly Iewels, and Stones infinite,
Fearing the worst of this before it fell, 480
I closely hid.

Abig. Where father ?

Bar. In my house, my girle.

Abig. Then shall they ne're be seene of Barrabas :
For they haue seiz'd vpon thy house and wares. 485

Bar. But they will giue me leaue once more, I trow,
To goe into my house.

Abig. That may they not :
For there I left the Gouernour placing Nunnes,
Displacing me ; and of thy house they meane 490
To make a Nunnery, where none but their owne sect
Must enter in ; men generally barr'd.

468 rend Reed, Coll., Bull.

Bar. My gold, my gold, and all my wealth is gone.
 You partiall heauens, haue I deseru'd this plague ?
 What will you thus oppose me, lucklesse Starres, 495
 To make me desperate in my pouerty ?
 And knowing me impatient in distresse
 Thinke me so mad as I will hang my selfe.
 That I may vanish ore the earth in ayre,
 And leaue no memory that e're I was. 500
 No, I will liue ; nor loath I this my life :
 And since you leaue me in the Ocean thus
 To sinke or swim, and put me to my shifts,
 I'le rouse my senses, and awake my selfe.
 Daughter, I haue it : thou perceiu'st the plight 505
 Wherein these Christians haue oppressed me :
 Be rul'd by me, for in extremitie
 We ought to make barre of no policie.

Abig. Father, what e're it be to iniure them
 That haue so manifestly wronged vs, 510
 What will not Abigall attempt ?

Bar. Why so ;
 Then thus, thou toldst me they haue turn'd my house
 Into a Nunnery, and some Nuns are there.

Abig. I did. 515

Bar. Then Abigall, there must my girle
 Intreat the Abbasse to be entertain'd.

Abig. How, as a Nunne ?

Bar. I, Daughter, for Religion
 Hides many mischiefes from suspicion. 520

Abig. I, but father, they will suspect me there.

Bar. Let 'em suspect, but be thou so precise
 As they may thinke it done of Holinesse.
 Intreat 'em faire, and giue them friendly speech,
 And seeme to them as if thy sinnes were great, 525
 Till thou hast gotten to be entertain'd.

Abig. Thus, father, shall I much dissemble.

Bar. Tush,
 As good dissemble that thou neuer mean'st
 As first meane truth, and then dissemble it, 530
 A counterfet profession is better
 Then vnseene hypocrisie.

Abig. Well father, say I be entertain'd,
 What then shall follow ?

 There haue I hid close underneath the plancke
 That runs along the vpper chamber floore,
 The gold and Iewels which I kept for thee.
 But here they come ; be cunning Abigall.
Abig. Then father, goe with me. 540
Bar. No, Abigall, in this
 It is not necessary I be seene.
 For I will seeme offended with thee for't.
 Be close, my girle, for this must fetch my gold.

Enter three Fryars and two Nuns.

1. Fry. Sisters, 545
 We now are almost at the new made Nunnery.
1. Nun. The better ; for we loue not to be seene :
 'Tis 30 winters long since some of vs
 Did stray so farre amongst the multitude.
1. Fry. But, Madam, this house 550
 And quarters of this new made Nunnery
 Will much delight you.
Nun. It may be so : but who comes here ?
Abig. Grave Abbasse, and you, happy Virgins guide,
 Pitty the state of a distressed Maid. 555
Abb. What art thou, daughter ?
Abig. The hopelesse daughter of a haplesse Iew,
 The Iew of Malta, wretched Barabas ;
 Sometimes the owner of a goodly house,
 Which they haue now turn'd to a Nunnery. 560
Abb. Well, daughter, say, what is thy suit with vs ?
Abig. Fearing the afflictions which my father feelles,
 Proceed from sinne, or want of faith in vs,
 I'de passe away my life in penitence,
 And be a Nouice in your Nunnery, 565
 To make attonement for my labouring soule.
1. Fry. No doubt, brother, but this proceedeth of the spirit.
2. Fry. I,
 And of a moving spirit too, brother ; but come,
 Let vs intreat she may be entertain'd. 570

Abig. First let me as a Novice learne to frame
My solitary life to your streight lawes,
And let me lodge where I was wont to lye.
I doe not doubt by your divine precepts 575
And mine owne industry, but to profit much.

Bar. As much I hope as all I hid is worth. Aside.

Abb. Come daughter, follow vs.

Bar. Why how now Abigall, what mak'st thou
Amongst these hateful Christians ? 580

i. Fry. Hinder her not, thou man of little faith,
For she has mortified her selfe.

Bar. How, mortified !

i. Fry. And is admitted to the Sister-hood.

Bar. Child of perdition, and thy fathers shame, 585
What wilt thou doe among these hatefull fiends ?
I charge thee on my blessing that thou leaue
These diuels, and their damned heresie.

Abig. Father, giue me—

i. Fry. Barabas, although thou art in mis-beleeffe,
And wilt not see thine owne afflictions, 595
Yet let thy daughter be no longer blinde.

Bar. Blind, Fryer, I wrecke not thy perswasions.

The boord is marked thus † that couers it,
For I had rather dye, then see her thus.
Wilt thou forsake mee too in my distresse, 600

Seduced Daughter, Goe forget not Aside to her.

To morrow early I'll be at the doore. Aside to her.

Enter Mathias.

Math. Whose this? Faire Abigail the rich Iewes daughter
 Become a Nun? her fathers sudden fall
 Has humbled her and brought her downe to this: 610
 Tut, she were fitter for a tale of loue
 Then to be tired out with Orizons:
 And better would she farre become a bed
 Embraced in a friendly louers armes,
 Then rise at midnight to a solemne masse. 615

Enter Lodowicke.

Lod. Why how now Don Mathias, in a dump?
Math. Beleeue me, Noble Lodowicke, I haue seene
 The strangest sight, in my opinion,
 That euer I beheld.
Lod. What wast I prethe? 620
Math. A faire young maid scarce 14 yeares of age,
 The sweetest flower in Citherea's field,
 Cropt from the pleasures of the fruitfull earth,
 And strangely metamorphis'd Nun.
Lod. But say, What was she? 625
Math. Why, the rich Iewes daughter.
Lod. What, Barabas, whose goods were lately seiz'd?
 Is she so faire?
Math. And matchlesse beautifull;
 As had you seene her 'twould haue mou'd your heart, 630
 Tho countermin'd with walls of brasse, to loue
 Or at the least to pittie.
Lod. And if she be so faire as you report,
 'Twere time well spent to goe and visit her:
 How say you, shall we? 635
Math. I must and will, Sir, there's no remedy.
Lod. And so will I too, or it shall goe hard.

Actus Secundus.Enter Barabas with a light.

Bar. Thus like the sad presaging Rauen that tolls 640
 The sicke mans passeport in her hollow beake,
 And in the shadow of the silent night
 Doth shake contagion from her sable wings ;
 Vex'd and tormented runnes poore Barabas
 With fatall curses towards these Christians. 645
 The incertaine pleasures of swift-footed time
 Haue tane their flight, and left me in despaire ;
 And of my former riches rests no more
 But bare remembrance ; like a souldiers skarre,
 That has no further comfort for his maime. 650
 Oh thou that with a fiery piller led'st
 The sonnes of Israel through the dismall shades,
 Light Abrahams off-spring ; and direct the hand
 Of Abigall this night ; or let the day
 Turne to eternall darkenesse after this : 655
 No sleepe can fasten on my watchfull eyes,
 Nor quiet enter my distemper'd thoughts,
 Till I haue answer of my Abigall.

Enter Abigall aboue.

Abig. Now haue I happily espy'd a time
 To search the plancke my father did appoint ; 660
 And here behold (vnseene) where I haue found
 The gold, the perles, and Iewels which he hid.

Bar. Now I remember those old womens words,
 Who in my wealth wud tell me winters tales,
 And speake of spirits and ghosts that glide by night 665
 About the place where Treasure hath bin hid :
 And now me thinkes that I am one of those :
 For whilst I liue, here liues my soules sole hope,
 And when I dye, here shall my spirit walke.

Abig. Now that my fathers fortune were so good 670
 As but to be about this happy place ;
 'Tis not so happy : yet when we parted last,
 He said he wud attend me in the morne.
 Then, gentle sleepe, where e're his bodie rests,
 Give charge to Morpheus that he may dreame 675

But stay, what starre shines yonder in the East ? 680

The Loadstarre of my life, if Abigall.

Who's there ?

Abig. Who's that ?

Bar. Peace, Abigal, 'tis I.

Abig. Then father here receiue thy happinesse. 685

Bar. Hast thou't ? Throwes downe bags.

Abig. Here, Hast thou't ? There's more, and more, and more.

Bar. Oh my girle,
My gold, my fortune, my felicity ;
Strength to my soule, death to mine enemy ; 690

Welcome the first beginner of my blisse :

Oh A(b)igal, Abigal, that I had thee here too,

Then my desires were fully satisfied,

But I will practise thy enlargement thence :

Oh girle, oh gold, oh beauty, oh my blisse ! 695

Hugs his bags.

Abig. Father, it draweth towards midnight now,

And 'bout this time the Nuns begin to wake ;

To shun suspection, therefore, let vs part.

Bar. Farewell my ioy, and by my fingers take
A kisse from him that sends it from his soule. 700

Now Phæbus ope the eye-lids of the day,

And for the Rauen wake the morning Larke,

That I may houer with her in the Ayre,

Singing ore these, as she does ore her young.

 And so am I, Delbosco is my name ;
 Vizadmirall vnto the Catholike King.

1. Kni. 'Tis true, my Lord, therefore intreat him well.

Bosc. Our fraught is Grecians, Turks, and Africk Moores.
 For late vpon the coast of Corsica, 715
 Because we vail'd not to the Turkish Fleet,
 Their creeping Gallies had vs in the chase :
 But suddenly the wind began to rise,
 And then we luff'd, and tack'd, and fought at ease :
 Some haue we fir'd, and many haue we sunke ; 720
 But one amongst the rest became our prize :
 The Captain's slaine, the rest remaine our slaues,
 Of whom we would make sale in Malta here.

Gov. Martin del Bosco, I haue heard of thee ;
 Welcome to Malta, and to all of vs ; 725
 But to admit a sale of these thy Turkes
 We may not, nay we dare not giue consent
 By reason of a Tributary league.

1. Kni. Delbosco, as thou louest and honour'st vs,
 Perswade our Gouvernor against the Turke ; 730
 This truce we haue is but in hope of gold,
 And with that summe he craues might we wage warre.

Bosc. Will Knights of Malta be in league with Turkes,
 And buy it basely too for summes of gold ?
 My Lord, remember that to Europ's shame, 735
 The Christian Ile of Rhodes, from whence you came,
 Was lately lost, and you were stated here
 To be at deadly enmity with Turkes.

Gov. Captaine we know it, but our force is small.

Bosc. What is the summe that Calymath requires ? 740

Gov. A hundred thousand Crownes.

Bosc. My Lord and King hath title to this Isle,
 And he meanes quickly to expell you hence ;
 Therefore be rul'd by me, and keepe the gold :
 I'll write unto his Maiesty for ayd, 745
 And not depart vntill I see you free.

Gov. On this condition shall thy Turkes be sold.

Bosc. So shall you imitate those you succeed:
For when their hideous force inuiron'd Rhodes,
Small though the number was that kept the Towne,
They fought it out, and not a man suruiu'd 755
To bring the haplesse newes to Christendome.

Gov. So will we fight it out; come, let's away:
Proud-daring Calymath, instead of gold,
Wee'll send thee bullets wrapt in smoake and fire:
Claime tribute where thou wilt, we are resolu'd, 760
Honor is bought with bloud and not with gold.

Enter Officers with slaues.

Feare not their sale, for they'll be quickly bought.

And so much must they yeeld or not be sold. Ent. Bar.

He 'de giue vs present mony for them all. 767

Enter Barabas.

Bar. In spite of these swine-eating Christians, (Vnchosen Nation, neuer circumciz'd;
Such as, poore villaines, were ne're thought vpon 770
Till Titus and Vespasian conquer'd vs,)

Am I become as wealthy as I was:
They hop'd my daughter would ha bin a Nun;
But she's at home, and I haue bought a house
As great and faire as is the Gouernors; 775
And there in spite of Malta will I dwell:

Hauing Ferneses hand, whose heart I'le haue;
I, and his sonnes too, or it shall goe hard.
I am not of the Tribe of Levy, I,
That can so soone forget an iniury. 780

We Iewes can fawne like Spaniels when we please;
And when we grin we bite, yet are our lookes

 Euen for charity I may spit intoo't. 790
 Here comes Don Lodowicke the Gouvernor's sonne,
 One that I loue for his good fathers sake.

Enter Lodowicke.

Lod. I heare the wealthy Iew walked this way ;
 I'll seeke him out, and so insinuate,
 That I may haue a sight of Abigall ; 795
 For Don Mathias tels me she is faire.

 Then the Doue ; that is, more knaue than foole.

Lod. Yond walks the Iew, now for faire Abigall.

Bar. I, I, no doubt but shee's at your command. 800

Lod. Barabas, thou know'st I am the Gouvernors sonne.

Bar. I wud you were his father too, Sir, that's al the harm
 I wish you : the slaue looks like a hogs cheek new sindg'd.

Lod. Whither walk'st thou, Barobas ?

Bar. No further : 'tis a custome held with vs, 805
 That when we speake with Gentiles like to you,
 We turne into the Ayre to purge our selues :
 For vnto vs the Promise doth belong.

Lod. Well, Barabas, canst helpe me to a Diamond ?

Bar. Oh, Sir, your father had my Diamonds. 810
 Yet I haue one left that will serve your turne :—
 I meane my daughter : but e're he shall haue her
 I'll sacrifice her on a pile of wood.

I ha the poyson of the City for him,

And the white leprosie. Aside.

Lod. What sparkle does it give without a foile ? 816

Bar. The Diamond that I talke of, ne'r was foild :—

But when he touches it, it will be foild :—

Lord Lodowicke, it sparkles bright and faire.

You'll like it better farre a nights than dayes. Aside.

Lod. And what's the price ?

Bar. Your life and if you haue it.—Oh my Lord
We will not iarre about the price ; come to my house
And I will giu't your honour—with a vengeance. Aside.

Lod. No, Barabas, I will deserue it first. 831

Bar. Good Sir,

Your father has deseru'd it at my hands,
Who of meere charity and Christian ruth,
To bring me to religious purity, 835
And as it were in Catechising sort,
To make me mindfull of my mortall sinnes,
Against my will, and whether I would or no,
Seiz'd all I had, and thrust me out a doores,
And made my house a place for Nuns most chast. 840

Lod. No doubt your soule shall reape the fruit of it.

Bar. I, but my Lord, the haruest is farre off :
And yet I know the prayers of those Nuns
And holy Fryers, hauing mony for their paines,
Are wondrous ; and indeed doe no man good : Aside.
And seeing they are not idle, but still doing, 846
'Tis likely they in time may reape some fruit,
I meane in fulnesse of perfection.

Lod. Good Barabas glance not at our holy Nuns.

Bar. No, but I doe it through a burning zeale, 850

For though they doe a while increase and multiply, Aside.
I'll haue a saying to that Nunnery.

Bar. What, can he steale that you demand so much ?
Belike he has some new tricke for a purse ; 865
And if he has, he is worth 300 plats.

So that, being bought, the Towne-seale might be got
To keepe him for his life time from the gallowes.

The Sessions day is criticall to theeues,
And few or none scape but by being purg'd. 870

Lod. Ratest thou this Moore but at 200 plats ?

Bar. Why should this Turke be dearer then that Moore ?

Off. Because he is young and has more qualities.

Bar. What, hast the Philosophers stone ? and thou hast, breake my head with it, I'll forgiue thee. 876

Slave. No Sir, I can cut and shaue.

Bar. Let me see, sirra, are you not an old shauer ?

Lest she mistrust the match that is in hand : 912
When you haue brought her home, come to my house ;
Thinke of me as thy father ; Sonne, farewell.

Math. But wherefore talk'd Don Lodowick with you ?

Bar. Tush man, we talk'd of Diamonds, not of Abigal.

Mater. Tell me, Mathias, is not that the Iew ? 917

Bar. As for the Comment on the Machabees
I haue it, Sir, and 'tis at your command.

Math. Yes, Madam, and my talke with him was 920
About the borrowing of a booke or two.

Mater. Conuerse not with him, he is cast off from heauen.

Bar. As for my selfe, I walke abroad a nights
And kill sicke people groaning under walls : 940

Sometimes I goe about and poyson wells ;

And now and then, to cherish Christian theeves,

I am content to lose some of my Crownes ;

That I may, walking in my Gallery,

See 'em goe pinion'd along by my doore. 945

Being young, I studied Physicke, and began

To practise first vpon the Italian ;

There I enric(h)'d the Priests with burials,

And alwayes kept the Sexton's armes in vre

With digging graues and ringing dead mens knels : 950

And after that was I an Engineere,

And in the warres 'twixt France and Germanie,

Vnder pretence of helping Charles the fifth,

Slew friend and enemy with my stratagemes.

Then after that was I an Vsurer, 955

And with extorting, cozening, forfeiting,

And tricks belonging vnto Brokery,

I fill'd the Ialles with Bankrouts in a yeare,

And with young Orphans planted Hospitals,

And euery Moone made some or other mad, 960

And now and then one hang himselfe for grieffe,

Pinning vpon his breast a long great Scrowle

How I with interest tormented him.

But marke how I am blest for plaguing them,

I haue as much coyne as will buy the Towne. 965

But tell me now, how hast thou spent thy time ?

Ithi. Faith, Master,

In setting Christian villages on fire,

Chaining of Eunuches, binding gally-slaues.

One time I was an Hostler in an Inne, 970

And in the night time secretly would I steale

To trauellers Chambers, and there cut their throats :

Once at Ierusalem, where the pilgrims kneel'd,

I strowed powder on the Marble stones,

And therewithall their knees would ranckle, so 975

That I haue laugh'd agood to see the cripples

Goe limping home to Christendome on stilts.

Enter Lodowicke.

Lod. Oh Barabas well met ;
Where is the Diamond you told me of ?

Bar. I haue it for you, Sir ; please you walke in with me :
What, ho, Abigall ; open the doore I say. 986

Enter Abigall.

Abig. In good time, father, here are letters come
From Ormus, and the Post stayes here within.

Bar. Giue me the letters, daughter, doe you heare ?
Entertaine Lodowicke the Gouernors sonne 990
With all the curtesie you can afford ;
Prouided, that you keepe your Maiden-head.

He is not of the seed of Abraham. 995

I am a little busie, Sir, pray pardon me.

Abigall, bid him welcome for my sake.

Abig. For your sake and his own he's welcome hither.

Bar. Daughter, a word more ; kisse him, speake him faire,

And like a cunning Iew so cast about, 1000
That ye be both made sure e're you come out.

Abig. Oh father, Don Mathias is my loue.

Bar. I know it : yet I say make loue to him ;
Doe, it is requisite it should be so.

Nay on my life it is my Factors hand, 1005
But goe you in, I'll thinke vpon the account :—
The account is made, for Lodowicke dyes.

Math. Whither but to my faire loue Abigall ?

Bar. Thou know'st, and heauen can witnesse it is true,
 That I intend my daughter shall be thine. 1019

Math. I, Barabas, or else thou wrong'st me much.

Bar. Oh, heauen forbid I should haue such a thought.

 Will, whether I will or no, haue Abigall :
 He sends her letters, bracelets, jewels, rings.

Math. Does she receiue them ? 1025

Bar. Shee ? No, Mathias, no, but sends them backe,
 And when he comes, she lockes her selfe vp fast ;
 Yet through the key-hole will he talke to her,
 While she runs to the window looking out
 When you should come and hale him from the doore.

Math. Oh treacherous Lodowicke ! 1031

 And I am sure he is with Abigall.

Math. I'll rouse him thence.

Bar. Not for all Malta, therefore sheath your sword ;
 If you loue me, no quarrels in my house ; 1036
 But steale you in, and seeme to see him not ;
 I'll giue him such a warning e're he goes
 As he shall haue small hopes of Abigall.

Enter Lodowicke, Abigall.

Math. What, hand in hand, I cannot suffer this.

Bar. Mathias, as thou lou'st me, not a word.

Math. Well, let it passe, another time shall serue. Exit.

Lod. Barabas, is not that the widowes sonne ? 1044

Abig. He has my heart, I smile against my will.

Lod. Barabas, thou know'st I haue lou'd thy daughter

Bar. And so has she done you, euen from a child.

Lod. And now I can no longer hold my minde. 1055

Bar. Nor I the affection that I beare to you.

Lod. This is thy Diamond, tell me, shall I haue it?

Bar. Win it, and weare it, it is yet vnsoyl'd.

Oh but I know your Lordship wud disdain

To marry with the daughter of a Jew: 1060

And yet I'll giue her many a golden crosse

With Christian posies round about the ring.

Lod. 'Tis not thy wealth, but her that I esteeme,
Yet craue I thy consent.

Bar. And mine you haue, yet let me talke to her;—

Abig. What shall I be betroth'd to Lodowicke?

Bar. It's no sinne to deceiue a Christian;

For they themselues hold it a principle, 1075

Faith is not to be held with Heretickes;

But all are Hereticks that are not Iewes;

This followes well, and therefore daughter feare not.—

I haue intreated her, and she will grant.

Trouble her not, sweet Lodowicke depart :

Shee is thy wife, and thou shalt be mine heire.

Lod. Oh, is't the custome, then I am resolu'd :

But rathe(r) let the brightsome heauens be dim, 1095

Be made an accessary of your deeds ;

Reuenge it on him when you meet him next.

Math. For this I'le haue his heart.

Bar. Doe so ; loe here I giue thee Abigall.

Abig. Then were my thoughts so fraile & vnconfirm'd,
 And I was chain'd to follies of the world :
 But now experience, purchased with griefe,
 Has made me see the difference of things. 1285
 My sinfull soule, alas, hath pac'd too long
 The fatall Labyrinth of misbeleefe,
 Farre from the Sonne that giues eternall life.

Fry. Who taught thee this ?

Abig. The Abbasse of the house, 1290
 Whose zealous admonition I embrace :
 Oh therefore, Iacomì, let me be one,
 Although unworthy of that Sister-hood.

Fry. Abigal I will, but see thou change no more,
 For that will be most heauy to thy soule. 1295

Abig. That was my father's fault.

Abig. My duty waits on you. Exeunt.

Enter Barabas reading a letter.

Bar. What, Abigall become a Nunne againe?
False, and vnkinde; what, hast thou lost thy father?
And all vnknowne, and vnconstrain'd of me, 1305
Art thou againe got to the Nunnery?
Now here she writes, and wils me to repent.
Repentance? Spurca: what pretendeth this?
I feare she knowes ('tis so) of my deuice
In Don Mathias and Lodovicoes deaths: 1310
If so, 'tis time that it be seene into:
For she that varies from me in beleefe
Giues great presumption that she loues me not;
Or louing, doth dislike of something done.
But who comes here? Oh Ithimore come neere; 1315
Come neere, my loue, come neere thy masters life,
My trusty seruant, nay, my second self;
For I haue now no hope but euen in thee;
And on that hope my happinesse is built:
When saw'st thou Abigall? 1320

Ith. To day.

Bar. With whom?

Ith. A Fryar.

Bar. A Fryar? false villaine, he hath done the deed.

Ith. How, Sir? 1325

Bar. Why made mine Abigall a Nunne.

Ith. That's no lye, for she sent me for him.

Bar. Oh vnhappy day,
False, credulous, inconstant Abigall!
But let 'em goe: And Ithimore, from hence 1330
Ne're shall she grieue me more with her disgrace;
Ne're shall she liue to inherit ought of mine,
Be blest of me, nor come within my gates,
But perish vnderneath my bitter curse

Ith. Who I, master ? Why I'll run to some rocke
And throw my selfe headlong into the sea ;
Why I'll doe any thing for your sweet sake.

Bar. Oh trusty Ithimore ; no seruant, but my friend ;
I here adopt thee for mine onely heire, 1345
All that I haue is thine when I am dead,
And whilst I liue vse halfe ; spend as my selfe ;
Here take my keyes, I'll giue 'em thee anon :

deuill had need of a long spoone. I haue brought you a Ladle.

Bar. Very well, Ithimore, then now be secret,
And for thy sake, whom I so dearely loue,
Now shalt thou see the death of Abigail, 1365
That thou mayst freely liue to be my heire.

Enter Govern. Bosco. Knights. Bashaw.

Gov. Welcome, great Bashaws, how fares Callymath, 1420
What wind drives you thus into Malta rhode ?

Bash. The wind that bloweth all the world besides,
Desire of gold.

Gov. Desire of gold, great Sir ?

That's to be gotten in the Westerne Inde : 1425
In Malta are no golden Minerals.

Bash. To you of Malta thus saith Calymath :
The time you tooke for respite, is at hand,
For the performance of your promise past ;
And for the Tribute-mony I am sent. 1430

Gov. Bashaw, in briefe, shalt haue no tribute here,
Nor shall the Heathens liue vpon our spoyle :
First will we race the City wals our selues,
Lay waste the Iland, hew the Temples downe,
And shipping of our goods to Sicily, 1435

You shall not need trouble your selues so farre,
For Selim-Calymath shall come himselfe,

Abig. I sent for him, but seeing you are come
 Be you my ghostly father; and first know,
 That in this house I liu'd religiously,
 Chast, and deuout, much sorrowing for my sinnes, 1470
 But e're I came—

2. Fry. What then ?

Abig. I did offend high heauen so grievously,
 As I am almost desperate for my sinnes :
 And one offence torments me more then all. 1475
 You knew Mathias and Don Lodowicke ?

2. Fry. Yes, what of them ?

Abig. My father did contract me to 'em both :
 First to Don Lodowicke, him I neuer lou'd ;
Mathias was the man that I held deare, 1480
 And for his sake did I become a Nunne.

2. Fry. So, say how was their end ?

Abig. Both ielous of my loue, enuied each other :
 And by my father's practice, which is there
 Set downe at large, the Gallants were both slaine. 1485

Pil. Not a wise word, only gaue me a nod, as who shold say, Is it euen so; and so I left him, being driuen to a Non-plus at the critical aspect of my terrible countenance. 1730

Curt. And where didst meet him?

Pil. Vpon mine owne free-hold within 40 foot of the Gallowes, conning his neck-verse I take it, looking of a Fryars Execution, whom I saluted with an old hempen prouerb, Hodie tibi, cras mihi, and so I left him to the mercy of the Hangman: but the Exercise being done, see where he comes. 1737

Enter Ithimore.

Ith. I neuer knew a man take his death so patiently as this Fryar; he was ready to leape off e're the halter was about his necke; and when the Hangman had put on his Hempen Tippet, he made such haste to his prayers, as if hee had had another Cure to serue; well, goe whither he will, I'll be none of his followers in haste: And now I thinke on't, going to the execution, a fellow met me with a muschatoes like a Rauens wing, and a Dagger with a hilt like a warming-pan, and he gaue me a letter from one Madam Bellamira, saluting me in such sort as if he had meant to make cleane my Boots with his lips; the effect was, that I should come to her house. I wonder what the reason is. It may be she sees more in me than I can find in my selfe: for she writes further, that she loues me euer since she saw me, and who would not requite such loue? here's her house, and here she comes, and now would I were gone, I am not worthy to looke vpon her.

Pilia. This is the Gentleman you writ to. 1755

Ith. Gentleman, he flouts me, what gentry can be in a poore Turke of ten pence? I'll be gone.

Curt. Is't not a sweet fac'd youth, Pilia?

Ith. Agen, sweet youth; did not you, Sir, bring the sweet youth a letter? 1760

Pilia. I did Sir, and from this Gentlewoman, who as my selfe, & the rest of the family, stand or fall at your seruice.

Curt. Though womans modesty should hale me backe, I can with-hold no longer; welcome sweet loue. 1765

Ith. Now am I cleane, or rather fouly out of the way.

Curt. Whither so soone?

Ith. I'll goe steale some mony from my Master to make me handsome: Pray pardon me, I must goe see a ship discharg'd. 1770

Curt. Canst thou be so vnkind to leaue me thus?

Pilia. And ye did but know how she loues you, Sir.

Ith. Nay, I care not how much she loues me; Sweet Allamira, would I had my Masters wealth for thy sake.

Pilia. And you can haue it, Sir, and if you please. 1775

Ith. If 'twere aboue ground I could, and would haue it; But hee hides and buries it vp as Partridges doe their egges, vnder the earth.

Pil. And is't not possible to find it out?

Ith. By no means possible. 1780

Curt. What shall we doe with this base villaine then?
(Aside to Pilia Borza.)

Pil. Let me alone, doe but you speake him faire:

But you know some secrets of the Jew,
Which if they were reueal'd, would doe him harme: 1784

Ith. I, and such as—Goe to, no more, I'll make him send me half he has, & glad he escapes so too. Pen and Inke: I'll write vnto him, we'll haue mony strait.

Pil. Send for a hundred Crownes at least.

Ith. How now ? hast thou the gold ?

Pil. Yes.

Ith. But came it freely, did the Cow giue down her milk freely ? 1821

Pil. At reading of the letter, he star'd & stamp'd, & turnd aside. I tooke him by the beard, and look'd vpon him thus ; told him he were best to send it. Then he hug'd & imbrac'd me. 1825

And since by wrong thou got'st Authority,
 Maintaine it brauely by firme policy,
 At least vnprofitably lose it not :
 For he that liueth in Authority,
 And neither gets him friends, nor fills his bags, 2140
 Liues like the Asse that *Æsop*e speaketh of,
 That labours with a load of bread and wine,
 And leaues it off to snap on Thistle tops :
 But Barabas will be more circumspect.
 Begin betimes, Occasion's bald behind, 2145
 Slip not thine oportunitie, for feare too late
 Thou seek'st for much, but canst not compasse it.
 Within here.

Enter Gouvernor with a guard.

Gov. My Lord ?

Bar. I, Lord, thus slaues will learne. 2150
 Now Gouvernor—stand by there, wait within.

(Exeunt Guard.)

This is the reason that I sent for thee ;
 Thou seest thy life, and Malta's happinesse,
 Are at my Arbitrament ; and Barabas
 At his discretion may dispose of both : 2155
 Now tell me, Gouvernor, and plainely too,
 What thinkst thou shall become of it and thee ?

Gov. This ; Barabas, since things are in thy power,
 I see no reason but of Malta's wracke,
 Nor hope of thee but extreme cruelty, 2160
 Nor feare I death, nor will I flatter thee.

Bar. Gouvernor, good words, be not so furious ;
 'Tis not thy life which can auaille me ought,
 Yet you doe liue, and liue for me you shall :
 And as for Malta's ruine, thinke you not 2165
 'Twere slender policy for Barabas
 To dispossesse himselfe of such a place ?
 For sith, as once you said, within this Ile
 In Malta here, that I haue got my goods,
 And in this City still haue had successe, 2170
 And now at length am growne your Governor,
 Your selues shall see it shall not be forgot :
 For as a friend not knowne, but in distresse,
 I'll reare vp Malta now remedillesse.

A dissolution of the slauish Bands
Wherein the Turke hath yoak'd your land and you ?
What will you giue me if I render you 2180
The life of Calymath, surprize his men,
And in an out-house of the City shut
His souldiers, till I haue consum'd 'em all with fire ?
What will you giue him that procureth this ?

Gov. Doe but bring this to passe which thou pretendest,
Deale truly with vs as thou intimatest, 2186
And I will send amongst the Citizens
And by my letters priuately procure
Great summes of mony for thy recompence :
Nay more, doe this, and liue thou Gouernor still. 2190

Bar. Nay, doe thou this, Ferneze, and be free ;
Gouernor, I enlarge thee, liue with me,
Goe walke about the City, see thy friends :
Tush, send not letters to 'em, goe thy selfe,
And let me see what mony thou canst make ; 2195
Here is my hand that I'll set Malta free :
And thus we cast it : To a solemne feast
I will inuite young Selim-Calymath,
Where be thou present onely to performe
One stratagem that I'll impart to thee, 2200
Wherein no danger shall betide thy life,
And I will warrant Malta free for euer.

Gov. Here is my hand, beleeeue me, Barabas,
I will be there, and doe as thou desirest ;
When is the time ? 2205

Bar. Gouernor, presently.
For Callymath, when he hath view'd the Towne,
Will take his leaue and saile toward Ottoman.

Gov. Then will I, Barabas, about this coyne,
And bring it with me to thee in the euening. 2210

Bar. Doe so, but faile not ; now farewell Ferneze :
And thus farre roundly goes the businesse :

Exit.

Enter Calymath, Bashawes.

Caly. Thus haue we view'd the City, seene the sacke,
 And caus'd the ruines to be new repair'd,
 Which with our Bombards shot and Basiliske,
 We rent in sunder at our entry :
 And now I see the Scituation, 2230
 And how secure this conquer'd Iland stands
 Inuiron'd with the mediterranean Sea,
 Strong contermin'd with other petty Iles ;
 And toward Calabria, back'd by Sicily,
 Where Siracusian Dionisius reign'd, 2235
 Two lofty Turrets that command the Towne.
 I wonder how it could be conquer'd thus ?

Enter a messenger.

Mess. From Barabas, Malta's Gouvernor, I bring
 A message vnto mighty Calymath ;
 Hearing his Soueraigne was bound for Sea, 2240
 To saile to Turkey, to great Ottamon,
 He humbly would intreat your Maiesty
 To come and see his homely Citadell,
 And banquet with him e're thou leau'st the Ile.

Caly. To banquet with him in his Citadell ? 2245
 I feare me, Messenger, to feast my traine
 Within a Towne of warre so lately pillag'd,
 Will be too costly and too troublesome :
 Yet would I gladly visit Barabas,
 For well has Barabas deseru'd of vs. 2250

Mess. Selim, for that, thus saith the Gouvernor,

 Not to depart till he has feasted you.

Caly. I cannot feast my men in Malta wals,
 Except he place his Tables in the streets. 2260

Mess. Know, Selim, that there is a monastery
 Which standeth as an out-house to the Towne ;
 There will he banquet them, but thee at home,
 With all thy Bashawes and braue followers.

Caly. Well, tell the Gouvernor we grant his suit, 2265
 Wee'll in this Summer Euening feast with him.

Mess. I shall, my Lord. Exit.

Caly. And now, bold Bashawes, let vs to our Tents,
 And meditate how we may grace vs best
 To solemnize our Gouvernors great feast. Exeunt.

Enter Gouvernor, Knights, Del-bosco.

Gov. In this, my Countrimen, be' rul'd by me, 2271
 Haue speciall care that no man sally forth
 Till you shall heare a Culuerin discharg'd

 Then issue out and come to rescue me, 2275
 For happily I shall be in distresse,
 Or you released of this seruitude.

Kni. Rather then thus to liue as Turkish thrals,
 What will we not aduenture ?

Gov. On then, begone. 2280

Kni: Farewell graue Gouvernor.

That thou wilt come, and I am satisfied.

Now sirra, what, will he come ? 2295

Enter Messenger.

Mess. He will ; and has commanded all his men
To come ashore, and march through Malta streets,
That thou maist feast them in thy Citadell.

Bar. Then now are all things as my wish wud haue 'em,
There wanteth nothing but the Gouvernors pelfe, 2300
And see he brings it :

Now, Gouvernor, the summe.

Enter Gouvernour.

Gou. With free consent a hundred thousand pounds.

Bar. Pounds saist thou, Gouvernor ? wel since it is no

I'll satisfie my selfe with that ; nay, keepe it still, 2305

For if I keepe not promise, trust not me.

And Gouvernour, now partake my policy :

First, for his Army, they are sent before,

Enter'd the Monastery, and vnderneath

In seuerall places are field-pieces pitch'd, 2310

Bombards, whole Barrels full of Gunpowder,

That on the sudden shall disseuer it,

And batter all the stones about their eares,

Whence none can possibly escape aliue :

Now as for Calymath and his consorts, 2315

Here haue I made a dainty Gallery,

The floore whereof, this Cable being cut,

Doth fall asunder ; so that it doth sinke

Into a deepe pit past recouery.

Here, hold that knife, and when thou seest he comes,

Bar. No, Gouvernor, I'le satisfie thee first,
Thou shalt not live in doubt of any thing.
Stand close, for here they come : why, is not this
A kingly kinde of trade to purchase Townes 2330
By treachery, and sell 'em by deceit ?
Now tell me, worldlings, vnderneath the sunne,
If greater falshood euer has bin done.

Enter Calymath and Bashawes.

Caly. Come, my Companion-Bashawes, see I pray
How busie Barrabas is there aboute 2335
To entertaine vs in his Gallery ;
Let vs salute him. Saue thee, Barabas.

Bar. Welcome great Calymath.

Gov. How the slaue jeeres at him ?

Bar. Will't please thee, mighty Selim-Calymath, 2340

Caly. I, Barabas, come Bashawes, attend.

Gov. Stay, Calymath ;

Gov. No, Selim, doe not flye ;

See his end first, and flye then if thou canst.

Bar. Oh helpe me, Selim, helpe me, Christians.

Then Barabas breath forth thy latest fate,

I fram'd the challenge that did make them meet :

2365

And had I but escap'd this stratagem,

EDWARD II

Date. Edward II is generally agreed to be the maturest and, with the possible exception of the Massacre at Paris, the latest of Marlowe's plays. There is, however, very little external evidence by which to determine the precise year of composition. Henslowe makes no mention of the acting of this piece, as it was in the possession of a rival company—the Earl of Pembroke's—to which we may conclude that Marlowe transferred his services after the completion of the Jew of Malta (? 1590), the latter play having been certainly, like its predecessors, Tamburlaine and Doctor Faustus, one of Henslowe's repertoire.¹

On July 6, 1593, one month after Marlowe's death, William Jones registered the play under the following designation: 'A booke Intituled The troublesom Reign and Lamentable Death of EDWARD the SECOND, king of England, with the tragicall fall of proud MORTYMER.' As the editions of Jones, the earliest of which probably belongs to 1593,² declare on the title-page that the play had been 'sondry times publiquely acted in the honorable Cittie of London, By the right honorable the Earle of Pembroke his Seruants,'³ we must assume, what in any case would be probable, that the tragedy had been known on the stage for a considerable time before it came into the hands of the printer. The year 1591, or the early part of 1592, seems then the most likely date for the completion of Edward II and its first theatrical presentation.

Editions. Edward II survives in quarto editions, dated 1594, 1598, 1612, 1622, the first two having been published by William Jones. I have elsewhere⁴ given my reasons

¹ If the Massacre at Paris is later than Edward II, the poet would seem to have renewed his connexion with Henslowe, for the Diary records the acting of the former tragedy as a 'new play' on January 30, 1593.

² Cf. infra.

³ Quoted from the MS. title-page of ed. ?1593. The statement is repeated on the title-pages of 1594, 1598, and 1612.

⁴ Cf. Modern Language Notes, March, 1909.

for believing that Jones had already, before the end of the year 1593, issued a version of the play, of which no copy is now known to exist. An eighteenth-century manuscript in the South Kensington Museum purports, however, to reproduce the title-page and the first seventy lines of this edition. The quarto of 1594 has itself been known only during the last two generations, and its text, superior in a great many details to that of 1598, is here for the first time reprinted. Two copies of this 1594 edition have so far been discovered, of which my text follows that preserved in the Landesbibliothek of Cassel, Germany.

Concerning the stage history of Edward II there appears to be no information except that given on the title-pages of the early editions, namely, that the play was acted by the Earl of Pembroke's men, and, as we learn from the edition of 1622, that it was revived 'by the late Queenes Maiesties Seruants at the Red Bull in S. Johns streete'.¹ Henslowe's Diary makes casual mention of two lost plays, which may or may not have borne some relation to ours. In March, 1588/9 he notes the payment of £6 to the dramatists Chettle and Porter for a work called 'the Spencers', and in September, 1602, he expends £6 18s. on properties for the 'playe of mortymore'.

Text. Marlowe's authorship of Edward II is stated on all the early title-pages and has never been questioned. Publication followed so close on composition in the case of this play that there is no reason to suspect the presence of alien matter, and the text is probably purer than that of any other of Marlowe's dramatic works, though small printers' errors are common enough in the last three editions. As the best preserved of the poet's tragedies, and much the most perfect in all matters of technical skill; as the first considerable history play in the English language; and as the textbook from which Shakespeare undoubtedly learned many lessons of dramatic art, later to be used in Richard II and in Henry IV, this play of Edward II makes a special appeal to the student of dramatic evolution. It is no injustice to these high merits to add that many lovers of Marlowe will turn rather less often to Edward II than to Tamburlaine, Doctor Faustus, or Hero and Leander. To the very end there appears in Marlowe's writing no sign of league or compromise between the hostile forces of lyric and dramatic inspiration. In the earlier plays dramatic fitness is often sacrificed to the craving for poetic self-expression. In Edward II the attention to stage requirements and dramatic structure tends frequently to banish some of the subtler and sweeter qualities of Marlowe's verse; or if the lyric vein finds here and there an outlet, it bursts forth as unsubdued as ever, throwing off the restrictions of dramatic propriety and launching into declamation as eloquent and as uncritical as that of Tamburlaine itself. In his last great tragedy Marlowe shows no more than in his first an ability to fuse these two main elements of dramatic poetry. The incapacity to do so is doubtless fundamental, and it explains better than anything else why Marlowe's genius could never have developed as that of Shakespeare did.

Source. The main source of Edward II is Holinshed's Chronicle, from which Marlowe has selected the material for his tragedy with the imaginative freedom characteristic of Shakespeare's use of the same historian. Chronological accuracy is not attempted, but the true meaning of history is faithfully represented. The Scottish jig (ll. 990-997) is derived from the Chronicles of Fabyan, and one or two other incidents, unrecorded in Holinshed, have been traced to the General Chronicle of John Stowe. The relation of the play to each of these three works has been worked out with some elaborateness by C. Tzschaschel¹ in a Halle dissertation, and the same general results are recorded independently in the introductions to the editions of Tancock and Fleay.

Might haue enforst me to haue swum from France,
 And like Leander gaspt vpon the sande,
 So thou wouldst smile and take me in thy armes.
 The sight of London to my exiled eyes, 10
 Is as Elizium to a new come soule,
 Not that I loue the citie or the men,
 But that it harbors him I hold so deare,
 The king, vpon whose bosome let me die,
 And with the world be still at enmitie : 15
 What neede the artick people loue star-light,
 To whom the sunne shines both by day and night ?
 Farewell base stooping to the lordly peeres,
 My knee shall bowe to none but to the king.
 As for the multitude that are but sparkes, 20
 Rakt vp in embers of their pouertie,
Tanti : Ile faune first on the winde,
 That glaunceth at my lips and flieth away :
 But how now, what are these ?

Enter three poore men.

Poore men. Such as desire your worships seruice. 25
Gauest. What canst thou doe ?
 1. poore. I can ride.
Gauest. But I haue no horses. What art thou ?
 2. poore. A traueller.
Gauest. Let me see, thou wouldst do well 30
 To waite at my trencher, & tell me lies at dinner time,
 And as I like your discoursing, ile haue you.
 And what art thou ?
 3. poore. A souldier, that hath seru'd against the Scot.
Gauest. Why, there are hospitals for such as you, 35
 I haue no warre, and therefore sir be gone.
Sold. Farewell, and perish by a souldiers hand,
 That wouldst reward them with an hospitall.
Gau. I, I, these wordes of his moue me as much,
 As if a Goose should play the Porpentine, 40
 And dart her plumes, thinking to pierce my brest :
 But yet it is no paine to speake men faire,
 Ile flatter these, and make them liue in hope.

Omnes. We will wait heere about the court. Exeunt.

Gauest. Do : these are not men for me, 50

I must haue wanton Poets, pleasant wits,
Musitians, that with touching of a string
May draw the pliant king which way I please:
Musicke and poetrie is his delight,
Therefore ile haue Italian maskes by night, 55
Sweete speeches, comedies, and pleasing shoves,
And in the day when he shall walke abroad,
Like Syluan Nimphes my pages shall be clad,
My men like Satyres grazing on the lawnes,
Shall with their Goate feete daunce an antick hay. 60
Sometime a louelie boye in Dians shape,
With haire that gilds the water as it glides,
Crownets of pearle about his naked armes,
And in his sportfull hands an Oliue tree,
To hide those parts which men delight to see, 65
Shall bathe him in a spring, and there hard by,
One like Actæon peeping through the groue,
Shall by the angrie goddesses be transformde,
And running in the likenes of an Hart,
By yelping hounds puld downe, and seeme to die, 70
Such things as these best please his maiestie,
My lord. Heere comes the king and the nobles
From the parlement, ile stand aside.

Enter the King, Lancaster, Mortimer senior, Mortimer iunior, Edmund Earle of Kent, Guie Earle of Warwicke, &c

Gauest. That villaine Mortimer, ile be his death.

Mor. iu. Mine vnckle heere, this Earle, & I my selfe,
Were sworne to your father at his death,
That he should nere returne into the realme :
And know my lord, ere I will breake my oath, 85
This sword of mine that should offend your foes,
Shall sleepe within the scabberd at thy neede,
And vnderneath thy banners march who will,
For Mortimer will hang his armor vp.

Gauest. Mort dieu. 90

Edw. Well Mortimer, ile make thee rue these words,
Beseemes it thee to contradict thy king ?
Frownst thou thereat, aspiring Lancaster ?
The sworde shall plane the furrowes of thy browes,
And hew these knees that now are growne so stiffe. 95
I will haue Gaueston, and you shall know,
What danger tis to stand against your king.

Gauest. Well doone, Ned.

Lan. My lord, why do you thus incense your peeres,
That naturally would loue and honour you : 100
But for that base and obscure Gaueston,
Foure Earldomes haue I besides Lancaster,
Darbie, Salsburie, Lincolne, Leicester,
These will I sell to giue my souldiers paye,
Ere Gaueston shall stay within the realme, 105
Therefore if he be come, expell him straight.

Edm. Barons & Earls, your pride hath made me mute,
But now ile speake, and to the proofe I hope :
I do remember in my fathers dayes,
Lord Percie of the North being highly mou'd, 110
Brau'd Mowberie in presence of the king,
For which, had not his highnes lou'd him well,
He should haue lost his head, but with his looke,
The vndaunted spirit of Percie was appeasd,
And Mowberie and he were reconcild : 115
Yet dare you braue the king vnto his face.

Mor. iii. I cannot, nor I will not, I must speake,

Cosin, our hands I hope shall fence our heads,

And strike off his that makes you threaten vs.

Come vnckle, let vs leaue the brainsick king, 125

And henceforth parle with our naked swords.

Mor. se. Wilshire hath men enough to saue our heads.

Warw. All Warwickshire will loue him for my sake.

Lanc. And Northward Gaueston hath many friends.

Adew my Lord, and either change your minde, 130

Or looke to see the throne where you should sit,

To floate in bloud, and at thy wanton head,

The glozing head of thy base minion throwne.

Edw. I cannot brooke these hautie menaces :

Am I a king and must be ouer rulde ? 135

Brother displaie my ensignes in the field,

Ile bandie with the Barons and the Earles,

And eyther die, or liue with Gaueston.

Gau. I can no longer keepe me from my lord.

Edw. What Gaueston, welcome : kis not my hand, 140

Embrace me Gaueston as I do thee :

Why shouldst thou kneele, knowest thou not who I am ?

Thy friend, thy selfe, another Gaueston.

Not Hilas was more mourned of Hercules,

Then thou hast beene of me since thy exile. 145

Gau. And since I went from hence, no soule in hell

Hath felt more torment then poore Gaueston.

Edw. I know it, brother welcome home my friend.

Now let the treacherous Mortimers conspire,

And that high minded earle of Lancaster : 150

For one of greater birth then Gaueston.

Edw. Cease brother, for I cannot brooke these words. 160
Thy woorth sweet friend is far aboute my guifts,
Therefore to equall it receiue my hart.

If for these dignities thou be enuied,
Ile giue thee more, for but to honour thee,
Is Edward pleazd with kinglie regiment. 165

Fearst thou thy person ? thou shalt haue a guard :
Wants thou gold ? go to my treasurie,
Wouldst thou be loude and fearde ? receiue my seale,

With captiue kings at his triumphant Carre.

Enter the Bishop of Couentrie.

Edw. Whether goes my Lord of Couentrie so fast ? 175

Bish. To celebrate your fathers exequies,
But is that wicked Gaueston returnd ?

Edw. I priest, and liues to be reuengd on thee,
That wert the onely cause of his exile.

Gaue. Tis true, and but for reuerence of these robes, 180
Thou shouldst not plod one foote beyond this place.

Bish. I did no more then I was bound to do,
And Gaueston vnlesse thou be reclaimd,
As then I did incense the parlement,
So will I now, and thou shalt back to France. 185

Gaue. Sauing your reuerence, you must pardon me.

Edw. Throwe of his golden miter, rend his stole,
And in the channell christen him anew.

Kent. Ah brother, lay not violent hands on him,
For heele complaine vnto the sea of Rome. 190

Gaue. Let him complaine vnto the sea of hell,
Ile be reuengd on him for my exile.

Edw. No, spare his life, but seaze vpon his goods,
Be thou lord bishop, and receiue his rents,
And make him serue thee as thy chaplaine. 195
I giue him thee, here vse him as thou wilt.

Gaue. He shall to prison, and there die in boulds.

Edw. I, to the tower, the fleete, or where thou wilt.

Bish. For this offence be thou accurst of God.

Edw. Whose there ? conueie this priest to the tower. 200

Bish. True, true.

Edw. But in the meane time Gaueston away,
And take possession of his house and goods.

Come follow me, and thou shalt haue my garde,
To see it done, and bring thee safe againe. 205

Gaue. What should a priest do with so faire a house ?
A prison may besee me his holinesse.

Enter both the Mortimers, Warwicke, and Lancaster.

War. Tis true, the Bishop is in the tower,
And goods and body giuen to Gaueston.

Lan. What ? will they tyrannize vpon the Church ? 210
Ah wicked king, accursed Gaueston,
This ground which is corrupted with their steps,
Shall be their timeles sepulcher, or mine.

Mor. iu. Wel, let that peeuish Frenchman guard him sure.
Vnlesse his brest be sword prooue he shall die. 215

Mor. se. How now, why droops the earle of Lancaster ?

Mor. iu. Wherefore is Guy of Warwicke discontent ?

Lan. That villaine Gaueston is made an Earle.

Mortim. sen. An Earle !

War. I, and besides, lord Chamberlaine of the realme, 220
And secretary to, and lord of Man.

Mor. se. We may not, nor we will not suffer this.

Mor. iu. Why post we not from hence to leuie men ?

Lan. My lord of Cornewall now at euery worde,
And happie is the man, whom he vouchsafes 225
For vailing of his bonnet one good looke.

Thus arme in arme, the king and he dooth marche :

Nay more, the garde vpon his lordship waites :

And all the court begins to flatter him.

War. Thus leaning on the shoulder of the king, 230
He nods, and scornes, and smiles at those that passe.

Mor. se. Doth no man take exceptions at the slaue ?

For now my lord the king regardes me not,

But dotes vpon the loue of Gaueston.

He claps his cheekes, and hanges about his neck,
 Smiles in his face, and whispers in his eares,
 And when I come, he frownes, as who should say, 260

Lan. What we confirme the king will frustrate.

Mor. iii. Then may we lawfully reuolt from him. 280

War. But say my lord, where shall this meeting bee?

Bish. At the new temple.

Mor. iii. Content:

And in the meane time ile intreat you all,
To crosse to Lambeth, and there stay with me. 285

Lan. Come then, lets away.

Mor. iii. Madam farewell.

May it please your lordship to subscribe your name.

Bish. Giue me the paper.

Lan. Quick quick my lorde, I long to write my name.

War. But I long more to see him banisht hence. 300

Mor. iii. The name of Mortimer shall fright the king,
Vnlesse he be declinde from that base pesant.

 Proud Rome, that hatchest such imperiall groomes,
 For these thy superstitious taperlights,
 Wherewith thy antichristian churches blaze, 395
 Ile fire thy crased buildings, and enforce
 The papall towers to kisse the lowlie ground,

And yet I loue in vaine, heele nere loue me.
Lan. Feare ye not Madam, now his minions gone, 495
His wanton humor will be quicklie left.
Qu. O neuer, Lancaster ! I am inioynde,
To sue vnto you all for his repeale :
This wils my lord, and this must I performe,

Vnlesse the sea cast vp his shipwrack body.

Theres none here, but would run his horse to death.

Mor. in. But madam, would you haue vs cal him home?

Qu. I Mortimer, for till he be restorde, 506
The angrie king hath banished me the court :
And therefore as thou louest and tendrest me,
Be thou my aduocate vnto these peeres.

Mor. in. What, would ye haue me plead for Gaueston?

Mor. se. Plead for him he that will, I am resolute. 511

Lan. And so am I my lord, diswade the Queene.

Qu. O Lancaster, let him diswade the king,
For tis against my will he should returne.

War. Then speake not for him, let the pesant go. 515

Qu. Tis for my selfe I speake, and not for him.

Pen. No speaking will preuaile, and therefore cease.

Mor. in. Faire Queene forbear to angle for the fish,
Which being caught, strikes him that takes it dead,
I meane that vile Torpedo, Gaueston, 520
That now I hope flotes on the Irish seas.

Qu. Sweete Mortimer, sit downe by me a while,
And I will tell thee reasons of such waighte,
As thou wilt soone subscribe to his repeale.

Mor. in. It is impossible, but speake your minde. 525

Qu. Then thus, but none shal heare it but our selues.

Lanc. My Lords, albeit the Queen winne Mortimer,
Will you be resolute and hold with mè?

Mor. se. Not I against my nephew.

Pen. Feare not, the queens words cannot alter him. 530

War. No, doe but marke how earnestly she pleads.

Lan. And see how coldly his lookes make deniall.

War. She smiles, now for my life his mind is changd.

Lanc. Ile rather loose his friendship I, then graunt.

Mor. in. Well of necessitie it must be so. 535
My Lords, that I abhorre base Gaueston,
I hope your honors make no question,
And therefore though I pleade for his repeall,
Tis not for his sake, but for our auaille :

War. All that he speakes, is nothing, we are resolu'd.

Mor. iu. Do you not wish that Gaueston were dead ?

Pen. I would he were. 550

Mor. iu. Why then my lord, giue me but leaue to speak.

Mor. se. But nephew, do not play the sophister.

Mor. iu. This which I vrge, is of a burning zeale,

To mend the king, and do our countrie good :

Know you not Gaueston hath store of golde, 555

Which may in Ireland purchase him such friends,

As he will front the mightiest of vs all,

And whereas he shall liue and be beloude,

Tis hard for vs to worke his ouerthrow.

War. Marke you but that my lord of Lancaster. 560

Mor. iu. But were he here, detested as he is,

How easilie might some base slaue be subbornd,

To greet his lordship with a poniard,

And none so much as blame the murderer,

But rather praise him for that braue attempt, 565

And in the Chronicle, enrowle his name,

For purging of the realme of such a plague.

Pen. He saith true.

Lan. I, but how chance this was not done before ?

Mor. iu. Because my lords, it was not thought vpon : 570

Nay more, when he shall know it lies in vs,

To banish him, and then to call him home,

Twill make him vaile the topflag of his pride,

And feare to offend the meanest noble man.

Mor. se. But how if he do not, Nephew ? 575

Mor. iu. Then may we with some colour rise in armes,

For howsoeuer we haue borne it out,

Tis treason to be vp against the king.

So shall we haue the people of our side,

Which for his fathers sake leane to the king, 580

And thinke I gaind, hauing bought so deare a friend.
Qu. Harke how he harpes vpon his minion.
Edw. My heart is as an anuill vnto sorrow,
Which beates vpon it like the Cyclops hammers, 610
And with the noise turnes vp my giddie braine,
And makes me frantick for my Gaueston :
Ah had some bloudlesse furie rose from hell,
And with my kinglie scepter stroke me dead,
When I was forst to leaue my Gaueston. 615
Lan. Diablo, what passions call you these ?
Qu. My gracious lord, I come to bring you newes.
Edw. That you haue parled with your Mortimer.
Qu. That Gaueston, my Lord, shalbe repeald.
Edw. Repeald, the newes is too sweet to be true. 620
Qu. But will you loue me, if you finde it so ?
Edw. If it be so, what will not Edward do ?
Qu. For Gaueston, but not for Isabell.
Edw. For thee faire Queene, if thou louest Gaueston,

Ile hang a golden tongue about thy neck,
Seeing thou hast pleaded with so good successe. 625

Qu. No other iewels hang about my neck
Then these my lord, nor let me haue more wealth,
Then I may fetch from this ritch treasurie :
O how a kisse reuiues poore Isabell. 630

Edw. Once more receiue my hand, and let this be,
A second mariage twixt thy selfe and me.

Qu. And may it prooue more happie then the first.
My gentle lord, bespeake these nobles faire,
That waite attendance for a gracious looke, 635
And on their knees salute your maiestie.

Edw. Courageous Lancaster, imbrace thy king,
And as grosse vapours perish by the sunne,
Euen so let hatred with thy soueraignes smile :
Liue thou with me as my companion. 640

Lan. This salutation ouerioyes my heart.

Edw. Warwick shalbe my chiefest counsellor :
These siluer haire will more adorne my court,
Then gaudie silkes, or rich imbrotherie.
Chide me sweete Warwick, if I go astray. 645

War. Slay me my lord, when I offend your grace.

Edw. In sollemne triumphes, and in publike showes,
Penbrooke shall beare the sword before the king.

Pen. And with this sword, Penbrooke wil fight for you.

Edw. But wherefore walkes yong Mortimer aside ? 650
Be thou commaunder of our royall fleete,
Or if that loftie office like thee not,

Lan. Looke for rebellion, looke to be deposde.
 Thy garrisons are beaten out of Fraunce,
 And lame and poore, lie groning at the gates, 965
 The wilde Oneye, with swarmes of Irish Kernes,
 Liues vncontroulde within the English pale,
 Vnto the walles of Yorke the Scots made rode,
 And vnresisted, draue away riche spoiles.

While in the harbor ride thy ships vnrigd. 971

Lan. What forraine prince sends thee embassadors ?

Mor. Who loues thee ? but a sort of flatterers.

Lan. Thy gentle Queene, sole sister to Valoys,
Complaines that thou hast left her all forlorne. 975

Mor. Thy court is naked, being bereft of those,
That makes a king seeme glorious to the world,
I meane the peeres, whom thou shouldst dearly loue :
Libels are cast againe thee in the streete,
Ballads and rimes made of thy ouerthrow. 980

Lan. The Northren borderers seeing the houses burnt,
Their wiues and children slaine, run vp and downe,
Cursing the name of thee and Gaueston.

Mor. When wert thou in the field with banner spread ?
But once, and then thy souldiers marcht like players, 985
With garish robes, not armor, and thy selfe
Bedaubd with golde, rode laughing at the rest,
Nodding and shaking of thy spangled crest,
Where womens fauors hung like labels downe.

Lan. And thereof came it, that the fleeing Scots, 990
To Englands high disgrace, haue made this Iig :

Maids of England, sore may you moorne,
For your lemmons you haue lost at Bannocks borne,
With a heaue and a ho.

What weeneth the king of England, 995
So soone to haue woone Scotland,

With a rombelow.

Mor. Wigmore shall flie, to set my vnckle free.

Lan. And when tis gone, our swordes shall purchase more.

If ye be mou'de, reuenge it as you can, 1000
Looke next to see vs with our ensignes spread.

Exeunt Nobiles.

Edwa. My swelling hart for very anger breakes.

How oft haue I beene baited by these peeres ?

Will be the ruine of the realme and you,
For now the wrathfull nobles threaten warres,
And therefore, brother, banish him for euer.

Edw. Art thou an enemie to my Gaueston?

Kent. I, and it greenes me that I fauoured him. 1015

Edw. Traitor be gone, whine thou with Mortimer.

Kent. So will I, rather then with Gaueston.

Edw. Out of my sight, and trouble me no more.

Kent. No maruell though thou scorne thy noble peeres,
When I thy brother am reiected thus. Exit.

Edw. Away. Poore Gaueston, that hast no friend but me,
Do what they can, wee le liue in Tinmoth here,
And so I walke with him about the walles,
What care I though the Earles begirt vs round?
Heere comes she thats cause of all these iarres. 1025

Enter the Queene, Ladies 3, Baldock, and Spencer.

Qu. My lord, tis thought the Earles are vp in armes.

Edw. I, and tis likewise thought you fauour 'em.

Qu. Thus do you still suspect me without cause.

La. Sweet vnckle speake more kindly to the queene.

Gau. My lord, dissemble with her, speake her faire. 1030

Edw. Pardon me sweet, I forgot my selfe.

Qu. Your pardon is quicklie got of Isabell.

Edw. The yonger Mortimer is growne so braue,
That to my face he threatens ciuill warres.

Gau. Why do you not commit him to the tower? 1035

Edw. I dare not, for the people loue him well.

Gau. Why then wee le haue him priuile made away.

Edw. Would Lancaster and he had both carroust

A bowle of poison to each others health:

But let them go, and tell me what are these. 1040

Lad. Two of my fathers seruants whilst he liu'de,
Mait please your grace to entertaine them now.

Edw. Tell me, where wast thou borne?

What is thine armes?

Bald. My name is Baldock, and my gentrie 1045

Bald. I humblie thanke your maiestie.

Edw. Knowest thou him Gaueston ? 1050

Gau. I my lord,

His name is Spencer, he is well alied.

For my sake let him waite vpon your grace,

Scarce shall you finde a man of more desart.

Edw. Then Spencer waite vpon me, for his sake 1055
Ile grace thee with a higher stile ere long.

Spen. No greater titles happen vnto me,

Then to be fauoured of your maiestie.

Edw. Cosin, this day shalbe your mariage feast,
And Gaueston, thinke that I loue thee well, 1060

To wed thee to our neece, the onely heire

Vnto the Earle of Gloster late deceased.

Gau. I know, my lord, many will stomack me,

But I respect neither their loue nor hate.

Edw. The head-strong Barons shall not limit me. 1065

He that I list to fauour shall be great :

Come lets away, and when the mariage ends,

Haue at the rebels, and their complices.

Exeunt omnes.

Enter Lancaster, Mortimer, Warwick, Penbrooke, Kent.

Kent. My lords, of loue to this our natie land,
I come to ioine with you, and leaue the king, 1070
And in your quarrell and the realmes behoofe,
Will be the first that shall aduenture life.

Lan. I feare me you are sent of pollicie,
To vndermine vs with a shoue of loue.

Warw. He is your brother, therefore haue we cause 1075
To cast the worst, and doubt of your reuolt.

Edm. Mine honor shalbe hostage of my truth,
If that will not suffice, farewell my lords.

Mor. iu. Stay Edmund, neuer was Plantagenet
False of his word, and therefore trust we thee. 1080

Pen. But whats the reason you should leaue him now ?

Kent. I haue enformd the Earle of Lancaster.

Lan. And it sufficeth : now my lords know this,
That Gaueston is secretlie arriude,
And here in Tinmoth frolicks with the king. 1085

And ring aloude the knell of Gaueston. 1095

Lanc. None be so hardie as to touche the King,
But neither spare you Gaueston, nor his friends.

Exeunt.

Enter the king and Spencer, to them Gaueston, &c.

Edw. O tell me Spencer, where is Gaueston ?

Spencer. I feare me he is slaine my gracious lord.

Edw. No, here he comes, now let them spoile and kill :
Flie, flie, my lords, the earles haue got the holde, 1100
Take shipping and away to Scarborough.

Spencer and I will post away by land.

Gau. O stay my lord, they will not iniure you.

Edw. I will not trust them, Gaueston away. 1105

Gau. Farewell my Lord.

Edw. Ladie, farewell.

Lad. Farewell sweete vnckle till we meete againe.

Edw. Farewell sweete Gaueston, and farewell Neece.

Qu. No farewell to poore Isabell, thy Queene ? 1110

Edw. Yes, yes, for Mortimer your louers sake.

Qu. What would you with the king, ist him you seek ?
Lan. No madam, but that cursed Gaueston. 1130
 Farre be it from the thought of Lancaster,
 To offer violence to his soueraigne,
 We would but rid the realme of Gaueston.
 Tell vs where he remaines, and he shall die.

 Come, come aboard, tis but an houres sailing.
Mor. Madam, stay you within this castell here.
Qu. No Mortimer, ile to my lord the king.
Mor. Nay, rather saile with vs to Scarborough. 1150
Qu. You know the king is so suspitious,
 As if he heare I haue but talkt with you,
 Mine honour will be cald in question,
 And therefore gentle Mortimer be gone.
Mor. Madam, I cannot stay to answer you, 1155
 But thinke of Mortimer as he deserues.
Qu. So well hast thou deserv'de sweete Mortimer,

Enter Gaueston pursued.

Gau. Yet lustic lords I haue escapt your handes,
Your threats, your larums, and your hote pursutes,
And though deuorsed from king Edwards eyes, 1170
Yet liueth Pierce of Gaueston vnsurprizd,
Breathing, in hope (malgrado all your beards,
That muster rebels thus against your king)
To see his royall soueraigne once againe.

Enter the Nobles.

War. Vpon him souldiers, take away his weapons. 1175
Mor. Thou proud disturber of thy countries peace,
Corrupter of thy king, cause of these broiles,
Base flatterer, yeeld, and were it not for shame,
Shame and dishonour to a souldiers name,
Vpon my weapons point here shouldst thou fall, 1180
And welter in thy goare.

Lan. Monster of men,
That like the Greekish strumpet trained to armes
And bloudie warres, so many valiant knights,
Looke for no other fortune wretch then death, 1185
Kind Edward is not heere to buckler thee.

War. Lancaster, why talkst thou to the slaue ?
Go souldiers take him hence, for by my sword,
His head shall off : Gaueston, short warning
Shall serue thy turne : it is our countries cause, 1190
That here seuerelie we will execute
Vpon thy person : hang him at a bough.

Gau. My Lord.

War. Souldiers, haue him away :
But for thou wert the fauorit of a King, 1195
Thou shalt haue so much honor at our hands.

Gau. I thanke you all my lords, then I perceiue,
That heading is one, and hanging is the other,
And death is all.

Thus wee le gratifie the king,
Wee le send his head by thee, let him bestow
His teares on that, for that is all he gets
Of Gaueston, or else his sencelesse trunck. 1225

Lan. Not so my Lord, least he bestow more cost,
In burying him, then he hath euer earned.

Arun. My lords, it is his maiesties request,
And in the honor of a king he sweares,
He will but talke with him and send him backe. 1230

War. When can you tell? Arundell no, we wot,
He that the care of realme remits,
And driues his nobles to these exigents

Edw. I long to heare an answer from the Barons
Touching my friend, my deerest Gaueston.
Ah Spencer, not the riches of my realme
Can ransom him, ah he is markt to die. 1310
I know the malice of the yonger Mortimer,
Warwick I know is roughe, and Lancaster
Inexorable, and I shall neuer see
My louely Pierce, my Gaueston againe,
The Barons ouerbeare me with their pride. 1315

Spencer. Were I king Edward Englands soueraigne,
Sonne to the louelie Elenor of Spaine,
Great Edward Longshankes issue: would I beare
These braues, this rage, and suffer vncontrowld
These Barons thus to beard me in my land, 1320
In mine owne realme? my lord pardon my speeche,
Did you retaine your fathers magnanimitie,
Did you regard the honor of your name,
You would not suffer thus your maiestie
Be counterbuft of your nobilitie. 1325
Strike off their heads, and let them preach on poles,
No doubt, such lessons they will teach the rest,
As by their preachments they will profit much,
And learne obedience to their lawfull king.

Edw. Yea gentle Spencer, we haue beene too milde, 1330
Too kinde to them, but now haue drawne our sword,
And if they send me not my Gaueston,
Weele steele it on their crest, and powle their tops.

Bald. This haught resolute becomes your maiestie, 1335
Not to be tied to their affection,
As though your highnes were a schoole boy still,
And must be awde and governd like a child.

Enter Hugh Spencer an old man, father to the yong Spencer, with his trunchion, and soldiers.

Spen. pa. Long liue my soueraigne the noble Edward,

Edw. Thy father Spencer ?

Spen. filius. True, and it like your grace, 1350
That powres in lieu of all your goodnes showne,
His life, my lord, before your princely feete.

Edw. Welcome ten thousand times, old man againe.
Spencer, this loue, this kindnes to thy King,
Argues thy noble minde and disposition : 1355

Spencer, I heere create thee earle of Wilshire,
And daily will enrich thee with our fauour,
That as the sun-shine shall reflect ore thee :
Beside, the more to manifest our loue,
Because we heare Lord Bruse dooth sell his land, 1360
And that the Mortimers are in hand withall,
Thou shalt haue crownes of vs, t'outbid the Barons,
And Spenser, spare them not, but lay it on.
Souldiers a largis, and thrice welcome all.

Spen. My lord, here comes the Queene. 1365

Or didst thou see my friend to take his death?

Arun. Neither my lord, for as he was surprizd,
Begirt with weapons, and with enemies round,
I did your highnes message to them all,
Demanding him of them, entreating rather, 1405
And said, vpon the honour of my name,
That I would vndertake to carrie him
Vnto your highnes, and to bring him back.

Edw. And tell me, would the rebels denie me that?

Spem. Proud recreants. 1410

Edw. Yea Spencer, traitors all.

Arun. I found them at the first inexorable,
The earle of Warwick would not bide the hearing,
Mortimer hardly, Penbrooke and Lancaster
Spake least: and when they flatly had denyed, 1415

Spen. Some treason, or some villanie was cause.

Arun. The earle of Warwick seazde him on his way,
For being deliuered vnto Penbrookes men, 1425
Their lord rode home, thinking his prisoner safe,
But ere he came, Warwick in ambush laie,
And bare him to his death, and in a trenche
Strake off his head, and marcht vnto the campe.

Spen. A bloudie part, flatly against law of armes. 1430

Edw. Why do we sound retreat? vpon them lords,
This day I shall powre vengeance with my sword 1495
On those proud rebels that are vp in armes,
And do confront and countermaund their king.

Spen. son. I doubt it not my lord, right will preuaile.

Lan. And there let him bee, 1505
Till hee pay deerely for their companie.

War. And shall or Warwicks sword shal smite in vaine.

Edw. What rebels, do you shrink, and sound retreat?

Mor. in. No Edward, no, thy flatterers faint and flie.

Lan. Th'ad best betimes forsake them and their trains,
For theile betray thee, traitors as they are. 1511

Spen. so. Traitor on thy face, rebellious Lancaster.

Pen. Away base vpstart, brau'st thou nobles thus?

Spen. fa. A noble attempt, and honourable deed,
Is it not, trowe ye, to assemble aide, 1515

And leuie armes against your lawfull king?

Edw. For which ere long their heads shall satisfie,
T'appeaze the wrath of their offended king.

Edm. Madam, without offence if I may aske,
 How will you deale with Edward in his fall?

Prince. Tell me good vnckle, what Edward doe you meane?

Edm. Nephew, your father, I dare not call him king.

Mor. My lord of Kent, what needes these questions?
 Tis not in her controulment, nor in ours, 1821
 But as the realme and parlement shall please,
 So shall your brother be disposed of.

I like not this relenting moode in Edmund,
 Madam, tis good to looke to him betimes. 1825

Qu. My lord, the Maior of Bristow knows our mind.

Mor. Yea madam, and they scape not easilie,
 That fled the feeld.

Qu. Baldock is with the king,
 A goodly chauncelor, is he not my lord? 1830

S. Ioh. So are the Spencers, the father and the sonne.

Edm. This Edward is the ruine of the realme.

Enter Rice ap Howell, and the Maior of Bristow, with Spencer the father.

Rice. God saue Queene Isabell, & her princely sonne.
 Madam, the Maior and Citizens of Bristow,
 In signe of loue and dutie to this presence, 1835
 Present by me this traitor to the state,
Spencer, the father to that wanton Spencer,
 That like the lawles Catiline of Rome,
 Reueld in Englands wealth and treasurie.

Qu. We thanke you all. 1840

Mor. iiii. Your louing care in this
 Deserueth princelie fauors and rewardes,
 But wheres the king and the other Spencer fled?

S. Ioh. Madam, what resteth, why stand ye in a muse ?

Qu. I rue my lords ill fortune, but alas,
Care of my cuntry cald me to this warre.

Mort. Madam, haue done with care & sad complaint,
Your king hath wrongd your cuntry and himselfe, 1855
And we must seeke to right it as we may,
Meane while, haue hence this rebell to the blocke.
Your lordship cannot priuiledge your head.

Spem. pa. Rebell is he that fights against his prince,
So fought not they that fought in Edwards right. 1860

Enter the Abbot, Monkes, Edward, Spencer, and Baldocke.

Abbot. Haue you no doubt my Lorde, haue you no feare,
As silent and as carefull will we be,
To keepe your royall person safe with vs, 1870
Free from suspect, and fell inuasion
Of such as haue your maiestie in chase,
Your selfe, and those your chosen companie,
As daunger of this stormie time requires.

 Stately and proud, in riches and in traine,
 Whilom I was powerfull and full of pompe, 1880
 But what is he, whome rule and emperie
 Haue not in life or death made miserable?
 Come Spencer, come Baldocke, come sit downe by me,
 Make triall now of that philosophie,
 That in our famous nurseries of artes 1885
 Thou suckedst from Plato, and from Aristotle.
 Father, this life contemplatiue is heauen,
 O that I might this life in quiet lead,
 But we alas are chaste, and you my friends,
 Your liues and my dishonor they pursue. 1890
 Yet gentle monkes, for treasure, golde nor fee,
 Do you betray vs and our companie.
Monks. Your grace may sit secure, if none but wee
 Doe wot of your abode.

 A gaue a long looke after vs my lord,
 And all the land I know is vp in armes,
 Armes that pursue our liues with deadly hate.
Bald. We were imbarckt for Ireland, wretched we, 1900

 My lord, why droope you thus ?
Edw. O day ! the last of all my blisse on earth,
 Center of all misfortune. O my starres !
 Why do you lowre vnkindly on a king ? 1930
 Comes Leister then in Isabellas name,
 To take my life, my companie from me ?

1990

Edw. Leister, if gentle words might comfort me,

Thy speeches long agoe had easde my sorrowes,
For kinde and louing hast thou alwaies beene :

The greefes of priuate men are soone allayde,
But not of kings, the forrest Deare being stricke

1995

Runnes to an herbe that closeth vp the wounds,
But when the imperiall Lions flesh is gorde,

He rends and teares it with his wrathfull pawe,
(And) highly scorning, that the lowly earth

Should drinke his bloud, mounts vp into the ayre :

2000

And so it fares with me, whose dauntlesse minde
The ambitious Mortimer would seeke to curbe,

And that vnnaturall Queene false Isabell,
That thus hath pent and mu'd me in a prison,

For such outrageous passions cloye my soule,
As with the wings of rancor and disdaine,

2005

Full often am I sowing vp to heauen,
To plaine me to the gods against them both :

But when I call to minde I am a king,
Me thinkes I should reuenge me of the wronges,

2010

That Mortimer and Isabell haue done.
But what are kings, when regiment is gone,

But perfect shadowes in a sun-shine day ?
My nobles rule, I beare the name of king,

I weare the crowne, but am contrould by them,

2015

By Mortimer, and my vnconstant Queene,
Who spots my nuptiall bed with infamie,

Whilst I am lodgd within this caue of care,
Where sorrow at my elbow still attends,

2020

To companie my hart with sad laments,
That bleedes within me for this strange exchange.

But tell me, must I now resigne my crowne,
To make vsurping Mortimer a king ?

Bish. Your grace mistakes, it is for Englands good,
And princely Edwards right we craue the crowne.

2025

Edw. No, tis for Mortimer, not Edwards head,
For hees a lambe, encompassed by Woolues,

Which in a moment will abridge his life :
But if proud Mortimer do weare this crowne,

1999 And add. Dod. etc.

1598-1622 etc. exc. Fleay, Wag.

2010 the 1594, Dod., Rob. :

my 1598-1622, Dyce etc.

Heauens turne it to a blaze of quenchelesse fier, 2030
 Or like the snakie wreathe of Tisiphon,
 Engirt the temples of his hatefull head,
 So shall not Englands Vine be perished,
 But Edwards name suruiues, though Edward dies.

Lei. My lord, why waste you thus the time away? 2035
 They stay your answer, will you yeeld your crowne?

Edw. Ah Leister, way how hardly I can brooke
 To loose my crowne and kingdome, without cause,
 To giue ambitious Mortimer my right, 2040
 That like a mountaine ouerwhelmes my blisse.

In which extreame my minde here murdered is :
 But what the heauens appoint, I must obaye,
 Here, take my crowne, the life of Edward too,
 Two kings in England cannot raigne at once :
 But stay a while, let me be king till night, 2045

That I may gaze vpon this glittering crowne,
 So shall my eyes receiue their last content,
 My head, the latest honor dew to it,
 And ioyntly both yeeld vp their wished right.
 Continue euer thou celestially sunne, 2050

Let neuer silent night possesse this clime,
 Stand still you watches of the element,
 All times and seasons rest you at a stay,
 That Edward may be still faire Englands king :
 But dayes bright beames dooth vanish fast away, 2055

And needes I must resigne my wished crowne.
 Inhumaine creatures, nurst with Tigers milke,
 Why gape you for your soueraignes ouerthrow ?
 My diadem I meane, and guiltlesse life.

See monsters see, ile weare my crowne againe, 2060
 What, feare you not the furie of your king ?

But haplesse Edward, thou art fondly led,
 They passe not for thy frownes as late they did,
 But seekes to make a new elected king,
 Which fils my mind with strange despairing thoughts, 2065
 Which thoughts are martyred with endles torments.
 And in this torment, comfort finde I none,

2033 Vine Rob. etc. : Vines 1594-1622, Dod. 2034 suruiues

And therefore let me weare it yet a while.

Tru(ssel.) My Lorde, the parlement must haue present newes, 2070

And therefore say, will you resigne or no?

The king rageth.

Edw. Ile not resigne, but whilst I liue, (be king.)
Traitors be gon, and ioine you with Mortimer,
Elect, conspire, install, do what you will,
Their bloud and yours shall seale these treacheries. 2075

Bish. This answer weelee returne, and so farewell.

Leist. Call them againe my lorde, and speake them faire,
For if they goe, the prince shall lose his right

Edward. Call thou them back, I haue no power to speake.

Lei. My lord, the king is willing to resigne. 2080

Bish. If he be not, let him choose.

Edw. O would I might, but heauens & earth conspire
To make me miserable: heere receiue my crowne.
Receiue it? no, these innocent hands of mine
Shall not be guiltie of so foule a crime, 2085

He of you all that most desires my bloud,
And will be called the murtherer of a king,
Take it: what are you mooude, pitie you me?

Then send for vnrelenting Mortimer
And Isabell, whose eyes being turnd to steele, 2090
Will sooner sparkle fire then shed a teare:

Yet stay, for rather then I will looke on them,
Heere, heere: now sweete God of heauen,
Make me despise this transitorie pompe,
And sit for aye inthronized in heauen, 2095
Come death, and with thy fingers close my eyes,
Or if I liue, let me forget my selfe.

Mor. in. Finely dissembled, do so still sweet Queene.
Heere comes the yong prince, with the Earle of Kent.

Qu. Some thing he whispers in his childish eares. 2220

Mort. in. If he haue such accesse vnto the prince,
Our plots and stratagems will soone be dasht.

Queen. Vse Edmund friendly, as if all were well.

Mor. in. How fares my honorable lord of Kent ? 2224

Edmun. In health sweete Mortimer, how fares your grace ?

Queene. Well, if my Lorde your brother were enlargde.

Edm. I heare of late he hath deposde himselfe.

Queen. The more my greefe.

Mortim. in. And mine.

Edmun. Ah they do dissemble. 2230

Queen. Sweete sonne come hither, I must talke with thee.

Mortim. in. Thou being his vnckle, and the next of bloud,
Doe looke to be protector ouer the prince.

Edm. Not I my lord : who should protect the sonne,
But she that gaue him life, I meane the Queene ? 2235

Prin. Mother, perswade me not to weare the crowne,
Let him be king, I am too yong to raigne.

Edmund. I do sweete Nephew.

2240

Quee. Brother, you know it is impossible.

Prince. Why, is he dead?

Queen. No, God forbid.

Edmun. I would those wordes proceeded from your heart.

Mort. iu. Inconstant Edmund, doost thou fauor him,
That wast a cause of his imprisonment?

2246

Edm. The more cause haue I now to make amends.

Mort. iu. I tell thee tis not meet, that one so false
Should come about the person of a prince.

My lord, he hath betraied the king his brother,
And therefore trust him not.

2250

Prince. But hee repents, and sorrowes for it now.

Queen. Come sonne, and go with this gentle Lorde and me.

Prin. With you I will, but not with Mortimer.

Mort. iu. Why yongling, s'dainst thou so of Mortimer?
Then I will carrie thee by force away.

2256

Prin. Helpe vnckle Kent, Mortimer will wrong me.

Quee. Brother Edmund, strue not, we are his friends,
Isabell is neerer then the earle of Kent.

Edm. Sister, Edward is my charge, redeeme him.

2260

Queen. Edward is my sonne, and I will keepe him.

Edmu. Mortimer shall know that he hath wrongde mee.
Hence will I haste to Killingworth castle,
And rescue aged Edward from his foes,
To be reuengde on Mortimer and thee.

2265

Exeunt omnes.

Enter Matreuis and Gurney with the king.

Matr. My lord, be not pensiuie, we are your friends.
Men are ordaind to liue in miserie,
Therefore come, dalliance dangereth our liues.

Edw. Friends, whither must vnhappy Edward go,
Will hatefull Mortimer appoint no rest?

It is the chiefest marke they leuell at.

Gurney. Not so my liege, the Queene hath giuen this charge,
To keepe your grace in safetie,
Your passions make your dolours to increase. 2280

Edw. This vsage makes my miserie increase.
But can my ayre of life continue long,
When all my sences are anoyde with stenche ?
Within a dungeon Englands king is kept,
Where I am steru'd for want of sustenance, 2285
My daily diet is heart breaking sobs,
That almost rents the closet of my heart.
Thus liues old Edward not relieu'd by any,
And so must die, though pitied by many.
O water, gentle friends, to coole my thirst, 2290
And cleare my bodie from foule excrements.

Matr. Heeres channell water, as our charge is giuen.
Sit downe, for wee be Barbars to your grace.

Edw. Traitors away, what will you murther me,
Or choake your soueraigne with puddle water ? 2295
Gurn. No, but wash your face, and shaue away your beard,

Least you be knowne, and so be rescued.

Matr. Why striue you thus ? your labour is in vaine.

Edward. The Wrenne may striue against the Lions strength,
But all in vaine: so vainely do I striue, 2300
To seeke for mercie at a tyrants hand.

They wash him with puddle water, and shaue his beard away.

Immortall powers, that knowes the painfull cares,
That waites vpon my poore distressed soule,
O leuell all your lookes vpon these daring men,
That wronges their liege and soueraigne, Englands king.
O Gaueston, it is for thee that I am wrongd, 2306
For me both thou and both the Spencers died,
And for your sakes, a thousand wronges ile take.
The Spencers ghostes, where euer they remaine,
Wish well to mine, then tush, for them ile die. 2310

Gurn. How now, who comes there ?

Matr. Guarde the king sure, it is the earle of Kent. 2315

Edw. O gentle brother, helpe to rescue me.

Matr. Keepe them a sunder, thrust in the king.

Edm. Souldiers, let me but talke to him one worde.

Gur. Lay hands vpon the earle for this assault. 2319

Edmu. Lay downe your weapons, traitors, yeeld the king.

Matr. Edmund, yeeld thou thy self, or thou shalt die.

Edmu. Base villaines, wherefore doe you gripe mee thus ?

Gurney. Binde him, and so conuey him to the court.

Edm. Where is the court but heere ? heere is the king,
And I will visit him, why stay you me ? 2325

Matr. The court is where lord Mortimer remaines,
Thither shall your honour go, and so farewell.

Exeunt Matr. and Gurney, with the king.

Manent Edmund and the souldiers.

Edm. O miserable is that commonweale, where lords
Keepe courts, and kings are lockt in prison !

Sould. Wherefore stay we ? on sirs to the court. 2330

Edm. I, lead me whether you will, euen to my death,
Seeing that my brother cannot be releast.

Exeunt omnes.

Enter Mortimer alone.

Mort. in. The king must die, or Mortimer goes downe,
The commons now begin to pitie him,

Yet he that is the cause of Edwards death 2335

Is sure to pay for it when his sonne is of age,

And therefore will I do it cunninglie.

This letter written by a friend of ours

Containes his death, yet bids them saue his life.

Light. Relent, ha, ha, I vse much to relent.

Mort. in. Well, do it brauely, and be secret. 2360

Light. You shall not need to giue instructions,

Tis not the first time I haue killed a man,

I learnde in Naples how to poison flowers,

To strangle with a lawne thrust through the throte,

To pierce the wind-pipe with a needles point, 2365

Or whilst one is a sleepe, to take a quill

And blowe a little powder in his eares,

Or open his mouth, and powre quick siluer downe,

But yet I haue a brauer way then these.

Mort. in. Whats that ? 2370

Light. Nay, you shall pardon me, none shall knowe my

And none of both them thirst for Edmunds bloud,

And therefore soldiers whether will you hale me ? 2440

Edwardum occidere nolite timere, 2465
Thats his meaning.

Light. Know you this token, I must haue the king?

Matr. I, stay a while, thou shalt haue answer straight.
This villain's sent to make away the king.

Gurney. I thought as much. 2470

Matr. And when the murders done,
See how he must be handled for his labour,

Villaine, I know thou comst to murther me.

Light. To murther you my most gracious lorde?

Farre is it from my hart to do you harme. 2495

The Queene sent me, to see how you were vsed,

For she relents at this your miserie.

And what eyes can refraine from shedding teares,

To see a king in this most pittious state?

Edw. Weepst thou already? list a while to me, 2500

And then thy heart, were it as Gurneys is,

Or as Matreuis, hewne from the Caucasus,

Yet will it melt, ere I haue done my tale.

This dungeon where they keepe me, is the sincke,

Wherein the filthe of all the castell falles. 2505

Light. O villaines!

Edw. And there in mire and puddle haue I stood,

This ten dayes space, and least that I should sleepe,

One plaies continually vpon a Drum,

They giue me bread and water being a king, 2510

So that for want of sleepe and sustenance,

My mindes distempered, and my bodies numde,

And whether I haue limmes or no, I know not.

O would my bloud dropt out from euery vaine,

As doth this water from my tattered robes: 2515

Tell Isabell the Queene, I lookt not thus,

When for her sake I ran at tilt in Fraunce,

And there vnhorste the duke of Cleremont.

Light. O speake no more my lorde, this breakes my heart.

Lie on this bed, and rest your selfe a while. 2520

Edw. These lookes of thine can harbor nought but death.

I see my tragedie written in thy browes,

Yet stay a while, forbear thy bloudie hande,

And let me see the stroke before it comes,

That euen then when I shall lose my life, 2525

My minde may be more stedfast on my God.

Light. What meanes your highnesse to mistrust me thus?

Edw. What meanes thou to dissemble with me thus?

Light. These handes were neuer stainde with innocent
bloud,

Nor shall they now be tainted with a kings. 2530

Edward. Forgiue my thought, for hauing such a thought,
 One iewell haue I left, receiue thou this.
 Still feare I, and I know not whats the cause,
 But euerie iointe shakes as I giue it thee :
 O if thou harborst murder in thy hart, 2535
 Let this gift change thy minde, and saue thy soule,
 Know that I am a king, oh at that name,
 I feele a hell of greefe: where is my crowne ?
 Gone, gone, and doe I remaine aliuie ? 2539

Light. Your ouerwatchde my lord, lie downe and rest.

Edw. But that greefe keepes me waking, I shoulde sleepe,

For not these ten daies haue these eyes lids closd.

Now as I speake they fall, and yet with feare

Open againe. O wherefore sits thou heare ?

Light. If you mistrust me, ile be gon my lord. 2545

Edw. No, no, for if thou meanst to murder me,
 Thou wilt returne againe, and therefore stay.

Light. He sleepes.

Edw. O let me not die yet, stay, O stay a while.

Light. How now my Lorde. 2550

Edw. Something still busseth in mine eares,

And tels me, if I sleepe I neuer wake,

This feare is that which makes me tremble thus,

And therefore tell me, wherefore art thou come ?

Light. To rid thee of thy life. Matreuis come. 2555

Edw. I am too weake and feeble to resist,

Assist me sweete God, and receiue my soule.

Light. Runne for the table.

Edw. O spare me, or dispatche me in a trice.

(King Edward is murdered.)

Light. So, lay the table downe, and stampe on it, 2560

But not too hard, least that you bruse his body.

Matreuis. I feare mee that this crie will raise the towne,

And therefore let vs take horse and away.

Light. Tell me sirs, was it not brauelie done ?

Matr. I my good Lord, I would it were vndone. 2570

Mort. in. Matreuis, if thou now growest penitent
Ile be thy ghostly father, therefore choose

Whether thou wilt be secret in this,

Or else die by the hand of Mortimer.

Matr. Gurney, my lord, is fled, and will I feare, 2575
Betray vs both, therefore let me flie.

Mort. in. Flie to the Sauages.

Matr. I humblie thanke your honour.

Mor. in. As for my selfe, I stand as Iouas huge tree,
And others are but shrubs compard to me, 2580

All tremble at my name, and I feare none,
Lets see who dare impeache me for his death ?

Enter the Queene.

Queen. A Mortimer, the king my sonne hath news,
His fathers dead, and we haue murdered him. 2584

Mor. in. What if he haue ? the king is yet a childe.

Queene. I, I, but he teares his haire, and wrings his

DIDO

Date and authorship. No question in Marlowe criticism offers greater difficulties than those which concern the date and authorship of the Tragedy of Dido. Our only source of information is the title-page of the single early edition, where we learn that the piece had been 'Played by the Children of her Maiesties Chappell', and that the authors were 'Christopher Marlowe and Thomas Nash, Gent.' Nearly all recent critics¹ are agreed in the opinion that the tragedy was probably sketched in its earliest form before Marlowe left Cambridge (1587). After Tamburlaine, Marlowe's dramatic career follows a pretty definite line of development, into which it is difficult to fit either the subject-matter or the general structure of Dido. On the other hand, the classical story and close dependence on Vergil would naturally point back to the academic period, which seems certainly to have produced the Ovid translations, and which probably inspired the version of Lucan as well. Again, the dramatic looseness of the play would mark it as immature work, while it is significant that a number of lines stand in the apparent relation of earlier and somewhat unfinished drafts of famous passages in Tamburlaine or Doctor Faustus.² Yet it seems pretty clear that the extant text of Dido dates from a later period than that of Marlowe's and Nash's residence at Cambridge, for much of the blank verse shows very considerable finish and fluency. Verbal similarities have been pointed out also between this play and Edward II, which, though less numerous than those connecting Dido with Tamburlaine and Faustus, are yet so significant as to make it very likely that Marlowe subjected his old Cambridge play to a complete revision at about the period when he was writing Edward II and the not dissimilar Hero and Leander.¹

The connexion of Thomas Nash with our play is very uncertain, and on the evidence of style would seem to be slight. There is no discernible resemblance between Nash's only other extant dramatic work, Summer's Last Will and Testament, and any part of Dido, whereas the peculiar style of Marlowe can be recognized in almost every scene. Lines 1549-1600, which occur within a couple of pages of the end of the drama, are in themselves almost sufficient disproof of the theory that Nash found the tragedy a torso and added the conclusion. Marlowe perhaps never wrote more characteristic verses than these :

So thou wouldst proue as true as Paris did,
Would, as faire Troy was, Carthage might be sackt,
And I be calde a second Helena.

Thy mother was no Goddess periurd man,
Nor Dardanus the author of thy stocke :
But thou art sprung from Scythian Caucasus,
And Tygers of Hircania gaue thee sucke.²

In no other case can Marlowe be shown to have collaborated with a fellow dramatist during his London career, unless with Shakespeare in the Henry VI plays, and the conclusion would at first seem almost unavoidable that Dido is the product of an old college partnership between two Cambridge contemporaries. There is much which is attractive in this view, and I should be reluctant to abandon it entirely ; yet reasons exist which make it probable, if not certain, that Nash was in some way connected with the play at a period subsequent to 1587. In the first place Marlowe's name on the title-page of a tragedy was certainly of much more value in 1594 than Nash's, and it is unlikely that the publisher of the quarto, even if he had been himself aware of the fact, would have called the reader's attention to the minor dramatist's ancient concern in a work which had been recently revised and renovated by the more celebrated author. The fact may be added, for what it is worth, that Nash's introductory epistle to Menaphon in 1589 suggests a dislike for Marlowe's dramatic methods hardly in consonance with the theory of recent joint authorship, whereas his later allusions to the poet indicate regard and admiration.

There exists a third rather mysterious bit of evidence tending to connect Nash with Dido at a period which can only very shortly have antedated the play's publication. It is an Elegy on Marlowe's death, which both Bishop Tanner¹ and Warton, the literary historian,² declare to be affixed to the 1594 edition of Dido, but which is not found in any of the three known copies. Tanner and Warton appear to have written independently on the subject; the latter furnished Malone with certain details not specified by the former. It can hardly be doubted, therefore, that this elegy really occurred in at least one copy of the tragedy, and since Nash is definitely mentioned as the author, we can perhaps infer that it was a printed addition to the play, inserted by way of dedication or prologue, and not a mere manuscript note on a fly-leaf. Nash's connexion with Dido may therefore be analogous to Heywood's connexion with the Jew of Malta: he may merely have prepared the play for the printers by introducing a few superficial changes and writing a prefatory elegy which through negligence of the printer or late arrival found its way into only a part of the edition. This assumption does not necessarily contradict the theory that Nash had an earlier and more fundamental concern in the play, but it leaves the theory without any sort of confirmation. In any case it appears to be probable that Dido is in its present form mainly the work of Marlowe and that the play represents two stages in that poet's development.

Stage history. The only early edition of Dido was published by Thomas Woodcokke in 1594, apparently without registration. Only three copies are certainly known to exist,³ and they appear to agree in every respect; the present text follows the Bodleian copy. From the title-page we learn that the tragedy had been acted by the 'Children of the Chapel'. The one ascertained fact concerning the history of this company during the ten years previous to 1594 seems to be that they acted before the ³ Hazlitt's Handbook, p. 373, says four, but probably inaccurately; one of the three copies seems here to have been counted twice.

Queen at Croydon in 1591, under the direction of N. Giles, and Mr. Fleay assumes,¹ apparently with no further evidence, that Dido was presented on this occasion. Henslowe's Diary, from which we should, of course, have no right to expect information regarding a play of the Chapel Children, does contain two allusions to a possibly related drama on the same subject. On January 3, 1597, Henslowe expended 29 shillings for furnishings 'a geanste the playe of dido & enevs', and two entries below he adds the memorandum: 'Lent vnto the company when they fyrst played dido at nyght the some of thirtishillynges w^{ch} wasse the 8 of Jenewary 1597.' (i.e., 1598)

Source. The primary source of Dido is found in the first, second, and fourth books of the Aeneid. Knutowski² has exerted himself to show that the play is also influenced in various passages by Ovid's works. A comparison of the tragedy with the Vergilian original throws interesting light on the structure of the former. Parts of the play follow the corresponding lines of the Aeneid with schoolboy slavishness, whereas the borrowed material is elsewhere altered with a freedom and insight which evidence a mature judgement and no small dramatic skill. In this respect, as in others, the text of Dido appears to be a composite of elements dating from two rather widely separated periods.

There is no evidence that the play of Marlowe and Nash was directly influenced by any of the earlier dramas on the same subject, though it is not unlikely that Halliwell's Latin play of Dido, performed at Cambridge in 1564, or Gager's Oxford play (1583) in the same language, may have offered the original suggestion for our tragedy.

(Actus I. Scena I.)

Here the Curtaines draw, there is discovered Iupiter dandling Ganimed vpon his knee, and Mercury lying asleepe.

Iup. Come gentle Ganimed and play with me,
I loue thee well, say Iuno what she will.

Gan. I am much better for your worthles loue,
That will not shield me from her shrewish blowes :
To day when as I fild into your cups, 5
And held the cloath of pleasance whiles you dranke,
She reacht me such a rap for that I spilde,
As made the bloud run downe about mine eares.

Iup. What ? dares she strike the darling of my thoughts?
By Saturnes soule, and this earth threatning haire, 10
That shaken thrise, makes Natures buildings quake,
I vow, if she but once frowne on thee more,
To hang her meteor like twixt heauen and earth,
And bind her hand and foote with golden cordes,
As once I did for harming Hercules. 15

Gan. Might I but see that pretie sport afoote,
O how would I with Helens brother laugh,
And bring the Gods to wonder at the game :
Sweet Iupiter, if ere I pleasse thine eye,
Or seemed faire walde in with Egles wings, 20
Grace my immortall beautie with this boone,
And I will spend my time in thy bright armes.

Iup. What ist sweet wagge I should deny thy youth ?
Whose face reflects such pleasure to mine eyes,
As I exhal'd with thy fire darting beames, 25

 Why are not all the Gods at thy commaund, 30
 And heauen and earth the bounds of thy delight ?
Vulcan shall daunce to make thee laughing sport,
 And my nine Daughters sing when thou art sad,
 From Iunos bird Ile pluck her spotted pride,
 To make thee fannes wherewith to coole thy face, 35
 And Venus Swannes shall shed their siluer downe,
 To sweeten out the slumbers of thy bed :
Hermes no more shall shew the world his wings,
 If that thy fancie in his feathers dwell,
 But as this one Ile teare them all from him, 40
 (Plucks a feather from Hermes' wings.)
 Doe thou but say their colour pleaseth me :
 Hold here my little loue, these linked gems, (Gives jewels.)
 My Iuno ware vpon her marriage day,
 Put thou about thy necke my owne sweet heart,
 And tricke thy armes and shoulders with my theft. 45
Gan. I would haue a iewell for mine eare,
 And a fine brouch to put in my hat,
 And then Ile hugge with you an hundred times.
Iup. And shall haue Ganimed, if thou wilt be my loue.

Enter Venus.

Venus. I, this is it, you can sit toying there, 50

 Whiles my Aeneas wanders on the Seas,
 And rests a pray to euery billowes pride.
Iuno, false Iuno in her Chariots pompe,
 Drawne through the heauens by Steedes of Boreas brood, 55
 Made Hebe to direct her ayrie wheelles
 Into the windie countrie of the clowdes,
 Where finding Aeolus intrencht with stormes,
 And guarded with a thousand grislie ghosts,
 She humbly did beseech him for our bane, 60
 And charg'd him drowne my sonne with all his traine.
 Then gan the windes breake ope their brazen doores,

 In those faire walles I promist him of yore : 85
 But first in bloud must his good fortune bud,
 Before he be the Lord of Turnus towne,
 Or force her smile that hetherto hath frownd :
 Three winters shall he with the Rutiles warre,
 And in the end subdue them with his sword, 90
 And full three Sommers likewise shall he waste,
 In manning those fierce barbarian mindes :
 Which once performd, poore Troy so long suppress,

 And flourish once againe that erst was dead : 95

Venus. How may I credite these thy flattering termes,
When yet both sea and sands beset their ships, 110
And Phæbus as in Stygian pooles, refraines
To taint his tresses in the Tyrrhen maine ?

Iup. I will take order for that presently :
Hermes awake, and haste to Neptunes realme,
Whereas the Wind-god warring now with Fate, 115
Besiege the ofspring of our kingly loynes.
Charge him from me to turne his stormie powers,
And fetter them in Vulcans sturdie brasse,
That durst thus proudly wrong our kinsmans peace.

(Exit Hermes.)

Venus farewell, thy sonne shall be our care : 120
Come Ganimed, we must about this geare.

Venus. Disquiet Seas lay downe your swelling lookes,
And court Æneas with your calmie cheere,
Whose beautious burden well might make you proude,
Had not the heauens conceau'd with hel-borne clowdes, 125
Vaild his resplendant glorie from your view.
For my sake pitie him Oceanus,
That erst-while issued from thy watrie loynes,
And had my being from thy bubling froth :
Triton I know hath fild his trumpe with Troy, 130
And therefore will take pitie on his toyle,
And call both Thetis and Cymothoe,
To succour him in this extremitie.

Enter Æneas with Ascanius, with one or two more.

Venus, how art thou compact with content, 135

Actus 2. (Scena 1.)

Enter Æneas, Achates, and Ascanius.

Æn. Where am I now ? these should be Carthage walles.

Acha. Why stands my sweete Æneas thus amazde ?

Æn. O my Achates, Theban Niobe,
Who for her sonnes death wept out life and breath,
And drie with grieve was turnd into a stone, 300
Had not such passions in her head as I.
Me thinkes that towne there should be Troy, yon Idas hill,
There Zanthus streame, because here's Priamus,
And when I know it is not, then I dye.

Ach. And in this humor is Achates to, 305
I cannot choose but fall vpon my knees,
And kisse his hand : O where is Hecuba ?
Here she was wont to sit, but sauing ayre
Is nothing here, and what is this but stone ?

Æn. O yet this stone doth make Æneas weepe, 310
And would my prayers (as Pigmaliions did)
Could giue it life, that vnder his conduct
We might saile backe to Troy, and be reuengde
On these hard harted Grecians, which reioyce
That nothing now is left of Priamus : 315
O Priamus is left and this is he,
Come, come abourd, pursue the hatefull Greekes.

Acha. What meanes Æneas ?

Æn. Achates though mine eyes say this is stone,
Yet thinkes my minde that this is Priamus : 320
And when my grieued heart sighes and sayes no,
Then would it leape out to giue Priam life :
O were I not at all so thou mightst be.
Achates, see King Priam wags his hand,
He is aliue, Troy is not ouercome. 325

Ach. Thy mind Æneas that would haue it so
Deludes thy eye sight, Priamus is dead.

Æn. Ah Troy is sackt, and Priamus is dead,
And why should poore Æneas be aliue ?

Asca. Sweete father leaue to weepe, this is not he : 330
For were it Priam he would smile on me.

Acha. Æneas see, here come the Citizens.
Leaue to lament lest they laugh at our feares.

Enter Cloanthus, Sergestus, Illioneus (and others).

Æn. Lords of this towne, or whatsoever stile
Belongs vnto your name, vouchsafe of ruth 335
To tell vs who inhabits this faire towne,
What kind of people, and who gouernes them :
For we are strangers driuen on this shore,
And scarcely know within what Clime we are.

Illio. I heare Æneas voyce, but see him not, 340
For none of these can be our Generall.

Acha. Like Illioneus speakes this Noble man,
But Illioneus goes not in such robes.

Serg. You are Achates, or I deciu'd.

Acha. Æneas see, Sergestus or his ghost. 345

Illio. He names Æneas, let vs kisse his feete.

Cloan. It is our Captaine, see Ascanius.

Serg. Liue long Æneas and Ascanius.

Æn. Achates, speake, for I am ouerioyed.

Acha. O Illioneus, art thou yet alieue ? 350

Illio. Blest be the time I see Achates face.

Cloan. Why turnes Æneas from his trustie friends ?

Æn. Sergestus, Illioneus and the rest,

Your sight amazde me, O what destinies
Haue brought my sweete companions in such plight ? 355
O tell me, for I long to be resolu'd.

Illio. Louely Æneas, these are Carthage walles,
And here Queene Dido weares th' imperiall Crowne,
Who for Troyes sake hath entertaind vs all,
And clad vs in these wealthie robes we weare. 360
Oft hath she askt vs vnder whom we seru'd,
And when we told her she would weepe for grieffe,
Thinking the sea had swallowed vp thy ships,
And now she sees thee how will she reioyce ?

Serg. See where her seruitors passe through the hall 365
Bearing a banket, Dido is not farre.

Illio. Looke where she comes : Æneas viewe her well.

Æn. Well may I view her, but she sees not me.

Enter Dido and her traine.

Dido. What stranger art thou that doest eye me thus ?

Æn. Sometime I was a Troian, mightie Queene : 370
But Troy is not, what shall I say I am ?

Illio. Renowmed Dido, tis our Generall :
Warlike Aeneas.

Dido. Warlike Aeneas, and in these base robes ?
Goe fetch the garment which Sicheus ware : 375
Braue Prince, welcome to Carthage and to me,
Both happie that Aeneas is our guest :
Sit in this chaire and banquet with a Queene,
Aeneas is Aeneas, were he clad
In weedes as bad as euer Irus ware. 380

Æn. This is no seate for one thats comfortles,
May it please your grace to let Aeneas waite :
For though my birth be great, my fortunes meane,
Too meane to be companion to a Queene.

Dido. Thy fortune may be greater then thy birth, 385
Sit downe Aeneas, sit in Didos place,
And if this be thy sonne as I suppose,
Here let him sit, be merrie louely child.

Æn. This place beseemes me not, O pardon me.

Dido. Ile haue it so, Aeneas, be content. 390

Asca. Madame, you shall be my mother.

Dido. And so I will sweete child : be merrie man,
Heres to thy better fortune and good starres. (Drinks.)

Æn. In all humilitie I thanke your grace.

Dido. Remember who thou art, speake like thy selfe, 395
Humilitie belongs to common groomes.

Æn. And who so miserable as Aeneas is ?

Dido. Lyes it in Didos hands to make thee blest,
Then be assured thou art not miserable.

Æn. O Priamus, O Troy, oh Hecuba ! 400

Dido. May I entreate thee to discourse at large,
And truely to, how Troy was ouercome :
For many tales goe of that Cities fall,
And scarcely doe agree vpon one poynt :
Some say Antenor did betray the towne, 405
Others report twas Sinons periurie :
But all in this that Troy is ouercome,
And Priam dead, yet how we heare no newes.

Æn. A wofull tale bids Dido to vnfold,
Whose memorie like pale deaths stony mace, 410
Beates forth my senses from this troubled soule,
And makes Aeneas sinke at Didos feete.

Dido. What faints Aeneas to remember Troy ?

Æn. Then speake Æneas with Achilles tongue,
 And Dido and you Carthaginian Peeres
 Heare me, but yet with Mirmidons harsh eares,
 Daily inur'd to broyles and Massacres,
 Lest you be mou'd too much with my sad tale.

420

The Grecian souldiers tired with ten yeares warre,
 Began to crye, let vs vnto our ships,

Troy is inuincible, why stay we here ?

With whose outcryes Atrides being apal'd,

425

Summoned the Captaines to his princely tent,

Who looking on the scarres we Troians gaue,

Seeing the number of their men decreast,

And the remainder weake and out of heart,

Gaue vp their voyces to dislodge the Campe,

And so in troopes all marcht to Tenedos :

430

Where when they came, Vlysses on the sand

Assayd with honey words to turne them backe :

And as he spoke to further his entent,

The windes did driue huge billowes to the shoare,

And heauen was darkned with tempestuous clowdes :

435

Then he alleag'd the Gods would haue them stay,

And prophced Troy should be ouercome :

And therewithall he calde false Sinon forth,

A man compact of craft and perliurie,

Whose ticing tongue was made of Hermes pipe,

440

To force an hundred watchfull eyes to sleepe :

And him, Epeus hauing made the horse,

With sacrificing wreathes vpon his head,

Vlysses sent to our vnhappie towne :

Who groueling in the mire of Zanthus bankes,

445

His hands bound at his backe, and both his eyes

Turnd vp to heauen as one resolu'd to dye,

Our Phrigian shepherds haled within the gates,

And brought vnto the Court of Priamus :

To whom he vsed action so pitifull,

450

Lookes so remorcefull, vowes so forcible,

As therewithall the old man ouercome,

Kist him, imbrast him, and vnloosde his bands,

And then—O Dido, pardon me.

Dido. Nay leaue not here, resolute me of the rest.

455

Æn. O th' inchaunting words of that base slaue,

448 shepherds Hurst etc. : shepherd 1594 456 th' the Hurst

Made him to thinke Epeus pine-tree Horse
 A sacrificize t'appease Mineruas wrath:
 The rather for that one Laocoon
 Breaking a speare vpon his hollow breast, 460
 Was with two winged Serpents stung to death.
 Whereat agast, we were commanded straight
 With reuerence to draw it into Troy.
 In which vnhappy worke was I employd,
 These hands did helpe to hale it to the gates, 465
 Through which it could not enter twas so huge.
 O had it neuer entred, Troy had stood.
 But Priamus impatient of delay,
 Inforst a wide breach in that rampierd wall,
 Which thousand battering Rams could neuer pierce, 470
 And so came in this fatall instrument:
 At whose accursed feete as ouerioyed,
 We banquetted till ouercome with wine,
 Some surfetted, and others soundly slept.
 Which Simon viewing, causde the Greekish spyes 475
 To hast to Tenedos and tell the Campe:
 Then he vnlockt the Horse, and suddenly
 From out his entrailes, Neoptolemus
 Setting his speare vpon the ground, leapt forth,
 And after him a thousand Grecians more, 480
 In whose sterne faces shin'd the quenchles fire,
 That after burnt the pride of Asia.
 By this the Campe was come vnto the walles,
 And through the breach did march into the streetes,
 Where meeting with the rest, kill, kill they cryed. 485
 Frighted with this confused noyse, I rose,
 And looking from a turret, might behold
 Yong infants swimming in their parents bloud,
 Headles carkasses piled vp in heapes,
 Virgins halfe dead dragged by their golden haire, 490
 And with maine force flung on a ring of pikes,
 Old men with swords thrust through their aged sides,
 Kneeling for mercie to a Greekish lad,
 Who with steele Pol-axes dasht out their braines.
 Then buckled I mine armour, drew my sword, 495
 And thinking to goe downe, came Hectors ghost
 With ashie visage, blewish sulphure eyes,
 His armes torne from his shoulders, and his breast
 Furrowd with wounds, and that which made me weepe,
 Thongs at his heeles, by which Achilles horse 500

Drew him in triumph through the Greekish Campe,
 Burst from the earth, crying, Aeneas flye,
Troy is afire, the Grecians haue the towne.

Dido. O Hector who weepes not to heare thy name ?

Æn. Yet flung I forth, and desperate of my life, 505
 Ran in the thickest throngs, and with this sword
 Sent many of their sauadge ghosts to hell.

At last came Pirrhus fell and full of ire,
 His harnesse dropping bloud, and on his speare
 The mangled head of Priams yongest sonne, 510
 And after him his band of Mirmidons,
 With balles of wilde fire in their murdering pawes,
 Which made the funerall flame that burnt faire Troy :
 All which hemd me about, crying, this is he.

Dido. Ah, how could poore Aeneas scape their hands ? 515

Æn. My mother Venus ielous of my health,
 Conuaid me from their crooked nets and bands :
 So I escapt the furious Pirrhus wrath :
 Who then ran to the pallace of the King,
 And at Ioues Altar finding Priamus, 520
 About whose withered necke hung Hecuba,
 Foulding his hand in hers, and ioyntly both
 Beating their breasts and falling on the ground,
 He with his faulchions poynt raisde vp at once,
 And with Megeras eyes stared in their face, 525
 Threatning a thousand deaths at euery glaunce.
 To whom the aged King thus trembling spoke :
Achilles sonne, remember what I was,
 Father of fiftie sonnes, but they are slaine,
 Lord of my fortune, but my fortunes turnd, 530
 King of this Citie, but my Troy is fired,
 And now am neither father, Lord, nor King :
 Yet who so wretched but desires to liue ?
 O let me liue, great Neoptolemus.
 Not mou'd at all, but smiling at his teares, 535
 This butcher whil'st his hands were yet held vp,
 Treading vpon his breast, strooke off his hands.

Dido. O end Aeneas, I can heare no more.

Æn. At which the franticke Queene leapt on his face,
 And in his eyelids hanging by the nayles, 540
 A little while prolong'd her husbands life :
 At last the souldiers puld her by the heeles,
 And swong her howling in the emptie ayre,
 Which sent an eccho to the wounded King :

Whereat he lifted vp his bedred lims, 545
 And would haue grappeld with Achilles sonne,
 Forgetting both his want of strength and hands,
 Which he disdainig whiskt his sword about,
 And with the wind thereof the King fell downe :
 Then from the nauell to the throat at once, 550
 He ript old Priam : at whose latter gaspe
Ioues marble statue gan to bend the brow,
 As lothing Pirrhus for this wicked act :
 Yet he vndaunted tooke his fathers flagge,
 And dipt it in the old Kings chill cold bloud, 555
 And then in triumph ran into the streetes,
 Through which he could not passe for slaughtred men :
 So leaning on his sword he stood stone still,
 Viewing the fire wherewith rich Ilion burnt.
 By this I got my father on my backe, 560
 This yong boy in mine armes, and by the hand
 Led faire Creusa my beloued wife,
 When thou Achates with thy sword mad'st way,
 And we were round inuiron'd with the Greekes :
 O there I lost my wife : and had not we 565
 Fought manfully, I had not told this tale :
 Yet manhood would not serue, of force we fled,
 And as we went vnto our ships, thou knowest
 We sawe Cassandra sprauling in the streetes,
 Whom Aiax rausht in Dianas Fane, 570
 Her cheekes swolne with sighes, her haire all rent,
 Whom I tooke vp to beare vnto our ships :
 But suddenly the Grecians followed vs,
 And I alas, was forst to let her lye.
 Then got we to our ships, and being abourd, 575
Polixena cryed out, Aeneas stay,
 The Greekes pursue me, stay and take me in.
 Moued with her voyce, I lept into the sea,
 Thinking to beare her on my backe abourd :
 For all our ships were launcht into the deepe, 580
 And as I swomme, she standing on the shoare,
 Was by the cruell Mirmidons surprizd,
 And after by that Pirrhus sacrificzde.

Acha. That will Æneas shewe your maiestic.

Dido. Æneas, art thou there ?

En. I vnderstand your highnesse sent for me.

Dido. No, but now thou art here, tell me in sooth 735
In what might Dido highly pleasure thee.

Æn. So much haue I receiu'd at Didos hands,
As without blushing I can aske no more :
Yet Queene of Affricke, are my ships vnrigd,
My Sailes all rent in sunder with the winde, 740
My Oares broken, and my Tackling lost,
Yea all my Nauie split with Rockes and Shelfes :
Nor Sterne nor Anchor haue our maimed Fleete,
Our Masts the furious winde strooke ouer board :
Which piteous wants if Dido will supplie, 745
We will account her author of our liues.

Dido. Æneas, Ile repaire thy Troian ships,
Conditionally that thou wilt stay with me,
And let Achates saile to Italy :
Ile giue thee tackling made of riuel'd gold, 750
Wound on the barkes of odoriferous trees,
Oares of massie Iuorie full of holes,
Through which the water shall delight to play :
Thy Anchors shall be hewed from Christall Rockes,
Which if thou lose shall shine aboue the waues : 755
The Masts whereon thy swelling sailes shall hang,
Hollow Pyramides of siluer plate :
The sailes of foulded Lawne, where shall be wrought
The warres of Troy, but not Troyes ouerthrow :
For ballace, emptie Didos treasure, 760
Take what ye will, but leaue Æneas here.
Achates, thou shalt be so meanly clad,
As Seaborne Nymphes shall swarme about thy ships,
And wanton Mermaides court thee with sweete songs,
Flinging in fauours of more soueraigne worth, 765
Then Thetis hangs about Apolloes necke,
So that Æneas may but stay with me.

Æn. Wherefore would Dido haue Æneas stay ?

Dido. To warre against my bordering enemies :
Æneas, thinke not Dido is in loue, 770
For if that any man could conquer me,
I had been wedded ere Æneas came :

Dido. But speake Æneas, know you none of these ?

Æn. No Madame, but it seemes that these are Kings.

Dido. All these and others which I neuer sawe,
Haue been most vrgent suiters for my loue, 785
Some came in person, others sent their Legats :

Yet none obtaind me, I am free from all,
And yet God knowes intangled vnto one.
This was an Orator, and thought by words
To compasse me, but yet he was deceiu'd : 790

And this a Spartan Courtier vaine and wilde,

This was Alcion, a Musition,
But playd he nere so sweet, I let him goe :
This was the wealthie King of Thessaly, 795

But I had gold enough and cast him off :
This Meleagers sonne, a warlike Prince,
But weapons gree not with my tender yeares :
The rest are such as all the world well knowes,
Yet now I sweare by heauen and him I loue, 800

Enter Iuno to Ascanius asleepe.

Iuno. Here lyes my hate, Aeneas cursed brat, 811
 The boy wherein false destinie delights,
 The heire of furie, the fauorite of the fates,
 That vgly impe that shall outweare my wrath,
 And wrong my deitie with high disgrace : 815
 But I will take another order now,
 And race th'eternall Register of time :
Troy shall no more call him her second hope,
 Nor Venus triumph in his tender youth :
 For here in spight of heauen Ile murder him, 820
 And feede infection with his let out life :
 Say Paris, now shall Venus haue the ball ?
 Say vengeance, now shall her Ascanius dye ?
 O no, God wot, I cannot watch my time,
 Nor quit good turnes with double fee downe told : 825
 Tut, I am simple, without mind to hurt,
 And haue no gall at all to grieue my foes :
 But lustfull Ioue and his adulterous child,
 Shall finde it written on confusions front,
 That onely Iuno rules in Rhamnuse towne. 830

Enter Venus.

Venus. What should this meane ? my Doues are back returnd,
 Who warne me of such daunger prest at hand,
 To harme my sweete Ascanius lonely life.
Iuno, my mortall foe, what make you here ?
 Auaunt old witch and trouble not my wits. 835
Iuno. Fie Venus, that such causeles words of wrath,
 Should ere defile so faire a mouth as thine :
 Are not we both sprong of celestiall rase,
 And banquet as two Sisters with the Gods ?
 Why is it then displeasure should disioyne 840

Had not my Doues discou'rd thy entent :
But I will teare thy eyes fro forth thy head,
And feast the birds with their bloud-shotten balles, 845
If thou but lay thy fingers on my boy.

Iuno. Is this then all the thanks that I shall haue,
For sauing him from Snakes and Serpents stings,
That would haue kild him sleeping as he lay ?
What though I was offended with thy sonne, 850
And wrought him mickle woe on sea and land,
When for the hate of Troian Ganimed,
That was aduanced by my Hebes shame,
And Paris iudgement of the heauenly ball,
I mustred all the windes vnto his wracke, 855
And vrg'd each Element to his annoy :
Yet now I doe repent me of his ruth,
And wish that I had neuer wrongd him so :
Bootles I sawe it was to warre with fate,
That hath so many vnresisted friends : 860
Wherefore I chaunge my counsell with the time,
And planted loue where enuie erst had sprong.

Venus. Sister of Ioue, if that thy loue be such,
As these thy protestations doe paint forth,
We two as friends one fortune will deuide : 865
Cupid shall lay his arrowes in thy lap,
And to a Scepter chaunge his golden shafts,
Fancie and modestie shall liue as mates,
And thy faire peacockes by my pigeons pearch :
Loue my Aeneas, and desire is thine, 870
The day, the night, my Swannes, my sweetes are thine.

Iuno. More then melodious are these words to me,
That ouercloy my soule with their content :
Venus, sweete Venus, how may I deserue
Such amorous fauours at thy beautilous hand ? 875
But that thou maist more easilie perceiue,
How highly I doe prize this amitie,
Harke to a motion of eternall league,
Which I will make in quittance of thy loue :
Thy sonne thou knowest with Dido now remaines, 880

And cannot talke nor thinke of ought but him :
 Why should not they then ioyne in marriage,
 And bring forth mightie Kings to Carthage towne, 885
 Whom casualtie of sea hath made such friends ?
 And Venus, let there be a match confirmd
 Betwixt these two, whose loues are so alike,
 And both our Deities conioynd in one,
 Shall chaine felicitie vnto their throne. 890

Venus. Well could I like this reconcilements meanes,
 But much I feare my sonne will nere consent,
 Whose armed soule alreadie on the sea,
 Darts forth her light to Lavinias shoare.

Iuno. Faire Queene of loue, I will deuorce these doubts,
 And finde the way to wearie such fond thoughts : 896
 This day they both a hunting forth will ride
 Into these woods, adioyning to these walles,
 When in the midst of all their gamesome sports,
 Ile make the Clowdes dissolue their watrie workes, 900
 And drench Siluanus dwellings with their shewers.
 Then in one Caue the Queene and he shall meete,
 And interchangeably discourse their thoughts,
 Whose short conclusion will seale vp their hearts,
 Vnto the purpose which we now propound. 905

Venus. Sister, I see you sauour of my wiles,
 Be it as you will haue (it) for this once,
 Meane time, Ascanius shall be my charge,
 Whom I will beare to Ida in mine armes,
 And couch him in Adonis purple downe. Exeunt.

Anna. How like his father speaketh he in all ?

Acha. As I remember, here you shot the Deere, 961
That sau'd your famisht souldiers liues from death,
When first you set your foote vpon the shoare,
And here we met faire Venus virgine like,
Bearing her bowe and quiuer at her backe. 965

Æn. O how these irksome labours now delight,
And ouerjoy my thoughts with their escape :
Who would not vndergoe all kind of toyle,
To be well stor'd with such a winters tale ?

Some to the mountaines, some vnto the soyle,
You to the vallies, thou (to Iarbas) vnto the house.

Exeunt omnes : manet (Iarbas).

Iar. I, this it is which wounds me to the death,
To see a Phrigian far fet o' the sea,
Preferd before a man of maiestie : 975
O loue, O hate, O cruell womens hearts,
That imitate the Moone in euery chaunge,
And like the Planets euer loue to raunge :
What shall I doe thus wronged with disdain ?

On her ? fond man, that were to warre gainst heauen,
And with one shaft prouoke ten thousand darts :
This Troians end will be thy enuies aime,
Whose bloud will reconcile thee to content,
And make loue drunken with thy sweete desire : 985
But Dido that now holdeth him so deare,
Will dye with very tidings of his death :
But time will discontinue her content,
And mould her minde vnto newe fancies shapes.
O God of heauen, turne the hand of fate 990

Diao. Æneas.

996

Æn. Dido.

Dido. Tell me deare loue, how found you out this Caue?

Æn. By chance sweete Queene, as Mars and Venus met.

Dido. Why, that was in a net, where we are loose,
And yet I am not free, oh would I were.

1001

Æn. Why, what is it that Dido may desire
And not obtaine, be it in humane power?

Dido. The thing that I will dye before I aske,
And yet desire to haue before I dye.

1005

Æn. It is not ought Æneas may atchieue?

Dido. Æneas no, although his eyes doe pearce.

Æn. What, hath Iarbus angered her in ought?
And will she be auenged on his life?

Dido. Not angered me, except in angring thee

1010

Æn. Who then of all so cruell may he be,
That should detaine thy eye in his defects?

Dido. The man that I doe eye where ere I am,
Whose amorous face like Pean sparkles fire,
When as he buts his beames on Floras bed.

1015

Prometheus hath put on Cupids shape,
And I must perish in his burning armes:

Æneas, O Æneas, quench these flames.

Æn. What ailes my Queene, is she falne sicke of late?

Dido. Not sicke my loue, but sicke, I must concele
The torment, that it bootes me not reueale,

1021

And yet Ile speake, and yet Ile hold my peace,
Doc shame her worst, I will disclose my grieve:

Æneas, thou art he. What did I say?

Something it was that now I haue forgot.

1025

Æn. What meanes faire Dido by this doubtfull speech?

Dido. Nay, nothing, but Æneas loues me not.

Æn. Æneas thoughts dare not ascend so high
As Didos heart, which Monarkes might not scale.

Dido. It was because I sawe no King like thee,

 Yet Dido casts her eyes like anchors out, 1175
 To stay my Fleete from loosing forth the Bay :
 Come backe, come backe, I heare her crye a farre,
 And let me linke thy bodie to my lips,
 That tyed together by the striuing tongues,

Acha. Banish that ticing dame from forth your mouth,
 And follow your foreseeing starres in all ;
 This is no life for men at armes to liue,
 Where daliance doth consume a Souldiers strength,
 And wanton motions of alluring eyes 1185
 Effeminate our mindes inur'd to warre.

Illio. Why, let vs build a Citie of our owne,
 And not stand lingering here for amorous lookes :
 Will Dido raise old Priam forth his graue,
 And build the towne againe the Greekes did burne ? 1190

 To leaue her so and not once say farewell
 Were to transgresse against all lawes of loue :
 But if I vse such ceremonious thankes,

 Her siluer armes will coll me round about,

Enter Dido and Anna.

Dido. O Anna, runne vnto the water side,
They say Aeneas men are going abourd,
It may be he will steale away with them :
Stay not to answere me, runne Anna runne. (Exit Anna.)
O foolish Troians that would steale from hence, 1211
And not let Dido vnderstand their drift :
I would haue giuen Achates store of gold,
And Illioneus gum and Libian spice,
The common souldiers rich imbrodered coates, 1215
And siluer whistles to controule the windes,
Which Circes sent Sicheus when he liued :
Vnworthie are they of a Queenes reward :
See where they come. How might I doe to chide ?

Enter Anna, with Aeneas, Achates, Illioneus, and Sergestus.

Anna. Twas time to runne, Aeneas had been gone. 1220
The sailes were hoysing vp, and he abourd.

Dido. Is this thy loue to me ?

Æn. O princely Dido, giue me leaue to speake,
I went to take my farewell of Achates.

Dido. How haps Achates bid me not farewell ? 1225

Acha. Because I feard your grace would keepe me here.

Dido. To rid thee of that doubt, abourd againe,
I charge thee put to sea and stay not here.

Acha. Then let Aeneas goe abourd with vs.

Dido. Get you abourd, Aeneas meanes to stay. 1230

Æn. The sea is rough, the windes blow to the shoare.

Dido. O false Aeneas, now the sea is rough,
But when you were abourd twas calme enough.
Thou and Achates ment to saile away.

Æn. Hath not the Carthage Queene mine onely sonne ?
Thinke Dido I will goe and leaue him here ? 1236

Dido. Aeneas pardon me, for I forgot
That yong Ascanius lay with me this night :
Loue made me iealous, but to make amends,
Weare the emperiall Crowne of Libia, 1240

Dido. O how a Crowne becomes Aeneas head!

Stay here Aeneas, and commaund as King. 1245

En. How vaine am I to weare this Diadem,

And beare this golden Scepter in my hand?

A Burgonet of steele, and not a Crowne,

A Sword, and not a Scepter fits Aeneas.

Dido. O keepe them still, and let me gaze my fill: 1250

Now lookes Aeneas like immortall Ioue,

O where is Ganimed to hold his cup,

And Mercury to flye for what he calles?

Ten thousand Cupids houer in the ayre,

And fanne it in Aeneas louely face. 1255

O that the Clowdes were here wherein thou fleest,

That thou and I vnseene might sport our selues:

Heauen enuious of our ioyes is waxen pale,

And when we whisper, then the starres fall downe,

To be partakers of our honey talke. 1260

En. O Dido, patronesse of all our liues,

When I leaue thee, death be my punishment.

Swell raging seas, frowne wayward destinies,

Blow windes, threaten ye Rockes and sandie shelves,

This is the harbour that Aeneas seekes, 1265

Lets see what tempests can anoy me now.

Dido. Not all the world can take thee from mine armes,

Aeneas may commaund as many Moores,

As in the Sea are little water drops:

And now to make experience of my loue, 1270

Faire sister Anna leade my louer forth,

And seated on my Gennet, let him ride

As Didos husband through the Punicke streetes,

And will my guard with Mauritanian darts,

To waite vpon him as their soueraigne Lord. 1275

Anna. What if the Citizens repine thereat?

Dido. Those that dislike what Dido giues in charge

Commaund my guard to slay for their offence:

Dido. Speake of no other land, this land is thine,
Dido is thine, henceforth Ile call thee Lord : 1290
Doe as I bid thee. Sister, leade the way,

Dido. Speakes not Aeneas like a Conqueror ?
O blessed tempests that did driue him in, 1300
O happie sand that made him runne aground :
Henceforth you shall be our Carthage Gods :
I, but it may be he will leaue my loue,
And seeke a forraine land calde Italy :
O that I had a charme to keepe the windes 1305
Within the closure of a golden ball,
Or that the Tyrrhen sea were in mine armes,
That he might suffer shipwracke on my breast,
As oft as he attempts to hoyst vp saile.

 It is Aeneas frowne that ends my daies :

(Lord.) Your Nurse is gone with yong Ascanius, 1330
 And heres Aeneas tackling, oares and sailes.

Dido. Are these the sailes that in despite of me,
 Packt with the windes to beare Aeneas hence ?
 Ile hang ye in the chamber where I lye,
 Drive if you can my house to Italy : 1335
 Ile set the casement open that the windes
 May enter in, and once againe conspire
 Against the life of me poore Carthage Queene :
 But though he goe, he stayes in Carthage still,
 And let rich Carthage fleete vpon the seas, 1340
 So I may haue Aeneas in mine armes.
 Is this the wood that grew in Carthage plaines,
 And would be toying in the watrie billowes,
 To rob their mistresse of her Troian guest ?
 O cursed tree, hadst thou but wit or sense, 1345
 To measure how I prize Aeneas loue,
 Thou wouldst haue leapt from out the Sailers hands,
 And told me that Aeneas ment to goe :
 And yet I blame thee not, thou art but wood.
 The water which our Poets terme a Nymph, 1350
 Why did it suffer thee to touch her breast,
 And shrunke not backe, knowing my loue was there ?
 The water is an Element, no Nymph,
 Why should I blame Aeneas for his flight ?

THE MASSACRE AT PARIS

Date. The play of The Massacre at Paris or The Guise, as Henslowe sometimes terms it with rather more propriety, must have been composed between August 2, 1589, and January 30, 1593. On the first of these dates occurred the event with which the tragedy closes, the death of Henri III of France; on the latter occasion the play was performed at Henslowe's theatre by the company of the Lord Strange. Since Henslowe marks 'the tragedey of the gvyes' as a new play on January 30, 1593, it was probably composed pretty shortly before, and is therefore to be reckoned one of the latest of Marlowe's dramatic works. Crude as the play undoubtedly is, there is nothing to indicate that it was written very immediately after the assassination of the French king, for that event, which in a contemporary 'topical' drama would naturally have formed the mainstay of the plot, is here given very little importance, while the principal interest centres about the ancient history of St. Bartholomew and the animosities of Guise and Navarre.

Stage history. In addition to the single performance by Lord Strange's servants already mentioned, which produced the large sum of £3 14s., Henslowe records ten representations by the Admiral's company between June 19 and September 25, 1594. Notes of expenditure for stage properties show that The Guise was revived in 1598, and again in 1601, and a further memorandum records the disbursement of £6 'pd at the apoyntment of the companye the 18 of Janewary 1601 [1602, N.S.] vnto E. Alleyn for iij. boockes wch were played', second on the list being 'the massaker of france'. Mr. Greg is no doubt correct in his opinion¹ that the manuscript of our play had been brought to the Admiral's company by Alleyn, when that famous actor left Lord Strange's men to join the other troupe.

been registered for publication. There exists, however, a single early edition 'printed by E. A. for Edward White, dwelling . . . at the signe of the Gun'. The title-page bears no date and the publication has been conjecturally ascribed to various years between 1594 and 1600. I believe that the edition is somewhat later and that it rather follows than precedes the last revival of the play in 1601. In the first place, the very full character of the stage directions¹ indicates that the text is based on a theatre copy, and such a copy would certainly have been more easily obtainable after it was no longer of immediate use to the company. Moreover, Edward White, though he is known to have published a book as early as 1577, was connected with only one other edition of a work by Marlowe—the Tamburlaine of 1605/6, where on the title-pages of both parts there is the same mention of White's name with the notice of his shop 'at the signe of the Gunne', and in the case of the second part 'E. A.' is again particularly named as the printer. Such evidence is of no great weight, but it is borne out by the general similarity in typographical details between the 1605/6 Tamburlaine and the undated edition of The Massacre.

Of all the extant plays of Marlowe this of The Massacre at Paris is in its present state much the least meritorious. There can hardly be any doubt that our text is shockingly garbled; it would seem to represent a theatrical abridgement, in which the poet's language and versification have been corrupted on nearly every page, while the very sense of the original can in several passages be only imperfectly preserved. We have no reason to suppose that the play ever possessed in a high degree either coherence or artistic finish; it appears to have been the result of a somewhat ill-digested conception hastily and carelessly worked out. There is nothing to indicate collaboration or methodical revision. Throughout the play, to the very end, occur lines of the most characteristically Marlovian quality,² and there appears no trace of any second hand except that of the theatrical adapter. The fallacy of the theory, several times suggested, that Marlowe left the play to be completed by another is evident from the indisputable genuineness of the French king's last speeches (ll. 1205-1221, 1241-1257), while the final words of Navarre, with which the piece closes, are as convincing in their swing and melody as the poet's autograph :

And then I vow for to reuenge his death,
As Rome and all those popish Prelates there,
Shall curse the time that ere Nauarre was King,
And rulde in France by Henries fatall death.

Source. It is not probable that Marlowe derived the subject-matter of his play from any one book. The period of the action covers seventeen years (1572-89), and while the earlier events, such as the Massacre of St. Bartholomew, had already found their way into historical chronicles when the play was written, the later incidents must still have been matter for rumour and journalistic report. Mr. Bullen has pointed out several parallels between Marlowe's treatment of the massacre and that found in Book X of The Three Parties of Commentaries containing the whole and perfect discourse of the Civill Wars of France, &c. (1574). Much of Marlowe's information concerning the later occurrences, which are lightly treated in the play, must have been picked up from broadsides or word of mouth gossip.

Enter Charles the French King, the Queene Mother, the King of Nauarre, the Prince of Condy, the Lord high Admirall, and the Queene of Nauarre, with others.

Charles.

Prince of Nauarre my honourable brother,
Prince Condy, and my good Lord Admirall,
I wishe this vnion and religious league,
Knit in these hands, thus ioyn'd in nuptiall rites,
May not desolue, till death desolue our liues, 5
And that the native sparkes of princely loue,
That kindled first this motion in our hearts,
May still be feweld in our progenye.

Nauar. The many fauours which your grace hath showne,
From time to time, but specially in this, 10
Shall binde me euer to your highnes will
In what Queen Mother or your grace commands.

Old Qu. Thanks sonne Nauarre, you see we loue you well,
That linke you in mariage with our daughter heer :
And as you know, our difference in Religion 15
Might be a meanes to crosse you in your loue.

Charles. Well Madam, let that rest :

And now my Lords the mariage rites perfourm'd,
 We think it good to goe and consumate
 The rest, with hearing of a holy Masse : 20
 Sister, I think your selfe will beare vs company.

Q. Mar. I will my good Lord.

Charles. The rest that will not goe (my Lords) may stay :
 Come Mother,
 Let vs goe to honor this solemnitie. 25

Old Q. Which Ile desolue with bloud and crueltie.

Exit the King, Q. Mother, and the Q. of Nauar, and manet Nauar, the Prince of Condy, and the Lord high Admirall.

Nauar. Prince Condy and my good L(ord) Admiral,
 Now Guise may storme but doe vs little hurt :
 Hauing the King, Qu(een) Mother on our sides,
 To stop the mallice of his enuious heart, 30
 That seekes to murder all the Protestants :
 Haue you not heard of late how he decreed,
 If that the King had giuen consent thereto,
 That all the protestants that are in Paris,
 Should haue been murdered the other night ? 35

Ad. My Lord I meruaile that th'aspiring Guise
 Dares once aduenture without the Kings consent,
 To meddle or attempt such dangerous things.

Con. My L(ord) you need not meruaile at the Guise,
 For what he doth the Pope will ratifie : 40
 In murder, mischeefe, or in tiranny.

Na. But he that sits and rules aboue the clowdes,
 Doth heare and see the praiers of the iust :
 And will reuenge the bloud of innocents,
 That Guise hath slaine by treason of his heart, 45
 And brought by murder to their timeles ends.

Ad. My Lord, but did you mark the Cardinall,
 The Guises brother and the Duke Dumain :
 How they did storme at these your nuptiall rites,
 Because the house of Burbon now comes in, 50
 And ioynes your linnage to the crowne of France ?

Na. And thats ^þ cause that Guise so frowns at vs,
 And beates his braines to catch vs in his trap,
 Which he hath pitcht within his deadly toyle.

And make his Gospel flourish in this land. Exeunt.

Enter the Duke of Guise.

Guise. If euer Hymen lowr'd at marriage rites,
And had his alters deckt with duskie lightes :
If euer sunne staine heauen with bloudy clowdes, 60
And made it look with terrour on the worlde :
If euer day were turnde to vgly night,
And night made semblance of the hue of hell,
This day, this houre, this fatall night,
Shall fully shew the fury of them all. 65
Apothecarie.

Enter the Pothecarie.

Pothe. My Lord.

Guise. Now shall I proue and guerdon to the ful
The loue thou bear'st vnto the house of Guise :
Where are those perfumed gloues which I sent 70
To be poysoned, hast thou done them ? speake,
Will euery sauour breed a pangue of death ?

Pothe. See where they be my good Lord,
And he that smelles but to them, dyes.

Guise. Then thou remainest resolute. 75

Pothe. I am my Lord, in what your grace commaundes
Till death.

Guise. Thankes my good freend, I wil requite thy loue.
Goe then, present them to the Queene Nauarre :
For she is that huge blemish in our eye, 80
That makes these vpstart heresies in Fraunce :
Be gone my freend, present them to her straites.
Souldyer.

Exit Pothe.

Enter a Souldier.

Soul. My Lord.

Guise. Now come thou forth and play thy tragick part, 85
Stand in some window opening neere the street,
And when thou seest the Admirall ride by,
Discharge thy musket and perfourme his death :
And then Ile guerdon thee with store of crownes.

 To burst abroad those neuer dying flames, 92
 Which cannot be extinguisht but by bloud.
 Oft haue I leueld, and at last haue learnd,
 That perill is the cheefest way to happines, 95
 And resolution honors fairest aime.
 What glory is there in a common good,
 That hanges for euery peasant to atchiue ?
 That like I best that flyes beyond my reach.
 Set me to scale the high Peramides, 100
 And thereon set the Diadem of Fraunce,
 Ile either rend it with my nayles to naught,
 Or mount the top with my aspiring winges,
 Although my downfall be the deepest hell.
 For this, I wake, when others think I sleepe, 105
 For this, I waite, that scornes attendance else :
 For this, my quenchles thirst whereon I build
 Hath often pleaded kindred to the King.
 For this, this head, this heart, this hand and sworde,
 Contriues, imagines and fully executes 110
 Matters of importe, aimde at by many,
 Yet vnderstoode by none.
 For this, hath heauen engendred me of earth,
 For this, this earth sustaines my bodies waight,
 And with this wait Ile counterpoise a Crowne, 115
 Or with seditions weary all the worlde :
 For this, from Spaine the stately Catholickes
 Sends Indian golde to coyne me French ecues :
 For this haue I a largesse from the Pope,
 A pension and a dispensation too : 120
 And by that priuiledge to worke vpon,
 My policye hath framde religion.

 Fye, I am ashamde, how euer that I seeme,
 To think a word of such a simple sound 125
 Of so great matter should be made the ground.
 The gentle King whose pleasure vncontrold,
 Weakneth his body, and will waste his Realme,
 If I repaire not what he ruinate :

 Fife hundred fatte Franciscan Fryers and priestes—
 All this and more, if more may be compride,
 To bring the will of our desires to end.

 Since thou hast all the Cardes within thy hands
 To shuffle or cut, take this as surest thing :
 That right or wrong, thou deale thy selfe a King

 But first lets follow those in France,
 That hinder our possession to the crowne : 155
 As Cæsar to his souldiers, so say I :
 Those that hate me will I learn to loath.
 Giue me a look, that when I bend the browes,
 Pale death may walke in furrowes of my face :
 A hand, that with a graspe may gripe the world, 160
 An eare, to heare what my detractors say,
 A royall seate, a scepter and a crowne :
 That those which doe beholde, they may become
 As men that stand and gase against the Sunne.

 Then breath a while. 245

Enter the Admirals man.

King. How now fellow, what newes ?

Man. And it please your grace the Lord high Admirall,
 Riding the streetes was traiterously shot,
 And most humbl(i)e intreates your Maiestie
 To visite him sick in his bed. 250

King. Messenger, tell him I will see him straite.

Exit Messenger.

What shall we doe now with the Admirall ?

Qu. Your Maiesty were best goe visite him,
 And make a shew as if all were well.

King. Content, I will goe visite the Admirall. 255

Guise. And I will goe take order for his death.

Exeunt.

Enter the Admirall in his bed.

King. How fares it with my Lord high Admirall,
 Hath he been hurt with villaines in the street ?
 I vow and sweare as I am King of France,
 To finde and to repay the man with death : 260
 With death delay'd and torments neuer vsde,
 That durst presume for hope of any gaine,
 To hurt the noble man their soueraign loues.

Ad. Ah my good Lord, these are the Guisians,
 That seeke to massacre our guiltles liues. 265

King. Assure your selfe my good Lord Admirall,
 I deeply sorrow for your trecherous wrong :
 And that I am not more secure my selfe,
 Then I am carefull you should be preserued.
 Cosin, take twenty of our strongest garde, 270
 And vnder your direction see they keep
 All trecherous violence from our noble freend,
 Repaying all attempts with present death

Guise.

Anioy, Dumaine, Gonzago, Retes, sweare
By the argent crosses in your burgonets,
To kill all that you suspect of heresie. 280

Dumain. I sweare by this to be vnmercifull.

Anioy. I am disguise and none knows who I am,
And therefore meane to murder all I meet.

Gonza. And so will I.

Retes. And I. 285

Guise. Away then, break into the Admirals house.

Retes. I let the Admirall be first dispatcht.

Guise. The Admirall,
Cheefe standard bearer to the Lutheranes,
Shall in the entrance of this Massacre, 290
Be murdered in his bed. Gonzago
Conduct them thither, and then
Beset his house that not a man may liue.

Anioy. That charge is mine. Swizers keepe you the streetes,

And at ech corner shall the Kings garde stand. 295

Gonzago. Come sirs follow me.

Exit Gonzago and others with him.

Anioy. Cosin, the Captaine of the Admirals garde,
Plac'd by my brother, will betray his Lord :
Now Guise shall catholiques flourish once againe,
The head being of, the members cannot stand. 300

Retes. But look my Lord, ther's some in the Admirals house.

Enter into the Admirals house, and he in his bed.

Anioy. In lucky time, come let vs keep this lane,

 For while she liues Katherine will be Queene.
 Come my Lord, let vs goe seek the Guise, 660
 And then determine of this enterprise. Exeunt.

Enter the Duchesse of Guise, and her Maide.

Duch. Goe fetch me pen and inke.

Maid. I will Madam. Exit Maid.

Duch. That I may write vnto my dearest Lord.
 Sweet Mugeronne, tis he that hath my heart, 665
 And Guise vsurpes it, cause I am his wife :
 Faine would I finde some means to speak with him

648 are Dyce etc. : as O 660 lord Dyce etc. : Lords O
 661 + (Act II.) Scene V. add. Rob., Cunn. : Scene XV. add. Bull.

But cannot, and therefore am enforst to write,
That he may come and meet me in some place,
Where we may one inioy the others sight.

670

Enter the Maid with Inke and Paper.

So, set it down and leaue me to my selfe. She writes.
O would to God this quill that heere doth write,
Had late been pluckt from out faire Cupids wing :
That it might print these lines within his heart.

Enter the Guise.

Guise. What, all alone my loue, and writing too : 675
I prethee say to whome thou writes ?

Duch. To such a one my Lord, as when she reads
My lines,

Will laugh I feare me at their good aray.

Guise. I pray thee let me see. 680

Duch. O no my Lord, a woman only must Partake the secrets of my heart.

Guise. But Madam I must see. He takes it.
Are these your secrets that no man must know ?

Duch. O pardon me my Lord. 685

Guise. Thou trothles and vniust, what lines are these ?

Am I growne olde, or is thy lust growne yong,

Or hath my loue been so obscurde in thee,

That others needs to comment on my text ?

Is all my loue forgot which helde thee deare ? 690

I, dearer then the apple of mine eye ?

Is Guises glory but a clowdy mist,

In sight and iudgement of thy lustfull eye ?

Mor d(ie)n, were not the fruit within thy wombe,

Of whose encrease I set some longing hope : 695

This wrathfull hand should strike thee to the hart.

Hence strumpet, hide thy head for shame,

And fly my presence if thou looke to liue. Exit (Duchess).

O wicked sexe, periured and vniust,

Now doe I see that from the very first, 700

Her eyes and lookes sow'd seeds of periury,

But villaine he to whom these lines should goe,

Shall buy her loue euen with his dearest bloud. Exit.

Enter the King of Nauarre, Pleshe and Bartus, and their train, with drums and trumpets.

Nauarre.

My Lords, sith in a quarrell iust and right,
We vndertake to mannage these our warres 705
Against the proud disturbers of the faith,
I meane the Guise, the Pope, and King of Spaine,
Who set themselues to tread vs vnder foot,
And rent our true religion from this land ;
But for you know our quarrell is no more, 710
But to defend their strange inuentions,
Which they will put vs to with sword and fire :
We must with resolute mindes resolute to fight,
In honor of our God and countries good.
Spaine is the counsell chamber of the pope, 715
Spaine is the place where he makes peace and warre,
And Guise for Spaine hath now incenst the King,
To send his power to meet vs in the field.

Bartus. Then in this bloody brunt they may beholde,
The sole endeouour of your princely care, 720
To plant the true succession of the faith,
In spite of Spaine and all his heresies.

Nauarre. The power of vengeance now incampes it selfe
Vpon the hauty mountains of my brest :
Plaies with her goary coulours of reuenge, 725
Whom I respect as leaues of boasting greene,
That change their coulour when the winter comes,
When I shall vaunt as victor in reuenge.

Enter a Messenger.

How now sirra, what newes ?

Mes. My Lord, as by our scouters we vnderstande, 730
A mighty army comes from France with speed :
Which are already mustered in the land,
And meanes to meet your highnes in the field.

Na. In Gods name, let them come.
This is the Guise that hath incenst the King, 735
To leauy armes and make these ciuill broyles :
But canst thou tell who is their generall ?

Mes. Not yet my Lord, for thereon doe they stay :
But as report doth goe, the Duke of Ioyeux
Hath made great sute vnto the King therefore. 740

703+Scene XVI. add. Bull.

739 Duke of Duke Cunn.

Na. It will not counteruaile his paines I hope.
 I would the Guise in his steed might haue come,
 But he doth lurke within his drousie couch,
 And makes his footstoole on securitie :
 So he be safe he cares not what becomes 745
 Of King or Country, no not for them both.
 But come my Lords, let vs away with speed,
 And place our selues in order for the fight. Exeunt.

Enter the King of France, Duke of Guise, Epernoune, and Duke Ioyeux.

King. My sweet Ioyeux, I make thee Generall
 Of all my army now in readines 750
 To march against the rebellious King Nauarre.
 At thy request I am content thou goe,
 Although my loue to thee can hardly suffer,
 Regarding still the danger of thy life.

Ioyeux. Thanks to your Maiestie, and so I take my leaue. 755
Farwell to my Lord of Guise and Epernoune.

Guise. Health and harty farwell to my Lord Ioyeux.
Exit Ioyeux.

King. So kindly Cosin of Guise you and your wife
 Doe both salute our louely Minions.

He makes hornes at the Guise.
 Remember you the letter gentle sir, 760
 Which your wife writ

To my deare Minion, and her chosen freend ?

Guise. How now my Lord, faith this is more then need,
 Am I thus to be iested at and scornde ?

Tis more then kingly or Emperious. 765

And sure if all the proudest Kings
 In Christendome should beare me such derision,
 They should know how I scornde them and their mockes
 I loue your Minions? dote on them your selfe,
 I know none els but holdes them in disgrace : 770

And heer by all the Saints in heauen I sweare,
 That villain for whom I beare this deep disgrace :
 Euen for your words that haue incenst me so,
 Shall buy that strumpets fauour with his blood,

King. Beleeue me this iest bites sore.

Eper. My Lord, twere good to make them frends
 For his othes are seldome spent in vaine.

Enter Mugeroun.

King. How now Mugeroun, metst thou not the Guise
 at the doore? 780

Muge. Not I my Lord, what if I had?

King. Marry if thou hadst, thou mightst haue had the stab,

For he hath solemnely sworne thy death.

Muge. I may be stabd, and liue till he be dead,
 But wherefore beares he me such deadly hate? 785

King. Because his wife beares thee such kindly loue.

Muge. If that be all, the next time that I meet her,
 Ile make her shake off loue with her heeles.

But which way is he gone? Ile goe make a walk
 On purpose from the Court to meet with him. Exit.

King. I like not this, come Epernourne 791
 Lets goe seek the Duke and make them frends. Exeunt.

Alarums within. The Duke Ioyeux slaine.

Enter the King of Nauarre and his traine.

Nauarre.

The Duke is slaine and all his power dispearest,
 And we are grac'd with wreathes of victory :
 Thus God we see doth euer guide the right, 795
 To make his glory great vpon the earth.

Bar. The terrour of this happy victory,
 I hope will make the King surcease his hate :
 And either neuer mannage army more,
 Or else employ them in some better cause. 800

Na. How many noble men haue lost their liues,
 In prosecution of these cruell armes,
 Is ruth and almost death to call to minde :
 But God we know will alwaies put them downe,
 That lift themselues against the perfect truth, 805

 Let vs away with triumph to our tents. Exeunt.

Enter a Souldier.

Soul. Sir, to you sir, that dares make the Duke a cuck-olde, and vse a counterfeite key to his priuie Chamber doore:
 And although you take out nothing but your owne, yet you put in that which displeaseth him and so forestall his market, and set vp your standing where you should not:
 and whereas hee is your Landlord, you will take vpon you to be his, and tyll the ground that he himself should occupy, which is his own free land. If it be not too free there's the question: and though I come not to take possession (as I would I might) yet I meane to keepe you out, which I will if this geare holde: what are ye come so soone? haue at ye sir.

Enter Mugeroun.

He shootes at him and killes him.

Enter the Guise.

Guise. Holde thee tall Souldier, take thee this and flye.
Exit Soul.

Lye there the Kings delight, and Guises scorne. 825
 Reuenge it Henry as thou list or dare,
 I did it only in despite of thee.

Take him away.

Enter the King and Epernoune.

King.

My Lord of Guise, we vnderstand
 That you haue gathered a power of men.
 What your intent is yet we cannot learn, 830
 But we presume it is not for our good.

Guise. Why I am no traitor to the crowne of France.
 What I haue done tis for the Gospell sake.

Eper. Nay for the Popes sake, and thine owne benefite.
 What Peere in France but thou (aspiring Guise) 835

Durst be in armes without the Kings consent ?
I challenge thee for treason in the cause.

Guise. Ah base Epernourne, were not his highnes heere,
Thou shouldst perceiue the D'uke of Guise is mou'd.

King. Be patient Guise and threat not Epernourne, 840
Least thou perceiue the King of France be mou'd.

Guise. Why ? I am a Prince of the Valoyses line,
Therefore an enemy to the Burbonites.

I am a iuror in the holy league,
And therefore hated of the Protestants. 845

What should I doe but stand vpon my garde ?
And being able, Ile keep an hoast in pay.

Epernourne. Thou able to maintaine an hoast in pay,
That liuest by forraine exhibition.
The Pope and King of Spaine are thy good frends, 850
Else all France knowes how poor a Duke thou art.

King. I those are they that feed him with their golde,
To countermaund our will and check our freends.

Guise. My Lord, to speak more plainly, thus it is :
Being animated by Religious zeale, 855

I meane to muster all the power I can,
To ouerthrow those sexious Puritans :
And know my Lord, the Pope will sell his triple crowne,
I, and the catholick Philip King of Spaine,
Ere I shall want, will cause his Indians 860
To rip the golden bowels of America.

Nauarre that cloakes them vnderneath his wings,
Shall feele the house of Lorayne is his foe :
Your highnes needs not feare mine armies force,
Tis for your safetie and your enemies wrack. 865

King. Guise, weare our crowne, and be thou King of France,

And as Dictator make or warre or peace,
Whilste I cry placet like a Senator.
I cannot brook thy hauty insolence,
Dismisse thy campe or else by our Edict 870
Be thou proclaimde a traitor throughout France.

Guise. The choyse is hard, I must dissemble.
My Lord, in token of my true humilitie,
And simple meaning to your Maestie :
I kisse your graces hand, and take my leaue, 875
Intending to dislodge my campe with speed.

857 sexious O : factious conj. Malone, conj. Coll., Dyce^a etc. 872

King. Then farwell Guise, the King and thou are freends.

Exit Guise.

Eper. But trust him not my Lord,
For had your highnesse seene with what a pompe
He entred Paris, and how the Citizens 880
With gifts and shewes did entertaine him,
And promised to be at his commaund :
Nay, they fear'd not to speak in the streetes,
That the Guise durst stand in armes against the King,
For not effecting of his holines will. 885

King. Did they of Paris entertaine him so ?
Then meanes he present treason to our state.
Well, let me alone ; whose within there ?

Enter one with a pen and inke.

Make a discharge of all my counsell straitte,
And Ile subscribe my name and seale it straight. 890
My head shall be my counsell, they are false :
And Epernoune I will be rulde by thee.

Eper. My Lord,
I think for safety of your royall person,
It would be good the Guise were made away, 895
And so to quite your grace of all suspect.

King. First let vs set our hand and seale to this,
(He writes.)

And then Ile tell thee what I meane to doe.
So, conuey this to the counsell presently. Exit one.
And Epernoune though I seeme milde and calme, 900

Thinke not but I am tragicall within :
Ile secretly conuay me vnto Bloyse,
For now that Paris takes the Guises parte,
Heere is no staying for the King of France,
Vnles he meane to be betraide and dye : 905
But as I liue, so sure the Guise shall dye. Exeunt.

Enter the King of Nauarre reading of a letter, and Bartus.

Nauarre.

And that Paris is reuolted from his grace.

Bar. Then hath your grace fit oportunitie, 910
To shew your loue vnto the King of France :
Offering him aide against his enemies,
Which cannot but be thankfully receiu'd.

Nauarre. Bartus, it shall be so, poast then to Fraunce,
And there salute his highnesse in our name, 915
Assure him all the aide we can prouide,
Against the Guisians and their complices.
Bartus be gone, commend me to his grace,
And tell him ere it be long, Ile visite him. 919

Bar. I will my Lord. Exit.

Enter Pleshe.

Nauarre. Pleshe.

Pleshe. My Lord.

Na. Pleshe, goe muster vp our men with speed,
And let them march away to France amaine :
For we must aide the King against the Guise. 925
Be gone I say, tis time that we were there.

Pleshe. I goe my Lord.

Nauar. That wicked Guise I feare me much will be
The ruine of that famous Realme of France :
For his aspiring thoughts aime at the crowne, 930
And takes his vantage on Religion,
To plant the Pope and popelings in the Realme,
And binde it wholly to the Sea of Rome :
But if that God doe prosper mine attempts,
And send vs safely to arriue in France : 935
Wee'l beat him back, and driue him to his death,
That basely seekes the ruine of his Realme. Exeunt.

Enter the Captaine of the garde, and three murtherers.

Captaine.

Come on sirs, what, are you resolutely bent,
Hating the life and honour of the Guise ?
What, will you not feare when you see him come ? 940

3. But when will he come that we may murder him ?

Cap. Well, then I see you are resolute. 945

1. Let vs alone, I warrant you.

Cap. Then sirs take your standings within this Chamber,
For anon the Guise will come.

All. You will giue vs our money?

Cap. I, I, feare not: stand close, so, be resolute : 950
Now fals the star whose influence gouernes France,
Whose light was deadly to the Protestants :
Now must he fall and perish in his height.

Enter the King and Epernounc.

King.

Now Captain of my garde, are these murderers ready ?

Cap. They be my good Lord. 955

King. But are they resolute and armed to kill,
Hating the life and honour of the Guise ?

Cap. I warrant ye my Lord.

King. Then come proud Guise and heere disgordge thy brest,
Surchargde with surfet of ambitious thoughts : 960
Breath out that life wherein my death was hid,
And end thy endles treasons with thy death.

Enter the Guise and knocketh.

Guise.

Holla verlete, hey : Epernounc, where is the King ?

Eper. Mounted his royall Cabonet.

Guise. I prethee tell him that the Guise is heere. 965

Eper. And please your grace the Duke of Guise doth craue

Accesse vnto your highnes.

King. Let him come in.

Come Guise and see thy traiterous guile outreacht,

And perish in the pit thou mad'st for me. 970

The Guise comes to the King.

Guise. Good morrow to your Maiestie.

That in the Court I bare so great a traine. 975

King. They were to blame that said I was displeasde,
And you good Cosin to imagine it.

Twere hard with me if I should doubt my kinne,
Or be suspicious of my deerest freends :
Cousin, assure you I am resolute, 980
Whatsoever any whisper in mine eares,
Not to suspect disloyaltie in thee,
And so sweet Cuz farwell. Exit King.

Guise. So,
Now sues the King for fauour to the Guise, 985
And all his Minions stoup when I commaund :
Why this tis to haue an army in the field.
Now by the holy sacrament I sweare,
As ancient Romanes ouer their Captiue Lords,
So will I triumph ouer this wanton King, 990
And he shall follow my proud Chariots wheeles.
Now doe I but begin to look about,
And all my former time was spent in vaine :
Holde Sworde,
For in thee is the Duke of Guises hope. 995

Enter one of the Murtherers.

Villaine, why dost thou look so gastly ? speake.

Mur. O pardon me my Lord of Guise.

Guise. Pardon thee, why what hast thou done ?

Mur. O my Lord, I am one of them that is set to murder you. 1000

Guise. To murder me villaine ?

Mur. I my Lord, the rest haue taine their standings in the next roome, therefore good my Lord goe not foorth.

Guise. Yet Cæsar shall goe forth. 1005
Let mean consaits, and baser men feare death,
But they are pesants, I am Duke of Guise :
And princes with their lookes ingender feare.

2. Then pray to God, and aske forgiuenes of the King.

Guise. Trouble me not, I neare offended him,

Nor will I aske forgiuenes of the King.

Oh that I haue not power to stay my life,

Nor immortalitie to be reueng'd :

1020

To dye by Pesantes, what a greefe is this ?

Ah Sextus, be reueng'd vpon the King,

Philip and Parma, I am slaine for you :

Pope excommunicate, Philip depose,

The wicked branch of curst Valois his line.

1025

Vive la messa, perish Hugonets,

Thus Cæsar did goe foorth, and thus he dyed.

He dyes.

Enter Capitaine of the Guarde.

Captaine.

What, haue you done ?

Then stay a while and Ile goe call the King,

But see where he comes.

1030

My Lord, see where the Guise is slaine.

King. Ah this sweet sight is phisick to my soule,

Goe fetch his sonne for to beholde his death :

Surchargde with guilt of thousand massacres,

Mounser of Lorraine sinke away to hell.

1035

And in remembrance of those bloudy broyles,

To which thou didst allure me being aliue :

And heere in presence of you all I sweare,

I nere was King of France vtill this houre :

This is the traitor that hath spent my golde

Eper. My Lord heer is his sonne.

Enter the Guises sonne.

King.

Boy, look where your father lyes.

Yong Guise. My father slaine, who hath done this deed ?

King. Sirra twas I that slew him, and will slay 1060
 Thee too, and thou proue such a traitor.

Yong Guise. Art thou King, and hast done this bloody deed ?

Ile be reuengde.

But now I will be King and rule my selfe,
And make the Guisians stoup that are aliuie.

Queene. I cannot speak for greefe : when thou wast borne,
I would that I had murdered thee my sonne. 1085

My sonne ? thou art a changeling, not my sonne.
I curse thee and exclaime thee miscreant,

Traitor to God, and to the realme of France.

King. Cry out, exclaime, houle till thy throat be hoarce,
The Guise is slaine, and I reioyce therefore : 1090

And now will I to armes : come Epernourne,
And let her greewe her heart out if she will.

Queene. Away, leaue me alone to meditate.
Sweet Guise, would he had died so thou wert heere :

To whom shall I bewray my secrets now, 1095
Or who will helpe to builde Religion ?

The Protestants will glory and insulte,
Wicked Nauarre will get the crowne of France,

The Popedome cannot stand, all goes to wrack,
And all for thee my Guise : what may I doe ? 1100

But sorrow seaze vpon my toyling scule,
For since the Guise is dead, I will not liue. Exit.

Enter two dragging in the Cardenall.

Car. Murder me not, I am a Cardenall.

2. Shed your bloud, O Lord no : for we entend to strangle you.

Car. Then there is no remedye but I must dye.

1. No remedye, therefore prepare your selfe.

Car. Yet liues 1110

Enter Duke Dumayn reading of a letter, with others.

Dumaine.

My noble brother murdered by the King,
 Oh what may I doe, for to reuenge thy death? 1120
 The Kings alone, it cannot satisfie.
 Sweet Duke of Guise our prop to leane vpon,
 Now thou art dead, heere is no stay for vs :
 I am thy brother, and ile reuenge thy death,
 And roote Valoys his line from forth of France, 1125
 And beate proud Burbon to his natiue home,
 That basely seekes to ioyne with such a King,
 Whose murderous thoughts will be his ouerthrow.
 Hee wild the Gouvernour of Orleance in his name,
 That I with speed should haue beene put to death. 1130
 But thats preuented, for to end his life,
 And all those traitors to the Church of Rome,
 That durst attempt to murder noble Guise.

 strangled vnto death. 1136

Dumaine. My brother Cardenall slaine and I aliue ?
 O wordes of power to kill a thousand men.
 Come let vs away and leauy men,
 Tis warre that must asswage this tyrantes pride. 1140

Frier. My Lord, heare me but speak,
 I am a Frier of the order of the Iacobyns,
 That for my conscience sake will kill the King.

Dumaine. But what doth moue thee about the rest to ll. 812-827. In place of this passage, as given in the quarto, Collier published an amplified version which he claims to have derived from a manuscript source. The first allusion to the matter occurs in the introduction to Collier's edition of The Jew of Malta in the Dodsley of 1825, vol. viii, pp. 244, 245, where the editor says, alluding to the Massacre at Paris :

APPENDIX TO THE MASSACRE AT PARIS

'A curious MS. fragment of one quarto leaf of this tragedy came into the hands of Mr. Rodd of Newport-street not long since, which, as it very materially differs from the printed edition, is here inserted literatim : it perhaps formed part of a copy belonging to the theatre at the time it was first acted, and it would be still more valuable should any accident hereafter shew that it is in the original handwriting of Marlow.'

He then inserts the following version of the scene :

'Enter a SOULDIER with a muskett.

Souldier. Now, ser, to you y^t dares make a duke a cuck-olde, and use a counterfeyt key to his privie chamber : thoughte you take out none but yo^r owne treasure, yet you put in y^t displeases him, and fill up his rome y^t he shold occupie. Herein, ser, you forestalle the markt, and sett upe yo^r standinge where you shold not. But you will say you leave him rome enoughe besides : that's no answer : he's to have the choyce of his owne freeland, yf it be not to free, there's the questione. Now for where he is your landlorde, you take upon you to be his, and will needs enter by default. What thoughte you weere once in possession yett comminge upon you once unawares, he frayde you out againe : therefore your entrie is mere intrusion : this is against the law, ser. And thoughte I come not to keep possessione as I wolde I mighte, yet I come to keepe you out, ser,

Enter MINION.

You are welcome, ser ! have at you. [He kills him.
Minion. Trayterous Guise ah, thou has morthered me !

Enter GUISE.

Guise. Hold thee, tale soldier : take thee this and flye. [Exit.

Thus falls imperfett exhalation,
Which our great sonn of France cold not effecte ;
A fyery meteor in the fermament.
Lye there, the kinge's delyght and Guise's scorne !
Revenge it, Henry, if thou list or dar'st ;

I did it onely in dispight of thee.
Fondly hast thou incest (sic) the Guise's sowle
That if (sic) it self was hote enoughe to worke
Thy just degestation wth extreamest shame,
The armye I have gathered now shall ayme :
Now at thie end thine exterpatione :
And when thou think'st I have forgotten this,
And that thou most reposest one my faythe,
Than will I wake thee from thy foolishhe dreame,
And lett thee see thie self my prysoner. [Exeunt.]

In Collier's Annals of the Stage, 1831 (iii. 133-5) the same passage is inserted with a slightly varying explanation of its origin. The spelling is absolutely different and many phrases are entirely changed. As the MS. has apparently been seen by no one else, and as the wording of the expanded passage is very suspicious, Collier's statement should be received with caution.

HERO AND LEANDER

Hero and Leander is probably the latest of Marlowe's writings. Left a fragment at the poet's death, it was licensed a few months later (September 28, 1593) by John Wolf, as 'a booke intituled HERO and LEANDER beinge an amorous poem devised by CHRISTOPHER MARLOWE'. There is no evidence that Wolf actually published an edition; the earliest known to exist was issued in 1598 by Edward Blount, to whom Wolf seems in the meantime to have transferred his right in both this poem and in the translation of Lucan.¹

On March 2, 1597/8, Edward Blount assigned over to Paul Linley 'A booke in Englishe called HERO and LEANDER', and the latter published in 1598 at least one² complete version of the poem, including Chapman's continuation. Blount's right, derived from Wolf, seems to have extended only to Marlowe's portion of the poem; the rest Linley had probably secured from another source. The precise nature of the transaction between Blount and Linley is obscure. At the time that the former apparently gave up his interest in Hero and Leander—on what was by Elizabethan reckoning March 2, 1597—his own 1598 edition of the first two sestiads can obviously not have been published. It may have been in type, and there may have been an agreement with Linley, permitting its publication before Linley himself brought out the complete work, but the probability is that Blount did not entirely abandon his copyright in the poem. It is certain that he was later connected with the publication of the 1609 and 1613 editions.

In 1600 Paul Linley died (cf. McKerrow, Dict. of Printers, 177) and the Stationers' Register contains the following entry for June 26 of that year: 'John flasket Entred for his

¹ Cf. Introduction to Lucan's First Book, p. 642. The Stationers' Register does not, however, record any such transfer.

² Probably there were two 1598 editions which include the entire poem, besides Blount's edition of Marlowe's fragment.

copies by consent of our Maister and Master Man Warden these bookes and partes of Bookes folowyng whiche were Paule Lynlayes.' Then follow the titles of twenty-four works, one of which is 'HERO and LEANDER with the j. booke of LUCAN by MARLOWE'. Flasket published Hero and Leander in this same year (1600), and again in 1606. Strangely enough the title-page of the 1600 edition makes no mention of Chapman's continuation, which it contains, and advertises the presence of the Lucan translation, which, notwithstanding, does not appear in this book, but was published separately the same year by Thomas Thorpe with acknowledgements to Blount as former holder of the copyright.¹ Flasket had his head quarters at Linley's old place of business, the sign of the Black Bear in Paul's Churchyard, and Blount advertises the sale of his 1609 and 1613 editions at the same place. Possibly the most reasonable explanation of the puzzle is to assume that some kind of loose partnership existed between Blount and Linley and later between Blount and Flasket in regard to Hero and Leander. In any case it would seem clear that Blount's 1598 edition, containing only Marlowe's portion of the poem without Chapman's Arguments and division into Sestiads, is the oldest chronologically and the most authoritative.² My text follows this edition as far as it goes, the supplementary matter being given from the British Museum copy of Linley's 1598 edition.

The popularity of Hero and Leander with the Elizabethan public was enormous. The literature of the time abounds in allusions to the poem, and the list of early editions is a most impressive one. There were probably three separate editions in 1598, others in 1600, 1606, 1609, 1613, 1616, 1617, 1622, 1629, and 1637. Of these I have been unable so far to collate the third 1598 edition, the existence of which is not quite certainly established, or the unique copies of the 1616, 1617, and 1622 versions.

From lines 183-198 of the third sestiad it seems probable that Chapman's conclusion was undertaken by the authority of Marlowe himself, though such an interpretation may easily be a straining of the vague hints of the lines in question. During the year 1598, which was otherwise so important for the poem, there appeared another attempt at completing the torso. This continuation, which is of no poetic value, was the work of a feeble young poet, Henry Petowe, and was licensed April 14, 1598, by Andrew Harris, the publisher of the only edition. A ballad of Hero and Leander was entered on the Stationers' Register by John White on July 2, 1614.

Though Hero and Leander has often been called, and partly purports to be, a translation of the short Greek poem of the 'pseudo-Musaeus', it is almost entirely original throughout, except as regards the bare outline of the story. Chapman's completion of the poem seems, as has been said, to have been more or less authorized, and his supplementary cantos have been printed in every edition except the first. There is, however, very little cohesion as regards the plot between Marlowe's fragment and Chapman's, while in tone there is no resemblance whatever. The continuation has all the rhetorical stateliness of Chapman's best verse, and in places—notably in the tale of Teras¹—it possesses real poetic feeling and grace, but in general Chapman's part of the poem is confused, obscure, and dull. The eight hundred lines written by Marlowe show a lucidity and an artistic mastery of detail, both in structure and in expression, which no other narrative poem in English literature perhaps can equal. We here see Marlowe's genius at its very best—certainly in its most complete and rounded development. It is doubtful whether the English heroic couplet through all its varied and honourable history from the time of Chaucer to that of John Keats, has ever been used with more perfect melody or more wonderful understanding of its peculiar capabilities than in the first two sestiams of Hero and Leander. The verses have all the polish of Pope, and they have in addition a richness in sound and sense which finds its closest parallel in a work of the poet otherwise perhaps most nearly akin to Marlowe, the Endymion of Keats.

To the Right Worshipfull, Sir Thomas Walsingham, Knight.

Sir, wee thinke not our selues discharged of the dutie wee owe to our friend, when wee haue brought the breathlesse bodie to the earth : for albeit the eye there taketh his euer farwell of that beloued object, yet the impression of the man, that hath bene deare vnto vs, liuing an after life in our memory, there putteth vs in mind of farther obsequies due vnto the deceased. By these meditations (as by an intellectuall will) I suppose my selfe executor to the unhappily deceased author of this Poem, vpon whom knowing that in his life time you bestowed many kind fauours, entertaining the parts of reckoning and woorth which you found in him, with good countenance and liberall affection : I cannot but see so far into the will of him dead, that whatsoever issue of his brain should chance to come abroad, that the first breath it should take might be the gentle aire of your liking : for since his selfe had ben accustomed therunto, it would prooue more agreeable and thriving to his right children, than any other foster countenance whatsoever. That runs along his backe, but my rude pen
 Can hardly blazon foorth the loues of men, 70
 Much lesse of powerfull gods: let it suffice,
 That my slacke muse sings of Leanders eies,
 Those orient cheekes and lippes, exceeding his
 That leapt into the water for a kis
 Of his owne shadow, and despising many, 75
 Died ere he could enioy the loue of any.
 Had wilde Hippolitus Leander seene,
 Enamoured of his beautie had he beene,
 His presence made the rudest paisant melt,
 That in the vast vplandish cuntry dwelt, 80
 The barbarous Thracian soldier moou'd with nought,
 Was moou'd with him, and for his fauour sought.
 Some swore he was a maid in mans attire,
 For in his lookes were all that men desire,
 A pleasant smiling cheeke, a speaking eye, 85
 A brow for loue to banquet roiallye,
 And such as knew he was a man would say,
Leander, thou art made for amorous play:
 Why art thou not in loue, and lou'd of all?
 Though thou be faire, yet be not thine owne thrall. 90
 The men of wealthie Sestos, euerie yeare,
 (For his sake whom their goddessse held so deare,
 Rose-cheekt Adonis) kept a solemne feast.
 Thither resorted many a wandering guest,
 To meet their loues; such as had none at all, 95
 Came louers home from this great festiuall.
 For euerie street like to a Firmament
 Glistered with breathing stars, who where they went,
 Frighted the melancholie earth, which deem'd
 Eternall heauen to burne, for so it seem'd, 100
 As if another Phaeton had got
 The guidance of the sunnes rich chariot.
 But far aboue the loueliest Hero shin'd,
 And stole away th'inchaunted gazers mind,
 For like Sea-nymphs inueigling harmony, 105
 So was her beautie to the standers by.
 Nor that night-wandering pale and watrie starre

 Euen as, when gawdie Nymphs pursue the chace,
 Wretched Ixions shaggie footed race,
 Incenst with sauage heat, gallop amaine 115
 From steepe Pine-bearing mountains to the plaine :
 So ran the people foorth to gaze vpon her,
 And all that view'd her, were enamour'd on her.
 And as in furie of a dreadfull fight,
 Their fellowes being slaine or put to flight, 120
 Poore soldiers stand with fear of death dead strooken,
 So at her presence all surpris'd and taken,
 Await the sentence of her scornefull eies :
 He whom she fauours liues, the other dies.
 There might you see one sigh, another rage, 125
 And some (their violent passions to asswage)
 Compile sharpe satyrs, but alas too late,
 For faithfull loue will neuer turne to hate.
 And many seeing great princes were denied,
 Pyn'd as they went, and thinking on her died. 130
 On this feast day, O cursed day and hower,
 Went Hero thorow Sestos, from her tower
 To Venus temple, w(h)ere vnhappylye,
 As after chaunc'd, they did each other spye.
 So faire a church as this, had Venus none, 135
 The wals were of discoloured Iasper stone,
 Wherein was Proteus carued, and o'rehead,
 A liuelie vine of greene sea agget spread ;
 Where by one hand, light headed Bacchus hoong,
 And with the other, wine from grapes out wroong. 140
 Of Christall shining faire the pauement was,
 The towne of Sestos cal'd it Venus glasse.
 There might you see the gods in sundrie shapes,
 Committing headdie ryots, incest, rapes :
 For know, that vnderneath this radiant floure 145
 Was Danaes statue in a brazen tower,
Ioue stylic stealing from his sisters bed,
 To dallie with Idalian Ganimed,
 And for his loue Europa bellowing loud,
 And tumbling with the Rainbow in a cloud : 150
 Blood-quaffing Mars heauing the yron net,
 Which limping Vulcan and his Cyclops set :

Loue kindling fire, to burne such townes as Troy,
Sylvanus weeping for the louely boy
 That now is turn'd into a Cypres tree, 155
 Vnder whose shade the Wood-gods loue to bee.
 And in the midst a siluer altar stood ;
 There Hero sacrificing turtles blood,
 Vaild to the ground, vailing her eie-lids close,
 And modestly they opened as she rose : 160
 Thence flew Loues arrow with the golden head,
 And thus Leander was enamoured.
 Stone still he stood, and euermore he gazed,
 Till with the fire that from his count'nance blazed,
 Relenting Heroes gentle heart was strooke, 165
Such force and vertue hath an amorous looke.
 It lies not in our power to loue, or hate,
 For will in vs is ouer-rul'd by fate.
 When two are stript long ere the course begin,
 We wish that one should loose, the other win ; 170
 And one especiallie doe we affect
 Of two gold Ingots like in each respect.
 The reason no man knowes, let it suffice,
 What we behold is censur'd by our eies.
 Where both deliberat, the loue is slight, 175
 Who euer lov'd, that lov'd not at first sight ?
 He kneel'd, but vnto her deuoutly praid ;
 Chast Hero to her selfe thus softly said :
 Were I the saint hee worships, I would heare him,
 And as shee spake those words, came somewhat nere 180
 him. 180
 He started vp, she blusht as one asham'd ;
 Wherewith Leander much more was inflam'd.
 He toucht her hand, in touching it she trembled,
Loue deeply groundd, hardly is dissembled.
 These louers parled by the touch of hands, 185
 True loue is mute, and oft amazed stands.
 Thus while dum signs their yeelding harts entangled,
 The aire with sparkes of liuing fire was spangled,
 And night deepe drencht in mystie Acheron

Loues holy fire, with words, with sighs and teares,
 Which like sweet musicke entred Heroes eares,
 And yet at euerie word shee turn'd aside, 195
 And alwaies cut him off as he replide.
 At last, like to a bold sharpe Sophister,
 With chearefull hope thus he accosted her.
 Faire creature, let me speake without offence,
 I would my rude words had the influence, 200
 To lead thy thoughts as thy faire lookes doe mine,
 Then shouldst thou bee his prisoner who is thine.
 Be not vnkind and faire, mishapen stuffe
 Are of behauiour boisterous and ruffe.
 O shun me not, but heare me ere you goe, 205
 God knowes I cannot force loue, as you doe.
 My words shall be as spotlesse as my youth,
 Full of simplicitie and naked truth.
 This sacrifice (whose sweet perfume descending,
 From Venus altar to your footsteps bending) 210
 Doth testifie that you exceed her farre,
 To whom you offer, and whose Nunne you are.
 Why should you worship her? her you surpasse,
 As much as sparkling Diamonds flaring glasse.
 A Diamond set in lead his worth retaines, 215
 A heauenly Nymph, belov'd of humane swaines,
 Receiues no blemish, but oft-times more grace,
 Which makes me hope, although I am but base,
 Base in respect of thee, diuine and pure,
 Dutifull seruice may thy loue procure, 220
 And I in dutie will excell all other,
 As thou in beautie doest exceed loues mother.
 Nor heauen, nor thou, were made to gaze vpon,
 As heauen preserues all things, so saue thou one.
 A stately builded ship, well rig'd and tall, 225
 The Ocean maketh more maiesticall:
 Why vowest thou then to liue in Sestos here,
 Who on Loues seas more glorious wouldst appeare?
 Like vntun'd golden strings all women are,
 Which long time lie vntoucht, will harshly iarre. 230
 Vessels of Brasse oft handled, brightly shine,
 What difference betwixt the richest mine
 And basest mold, but vse? for both, not vs'de,
 Are of like worth. Then treasure is abus'de,

When misers keepe it ; being put to lone, 235
 In time it will returne vs two for one.
 Rich robes themselues and others do adorne,
 Neither themselues nor others, if not worne.
 Who builds a pallace and rams vp the gate,
 Shall see it ruinous and desolate. 240
 Ah simple Hero, learne thy selfe to cherish,
 Lone women like to emptie houses perish.
 Lesse sinnes the poore rich man that starues himselfe,
 In heaping vp a masse of drossie pelfe,
 Than such as you : his golden earth remains, 245
 Which after his disceasse, some other gains.
 But this faire iem, sweet in the losse alone,
 When you fleet hence, can be bequeath'd to none.
 Or if it could, downe from th'enameld skie
 All heauen would come to claime this legacie, 250
 And with intestine broiles the world destroy,
 And quite confound natures sweet harmony.
 Well therefore by the gods decreed it is,
 We humane creatures should enioy that blisse
 One is no number, mayds are nothing then, 255
 Without the sweet societie of men.
 Wilt thou liue single still ? one shalt thou bee,
 Though neuer-singling Hymen couple thee.
 Wild sauages, that drinke of running springs,
 Thinke water farre excels all earthly things : 260
 But they that dayly tast neat wine, despise it.
 Virginitie, albeit some highly prise it,
 Compar'd with marriage, had you tried them both,
 Differs as much as wine and water doth.
 Base boullion for the stamperes sake we allow, 265
 Euen so for mens impression do we you,
 By which alone, our reuerend fathers say,
 Women receaue perfection euerie way.
 This idoll which you terme Virginitie,
 Is neither essence subiect to the eie, 270
 No, nor to any one exterior sence,
 Nor hath it any place of residence,
 Nor is't of earth or mold celestiall,
 Or capable of any forme at all.
 Of that which hath no being doe not boast, 275
 Things that are not at all are neuer lost.

Men foolishly doe call it vertuous,
 What vertue is it that is borne with vs ?
 Much lesse can honour bee ascrib'd thereto,
 Honour is purchac'd by the deedes wee do. 280
 Beleeue me Hero, honour is not wone,
 Vntill some honourable deed be done.
 Seeke you for chastitie, immortall fame,
 And know that some haue wrong'd Dianas name ?
 Whose name is it, if she be false or not, 285
 So she be faire, but some vile toongs will blot ?
 But you are faire (aye me) so wondrous faire,
 So yoong, so gentle, and so debonaire,
 As Greece will thinke, if thus you liue alone,
 Some one or other keepes you as his owne. 290
 Then Hero hate me not, nor from me flie,
 To follow swiftly blasting infamie.
 Perhaps, thy sacred Priesthood makes thee loath,
 Tell me, to whom mad'st thou that heedlesse oath ?
 To Venus, answered shee, and as shee spake, 295
 Foorth from those two tralucent cesternes brake
 A streame of liquid pearle, which downe her face
 Made milk-white paths, wheron the gods might trace
 To Ioues high court. Hee thus replide : The rites
 In which Loues beauteous Empresse most delites, 300
 Are banquets, Dorick musicke, midnight-reuell,
 Plaies, maskes, and all that stern age counteth euill.
 Thee as a holy Idiot doth she scorne,
 For thou in vowing chastitie hast sworne
 To rob her name and honour, and thereby 305
 Commit'st a sinne far worse than periurie,
 Euen sacrilege against her Deitie,
 Through regular and formall puritie.
 To expiat which sinne, kisse and shake hands,
 Such sacrifice as this Venus demands. 310
 Thereat she smild, and did denie him so,
 As put thereby, yet might he hope for mo.
 Which makes him quickly re-enforce his speech,
 And her in humble manner thus beseech.
 Though neither gods nor men may thee deserue, 315
 Yet for her sake whom you haue vow'd to serue,
 Abandon fruitlesse cold Virginitie,
 The gentle queene of Loues sole enemye.
 Then shall you most resemble Venus Nun,

When Venus sweet rites are perform'd and done. 320
 Flint-brested Pallas ioies in single life,
 But Pallas and your mistresse are at strife.
 Loue Hero then, and be not tirannous,
 But heale the heart, that thou hast wounded thus,
 Nor staine thy youthfull years with auarice, 325
 Faire fooles delight to be accounted nice.
 The richest corne dies, if it be not reapt,
 Beautie alone is lost, too warily kept.
 These arguments he vs'de, and many more,
 Wherewith she yeelded, that was woon before. 330
Heroes lookes yeelded, but her words made warre,
 Women are woon when they begin to iarre.
 Thus hauing swallow'd Cupids golden hooke,
 The more she striv'd, the deeper was she strooke.
 Yet euilly faining anger, stroue she still, 335
 And would be thought to graunt against her will.
 So hauing paus'd a while, at last shee said :
 Who taught thee Rhethoricke to deceiue a maid ?
 Aye me, such words as these should I abhor,
 And yet I like them for the Orator. 340
 With that Leander stoopt, to haue imbrac'd her,
 But from his spreading armes away she cast her,
 And thus bespake him: Gentle youth forbear
 To touch the sacred garments which I weare.
 Vpon a rocke, and vnderneath a hill, 345
 Far from the towne (where all is whist and still,
 Saue that the sea playing on yellow sand,
 Sends foorth a ratling murmure to the land,
 Whose sound allures the golden Morpheus
 In silence of the night to visite vs.) 350
 My turret stands, and there God knowes I play
 With Venus swannes and sparrowes all the day.
 A dwarfish beldame beares me companie,
 That hops about the chamber where I lie,
 And spends the night (that might be better spent) 355
 In vaine discourse, and apish merriment.
 Come thither. As she spake this, her toong tript,
 For vnawares (Come thither) from her slipt,
 And sodainly her former colour chang'd,
 And here and there her eies through anger rang'd. 360

 Stroue to resist the motions of her hart.
 And hands so pure, so innocent, nay such, 365
 As might haue made heauen stoope to haue a touch,
 Did she vphold to Venus, and againe
 Vow'd spotlesse chastitie, but all in vaine.
Cupid beats downe her praiers with his wings,
 Her vowes about the emptie aire he flings : 370
 All deepe enrag'd, his sinowie bow he bent,
 And shot a shaft that burning from him went,
 Wherewith she strooken look'd so dolefully,
 As made Loue sigh, to see his tirannie.
 And as she wept, her teares to pearle he turn'd, 375
 And wound them on his arme, and for her mourn'd.
 Then towards the pallace of the destinies,
 Laden with languishment and grieve he flies,
 And to those sterne nymphs humblie made request,
 Both might enioy ech other, and be blest. 380
 But with a ghastly dreadfull countenance,
 Threatning a thousand deaths at euerie glaunce,
 They answered Loue, nor would vouchsafe so much
 As one poore word, their hate to him was such.
 Harken a while, and I will tell you why : 385
 Heauens winged herrald, Loue-borne Mercury,
 The selfe-same day that he asleepe had layd
 Inchaunted Argus, spied a countrie mayd,
 Whose carelesse haire, in stead of pearle t'adorne it,
 Glist'red with deaw, as one that seem'd to skorne it: 390
 Her breath as fragrant as the morning rose,
 Her mind pure, and her tooing vntaught to glose.
 Yet prowd she was, (for loftie pride that dwels
 In tow'red courts, is oft in sheapheards cels.)
 And too too well the faire vermilion knew, 395
 And siluer tincture of her cheekes, that drew
 The loue of euerie swaine : On her, this god
 Enamoured was, and with his snakie rod,
 Did charme her nimble feet, and made her stay,
 The while vpon a hillocke downe he lay, 400

 Beyond the bounds of shame, in being bold
 To eie those parts, which no eie should behold.
 And like an insolent commaunding loue,
 Boasting his parentage, would needs discouer 410
 The way to new Elisium: but she,
 Whose only dower was her chastitie,
 Hauing striu'ne in vaine, was now about to crie,
 And craue the helpe of sheap-heards that were nie.
 Herewith he stayd his furie, and began 415

 After went Mercurie, who vs'd such cunning,
 As she to heare his tale, left off her running.
 Maids are not woon by brutish force and might,
 But speeches full of pleasure and delight. 420
 And knowing Hermes courted her, was glad
 That she such louelinesse and beautie had
 As could prouoke his liking, yet was mute,
 And neither would denie, nor graunt his sute.
 Still vowd he loue, she wanting no excuse 425
 To feed him with delaies, as women vse,
 Or thirsting after immortalitie,—
 All women are ambitious naturallie,—
 Impos'd vpon her loue such a taske, 430
 As he ought not performe, nor yet she aske.

THE ARGUMENT OF THE SECOND SESTYAD.

*Hero of loue takes deeper sence,
 And doth her loue more recompence.
 Their first nights meeting, where sweet kisses
 Are th' only crownes of both their blisses.
 He swims t' Abydus, and returnes ;
 Cold Neptune with his beautie burnes,
 Whose suite he shuns, and doth aspire
 Heros faire towre, and his desire.)*¹

By this, sad Hero, with loue vnaacquainted,
 Viewing Leanders face, fell downe and fainted.
 He kist her, and breath'd life into her lips,
 Wherewith as one displeas'd, away she trips.
 Yet as she went, full often look'd behind, 5
 And many poore excuses did she find
 To linger by the way, and once she stayd,
 And would haue turn'd againe, but was afraid,
 In offering parlie, to be counted light.
 So on she goes, and in her idle flight, 10
 Her painted fanne of curled plumes let fall,
 Thinking to traine Leander therewithall.
 He being a nouice, knew not what she meant,
 But stayd, and after her a letter sent,
 Which ioyfull Hero answerd in such sort, 15
 As he had hope to scale the beauteous fort,
 Wherein the liberall graces lock'd their wealth,
 And therefore to her tower he got by stealth.
 Wide open stood the doore, hee need not clime,
 And she her selfe before the pointed time 20
 Had spread the boord, with roses strowed the roome,
 And oft look't out, and mus'd he did not come.
 At last he came, O who can tell the greeting
 These greedie louers had at their first meeting.
 He askt, she gaue, and nothing was denied, 25
 Both to each other quickly were affied.
 Looke how their hands, so were their hearts vnited,
 And what he did she willingly requited.
 (Sweet are the kisses, the imbracements sweet,

 And turn'd aside, and to her selfe lamented,
 As if her name and honour had beene wrong'd,
 By being possest of him for whom she long'd: 35
 I, and shee wisht, albeit not from her hart,
 That he would leaue her turret and depart.
 The mirthfull God of amorous pleasure smil'd,
 To see how he this captiue Nymph beguil'd. 40
 For hitherto hee did but fan the fire,
 And kept it downe that it might mount the hier.
 Now waxt she ielous, least his loue abated,
 Fearing her owne thoughts made her to be hated.
 Therefore vnto him hastily she goes, 45

 Albeit Leander rude in loue, and raw,
 Long dallying with Hero, nothing saw
 That might delight him more, yet he suspected
 Some amorous rites or other were neglected.
 Therefore vnto his bodie hers he clung, 65

 Whereat she starts, puts on her purple weeds,
 And red for anger that he stayd so long,
 All headlong throwes her selfe the clouds among, 90
 And now Leander fearing to be mist,
 Imbrast her sodainly, tooke leaue, and kist.
 Long was he taking leaue, and loath to go,
 And kist againe, as louers vse to do.
 Sad Hero wroong him by the hand, and wept, 95
 Saying, let your vowes and promises be kept.
 Then standing at the doore, she turnd about,
 As loath to see Leander going out.
 And now the sunne that through th'orizon peepes,
 As pittying these louers, downward creepes, 100
 So that in silence of the cloudie night,
 Though it was morning, did he take his flight.
 But what the secret trustie night conceal'd
Leanders amorous habit soone reueal'd,
 With Cupids myrtle was his bonet crownd, 105
 About his armes the purple riband wound,
 Wherewith she wreath'd her largely spreading heare,
 Nor could the youth abstaine, but he must weare
 The sacred ring wherewith she was endow'd,
 When first religious chastitie she vow'd : 110
 Which made his loue through Sestos to bee knowne,
 And thence vnto Abydus sooner blowne
 Than he could saile, for incorporeal Fame,
 Whose waight consists in nothing but her name,

 Are reeking water and dull earthlie fumes.
 Home when he came, he seem'd not to be there,
 But like exiled aire thrust from his sphere,
 Set in a forren place, and straight from thence,
Alcides like, by mightie violence 120
 He would haue chac'd away the swelling maine,
 That him from her vniustly did detaine.
 Like as the sunne in a Dyameter,
 Fires and inflames obiects remooued farre,
 And heateth kindly, shining lat'rally; 125
 So beautie, sweetly quickens when t'is ny,
 But being separated and remooued,
 Burnes where it cherisht, murders where it loued.
 Therefore euen as an Index to a booke,
 So to his mind was yoong Leanders looke. 130
 O none but gods haue power their loue to hide,
 Affection by the count'nance is descride.
 The light of hidden fire itselke discouers,
 And loue that is conceal'd, betraies poore louers.
 His secret flame apparantly was seene, 135
Leanders Father knew where hee had beene,
 And for the same mildly rebuk't his sonne,
 Thinking to quench the sparckles new begonne.
 But loue resisted once, growes passionate,
 And nothing more than counsaile louers hate. 140
 For as a hote prowd horse highly disdaines
 To haue his head control'd, but breakes the raines,
 Spits foorth the ringled bit, and with his houes
 Checkes the submissiue ground: so hee that loues,
 The more he is restrain'd, the woorse he fares. 145
 What is it now, but mad Leander dares?
 O Hero, Hero, thus he cry'de full oft,
 And then he got him to a rocke aloft,
 Where hauing spy'de her tower, long star'd he on't,
 And pray'd the narrow toyling Hellespont 150
 To part in twaine, that hee might come and go,
 But still the rising billowes answered no.
 With that hee stript him to the yu'rie skin,
 And crying, Loue I come, leapt liuely in.

Whereat the saphir visag'd god grew prowd, 155
 And made his capring Triton sound alowd,
 Imagining that Ganimed displeas'd,
 Had left the heauens; therefore on him hee seaz'd.
Leander striu'd, the waues about him wound,
 And puld him to the bottome, where the ground 160
 Was strewd with pearle, and in low corall groues
 Sweet singing Meremaids, sported with their loues
 On heapes of heauie gold, and tooke great pleasure
 To spurne in carelesse sort the shipwracke treasure.
 For here the stately azure pallace stood, 165
 Where kingly Neptune and his traine abode.
 The lustie god imbrast him, cald him loue,
 And swore he neuer should returne to Ioue.
 But when he knew it was not Ganimed,
 For vnder water he was almost dead, 170
 He heau'd him vp, and looking on his face,
 Beat downe the bold waues with his triple mace,
 Which mounted vp, intending to haue kist him,
 And fell in drops like teares, because they mist him.
Leander being vp, began to swim, 175
 And looking backe, saw Neptune follow him,
 Whereat agast, the poore soule gan to crie,
 O let mee visite Hero ere I die.
 The god put Helles bracelet on his arme,
 And swore the sea should neuer doe him harme. 180
 He clapt his plumpe cheekes, with his tresses playd,
 And smiling wantonly, his loue bewrayd.
 He watcht his armes, and as they opend wide,
 At euery stroke, betwixt them would he slide,
 And steale a kisse, and then run out and daunce, 185
 And as he turnd, cast many a lustfull glaunce,—
 And threw him gawdie toies to please his eie,—
 And diue into the water, and there prie
 Vpon his brest, his thighs, and euerie lim,
 And vp againe, and close beside him swim, 190
 And talke of loue: Leander made replie,
 You are deceau'd, I am no woman I.
 Thereat smilde Neptune, and then told a tale,
 How that a sheapheard sitting in a vale
 Playd with a boy so faire and kind, 195
 As for his loue both earth and heauen pyn'd;

 And when hee sported in the fragrant lawnes,
 Gote-footed Satyrs and vp-staring Fawnes 200
 Would steale him thence. Ere halfe this tale was done,
 Aye mc, Leander cryde, th'enamoured sunne,
 That now should shine on Thetis glassie bower,
 Descends vpon my radiant Heroes tower.
 O that these tardie armes of mine were wings ! 205
 And as he spake, vpon the waues he springs
Neptune was angrie that hee gaue no eare,
 And in his heart reuenging malice bare :
 He flung at him his mace, but as it went,
 He cald it in, for loue made him repent. 210
 The mace returning backe his owne hand hit,
 As meaning to be veng'd for darting it.
 When this fresh bleeding wound Leander viewd,
 His colour went and came, as if he rew'd
 The greefe which Neptune felt. In gentle brests, 215
 Relenting thoughts, remorse and pittie rests.
 And who haue hard hearts, and obdurat minds,
 But vicious, harebraind, and illit'rat hinds ?
 The god seeing him with pittie to be moued,
 Thereon concluded that he was beloued. 220
 (Loue is too full of faith, too credulous,
 With follie and false hope deluding vs.)
 Wherefore Leanders fancie to surprize,
 To the rich Ocean for gifts he flies.
 'Tis wisdom to giue much, a gift preuailes, 225
 When deepe perswading Oratorie failes.
 By this Leander being nere the land,
 Cast downe his wearie feet, and felt the sand.
 Breathlesse albeit he were, he rested not,
 Till to the solitarie tower he got, 230
 And knockt and cald, at which celestiaill noise
 The longing heart of Hero much more ioies
 Then nymphs & sheapheards, when the timbrell rings,
 Or crooked Dolphin when the sailer sings ;
 She stayd not for her robes, but straight arose, 235

 Rich iewels in the darke are soonest spide. 240
 Vnto her was he led, or rather drawne,
 By those white limmes, which sparckled through the lawne.
 The neerer that he came, the more she fled,
 And seeking refuge, slipt into her bed.
 Whereon Leander sitting, thus began, 245
 Through numming cold all feeble, faint and wan :
 If not for loue, yet, loue, for pittie sake,
 Me in thy bed and maiden bosome take,
 At least vouchsafe these armes some little roome,
 Who hoping to imbrace thee, cherely swome. 250
 This head was beat with manie a churlish billow,
 And therefore let it rest vpon thy pillow.
 Herewith afrighted Hero shrunke away,
 And in her luke-warme place Leander lay,
 Whose liuely heat like fire from heauen fet, 255
 Would animate grosse clay, and higher set
 The drooping thoughts of base declining soules,
 Then drierie Mars carowsing Nectar boules.
 His hands he cast vpon her like a snare,
 She ouercome with shame and sallow feare, 260
 Like chast Diana, when Acteon spyde her,
 Being sodainly betraide, dyu'd downe to hide her.
 And as her siluer body downeward went,
 With both her hands she made the bed a tent,
 And in her owne mind thought her selfe secure, 265
 O'recast with dim and darksome couerture.
 And now she lets him whisper in her eare,
 Flatter, intreat, promise, protest and sweare,
 Yet euer as he greedily assayd
 To touch those dainties, she the Harpey playd, 270
 And euery lim did as a soldier stout,
 Defend the fort, and keep the foe-man out.
 For though the rising yu'rie mount he scal'd,
 Which is with azure circling lines empal'd,
 Much like a globe, (a globe may I tearme this, 275
 By which loue sailes to regions full of blis,)
 Yet there with Sisyphus he toyl'd in vaine,
 Till gentle parlie did the truce obtaine.

 Breathlesse spoke some thing, and sigh'd out the rest; 280
 Which so preuail'd, as he with small ado
 Inclos'd her in his armes and kist her to.
 And euerie kisse to her was as a charme,
 And to Leander as a fresh alarme,
 So that the truce was broke, and she alas, 285

 Loue is not ful of pittie (as men say)

Leander now like Theban Hercules,
 Entred the orchard of Th'esperides,
 Whose fruit none rightly can describe but hee
 That puls or shakes it from the golden tree : 300
 And now she wisht this night were neuer done,
 And sigh'd to thinke vpon th'approching sunne,
 For much it greeu'd her that the bright day-light
 Should know the pleasure of this blessed night,
 And them like Mars and Ericine display, 305
 Both in each others armes chaind as they lay.
 Againe she knew not how to frame her looke,
 Or speake to him who in a moment tooke
 That which so long so charily she kept,
 And faine by stealth away she would haue crept, 310
 And to some corner secretly haue gone,
 Leauing Leander in the bed alone.
 But as her naked feet were whipping out,
 He on the suddaine cling'd her so about,

279-300 Owing probably to the displacement of a leaf in Marlowe's lost MS. these lines are given in wrong sequence in all previous editions. The early quartos all insert ll. 279-90 between 300 and 301, which cannot be right. Singer in his edition of 1821 shifted ll. 289, 290 to a position between 278 and 291, and this order (278, 289-300, 279-88,

TO MY BEST ESTEEMED
AND WORTHELY HONORED
LADY, THE LADY WALSINGHAM,
one of the Ladies of her Maiesties
Bed-chamber.

I present your Ladiship with the last affections of the first two Louers that euer Muse shrinde in the Temple of Memorie ; being drawne by strange instigation to employ some of my serious time in so trifeling a subiect, which yet made the first Author, diuine Musæus, eternall. And were it not that wee must subiect our accounts of these common receiued conceits to seruile custome ; it goes much against my hand to signe that for a trifling subiect, on which more worthines of soule hath been shewed, and weight of diuine wit, than can vouchsafe residence in the leaden grauitie of any Mony-Monger ; in whose profession all serious subiects are concluded. But he that shuns trifles must shun the world ; out of whose reuerend heapes of substance and austeritie, I can, and will, ere long, single, or tumble out as brainles and passionate fooleries, as euer panted in the bosome of the most ridiculous Louer. Accept it therefore (good Madam) though as a trifle, yet as a serious argument of my affection : for to bee thought thankfull for all free and honourable fauours, is a great summe of that riches my whole thrift intendeth.

Such uncourly and sillie dispositions as mine, whose contentment hath other objects than profit or glorie ; are as glad, simply for the naked merit of vertue, to honour such as aduance her, as others that are hired to commend with deepeeliest politique bountie.

It hath therefore adioynde much contentment to my desire of your true honour to heare men of desert in Court adde to mine owne knowledge of your noble disposition, how gladly you doe your best to preferre their desires ; and haue as absolute respect to their meere good parts, as if they came perfumed and charmed with golden incitements. And this most sweet inclination, that flows from the truth and eternitie of Nobles, assure your Ladiship doth more suite your other Ornaments, and makes more to the aduancement of your Name, and happines of your proceedings, then if (like others) you displayed Ensignes of state and sownenes in your forehead, made smooth with nothing but sensualitye and presents.

This poore Dedication (in figure of the other unitie betwixt

Sir Thomas and your selfe) hath reioynd you with him, my honoured best friend, whose continuance of ancient kindnes to my still-obscured estate, though it cannot encrease my loue to him, which hath euer been entirely circulare; yet shall it encourage my deserts to their utmost requitall, and make my hartie gratitude speake; to which the unhappines of my life hath hetherto been vncomfortable and painfull dumbnes.

By your Ladiships vowd in most wished seruice:

George Chapman.

THE ARGVMENT OF THE THIRD SESTYAD.

*Leander to the enuious light
 Resignes his night-sports with the night,
 And swims the Hellespont againe ;
 Thesme the Deitie soueraigne
 Of Customes and religious riles 5
 Appeares, reprobuing his delities
 Since Nuptiall honors he neglected ;
 Which straight he vowes shall be effected.
 Faire Hero left Deuirginate
 Waies, and with furie wailes her state : 10
 But with her loue and womans wit
 She argues, and approueth it.*

New light giues new directions, Fortunes new
 To fashion our indeuours that ensue,
 More harsh (at lest more hard) more graue and hie
 Our subiect runs, and our sterne Muse must flie.
 Loues edge is taken off, and that light flame, 5
 Those thoughts, ioyes, longings, that before became High vnexperienst blood, and maids sharpe plights
 Must now grow staid, and censure the delights,
 That being enioyd aske iudgement ; now we praise,
 As hauing parted : Euenings crowne the daies. 10

And now ye wanton loues, and yong desires,
 Pied vanitie, the mint of strange Attires ;
 Ye lispig Flatteries, and obsequious Glances,
 Relentfull Musicks, and attractive Dances,
 And you detested Charmes constraining loue, 15
 Shun loues stolne sports by that these Louers proue.

By this the Soueraigne of Heauens golden fires,
 And yong Leander, Lord of his desires,
 Together from their louers armes arose :
Leander into Hellespontus throwes 20
 His Hero-handled bodie, whose delight
 Made him disdaine each other Epethite.

*He calls

And as amidst the enamourd waves he swims,
 The God of gold of purpose guilt his lims, vertue of his beams creates it.

Might be exprest, that had no stay t'employ
The treasure which the Loue-god let him ioy
In his deare Hero, with such sacred thrift,
As had besemd so sanctified a gift: 30
But like a greedie vulgar Prodigall
Would on the stock dispend, and rudely fall
Before his time, to that vnblest blessing,
Which for lusts plague doth perish with possossing.
Joy grauen in sence, like snow in water wasts; 35
Without preserue of vertue nothing lasts.
What man is he that with a welthie eie
Enioyes a beautie richer than the skie,
Through whose white skin, softer then soundest sleep,
With damaske eyes, the rubie blood doth peep, 40
And runs in branches through her azure vaines,
Whose mixture and first fire, his loue attaines;
Whose both hands limit both Loues deities,
And sweeten humane thoughts like Paradise;
Whose disposition silken is and kinde, 45
Directed with an earth-exempted minde;
Who thinks not heauen with such a loue is giuen?
And who like earth would spend that dower of heauen,
With ranke desire to ioy it all at first?
What simply kills our hunger, quencheth thirst, 50
Clothes but our nakednes, and makes vs liue,
Praise doth not any of her fauours giue:
But what doth plentifully minister
Beautious apparell and delicious cheere,
So orderd that it still excites desire, 55
And still giues pleasure freenes to aspire
The palme of Bountie, euer moyst preseruing:
To lones sweet life this is the courtly caruing.
Thus Time, and all-states-ordering Ceremonie
Had banisht all offence: Times golden Thie 60
Vpholds the flowrie bodie of the earth
In sacred harmonie, and euery birth
Of men, and actions makes legitimate,
Being vsde aright; The use of time is Fate.
Yet did the gentle flood transfer once more 65
This prize of Loue home to his fathers shore;
Where he vnclades himselfe of that false welth
That makes few rich, treasures compose by stelth;
And to his sister kinde Hermione,
(Who on the shore kneeld, praying to the sea 70
For his returne) he all Loues goods did show
In Hero seasde for him, in him for Hero.
His most kinde sister all his secrets knew,
And to her singing like a shower he flew,
Sprinkling the earth, that to their tombs tooke in 75
Streames dead for loue to leaue his iuorie skin,

Which yet a snowie fome did leaue aboue,
 As soule to the dead water that did loue;
 And from thence did the first white Roses spring,
 (For loue is sweet and faire in euey thing) 80
 And all the sweetned shore as he did goc,
 Was crownd with odrous roses white as snow.
 Loue-blest Leander was with loue so filled,
 That loue to all that toucht him he instilled.
 And as the colours of all things we see, 85
 To our sights powers communicated bec:
 So to all obiects that in compasse came
 Of any sence he had, his sences flame
 Flowd from his parts with force so virtuall,
 It fir'd with sence things weere insensuall. 90
 Now (with warme baths and odours comforted)
 When he lay downe he kindly kist his bed,
 As consecrating it to Heros right,
 And vowd thereafter that what euer sight
 Put him in minde of Hero, or her blisse, 95
 Should be her Altar to prefer a kisse.
 Then laid he forth his late inriched armes,
 In whose white circle Loue writ all his charmes,
 And made his characters sweet Heros lims,
 When on his breasts warme sea she sideling swims. 100
 And as those armes (held vp in circle) met,
 He said: See sister Heros Carquet,
 Which she had rather weare about her neck,
 Then all the iewels that doth Iuno deck.
 But as he shooke with passionate desire, 105
 To put in flame his other secret fire,
 A musick so diuine did pierce his eare,
 As neuer yet his raiisht sence did heare:
 When suddenly a light of twentie hews
 Brake through the rooffe, and like the Rainbow views 110
 Amazd Leander; in whose beames came downe
 The Goddess Ceremonie, with a Crowne
 Of all the stars, and heauen with her descended.
 Her flaming haire to her bright fecte extended,
 By which hung all the bench of Deities; 115
 And in a chaine, compact of eares and eies,
 She led Religion; all her bodie was
 Cleere and transparent as the purest glasse:
 For she was all presented to the sence;
 Deuotion, Order, State, and Reuerence 120
 Her shadowes were; Societie, Memorie;
 All which her sight made liue, her absence die.
 A rich disparent Pentackle she weares,
 Drawne full of circles and strange characters:

Her face was changeable to euerie eie ; 125
 One way lookt ill, another graciouslie ;
 Which while men viewd, they cheerfull were & holy :
 But looking off, vicious and melancholy :
 The snake paths to each obserued law
 Did Policie in her broad bosome draw : 130
 One hand a Mathematique Christall swayes,
 Which gathering in one line a thousand rayes
 From her bright eyes, Confusion burnes to death,
 And all estates of men distinguisheth.
 By it Morallitie and Comelinesse 135
 Themselues in all their sightly figures dresse.
 Her other hand a lawrell rod applies,
 To beate back Barbarisme, and Auarice,
 That followd eating earth, and excrement
 And humane lims ; and would make proud ascent 140
 To seates of Gods, were Ceremonie slaine ;
 The Hours and Graces bore her glorious traine,
 And all the sweetes of our societie
 Were Spherde, and treasurde in her bountious eie.
 Thus she appeard, and sharply did reprove 145
Leanders bluntnes in his violent loue ;
 Tolde him how poore was substance without rites,
 Like bils vnsgnd, desires without delites ;
 Like meates vnseasond ; like ranke corne that growes
 On Cottages, that none or reapes or sowes : 150
 Not being with ciuill forms confirm'd and bounded,
 For humane dignities and comforts founded :
 But loose and secret all their glories hide,
 Feare fils the chamber, darknes decks the Bride.
 She vanisht, leauing pierst Leanders hart 155
 With sence of his vnceremonious part,
 In which with plaine neglect of Nuptiall rites,
 He close and flatly fell to his delites :
 And instantly he vovd to celebrate
 All rites pertaining to his married state. 160
 So vp he gets and to his father goes,
 To whose glad eares he doth his vowes disclose :
 The Nuptials are resolu'd with vtmost powre,
 And he at night would swim to Heros towre.
 From whence he ment to Sestus forked Bay 165
 To bring her couertly, where ships must stay,
 Sent by her father throughly rigd and mand,
 To waite her safely to Abydus Strand.
 There leaue we him, and with fresh wing pursue
 Astonisht Hero, whose most wished view 170
 I thus long haue forborne, because I left her
 So out of countnance, and her spirits bereft her.
To looke of one abasht is impudence,
When of sleight faultis he hath too deepe a sence.

Her blushing het her chamber : she lookt out,
And all the ayre she purpled round about,
And after it a foule black day befell,
Which euer since a red morne doth foretell,
And still renewes our woes for Heros wo,
And foule it prou'd, because it figur'd so
The next nights horror, which prepare to heare ;
I faile if it prophane your daintiest eare.

Then thou most strangely-intellectuall fire,
That proper to my soule hast power t'inspire
Her burning faculties, and with the wings
Of thy vnspheared flame visitst the springs
Of spirits immortall ; Now (as swift as Time
Doth follow Motion) finde th'eternall Clime
Of his free soule, whose liuing subiect stood
Vp to the chin in the Pyerean flood,
And drunke to me halfe this Musean storie,
Inscribing it to deathles Memorie :
Confer with it, and make my pledge as deepe,
That neithers draught be consecrate to sleepe.
Tell it how much his late desires I tender,
(If yet it know not) and to light surrender
My soules darke offspring, willing it should die
To loues, to passions, and societie.

Sweet Hero left vpon her bed alone,
Her maidenhead, her vows, Leander gone,
And nothing with her but a violent crew
Of new come thoughts that yet she neuer knew,
Euen to her selfe a stranger ; was much like
Th' Iberian citie that wars hand did strike
By English force in princely Essex guide,
When peace assur'd her towres had fortifide ;
And golden-fingred India had bestowd
Such wealth on her, that strength and Empire flowd
Into her Turrets ; and her virgin waste
The wealthie girdle of the Sea embraste :
Till our Leander that made Mars his Cupid,
For soft loue-sutes, with iron thunders chid ;
Swum to her Towers, dissolu'd her virgin zone ;
Lead in his power, and made Confusion
Run through her streets amazd, that she supposde
She had not been in her owne walls inclosde,
But rapt by wonder to some forraine state,
Seeing all her issue so disconsolate :
And all her peacefull mansions possest
With wars iust spoyle, and many a forraine guest
From euery corner driuing an enioyer,
Supplying it with power of a destroyer.
So far'd fayre Hero in th'expugned fort
Of her chast bosome, and of euery sort

183 thou T. B. : how Qq : now Rob., Cunn. : no Dyce, Bull.

Strange thoughts possesst her, ransacking her brest 225
 For that that was not there, her wonted rest.
 She was a mother straight and bore with paine
 Thoughts that spake straight and wisht their mother slaine;
 She hates their liues, & they their own & hers:
 Such strife still growes where sin the race prefers. 230
Loue is a golden bubble full of dreames,
That waking breakes, and flls vs with extreames.
 She mus'd how she could looke vpon her Sire,
 And not shew that without, that was intire.
 For as a glasse is an inanimate eie, 235
 And outward formes imbraceth inwardlie:
 So is the eye an animate glasse that showes
 In-formes without vs. And as Phæbus throwes
 His beames abroad, though he in clowdes be closde,
 Still glancing by them till he finde opposde 240
 A loose and rorid vapour that is fit
 T'euent his searching beames, and vseth it
 To forme a tender twentie-coloured eie,
 Cast in a circle round about the skie.
 So when our firie soule, our bodies starre, 245
 (That euer is in motion circulare)
 Conceiues a forme; in seeking to display it
 Through all our clowdie parts, it doth conuey it
 Forth at the eye, as the most pregnant place,
 And that reflects it round about the face. 250
 And this euent vncourtly Hero thought
 Her inward guilt would in her lookes haue wrought:
 For yet the worlds stale cunning she resisted
 To beare foule thoughts, yet forge what lookes she listed,
 And held it for a very sillie sleight, 255
 To make a perfect mettall counterfeit,
 Glad to disclaime her selfe, proud of an Art,
 That makes the face a Pandar to the hart.
 Those be the painted Moones, whose lights prophane
 Beauties true Heauen, at full still in their wane. 260
 Those be the Lapwing faces that still crie,
 Here tis, when that they vow is nothing nie.
 Base fooles, when euery moorish fowle can teach
 That which men thinke the height of humane reach.
 But custome that the Apoplexie is 265
 Of bedded nature and liues led amis,
 And takes away all feeling of offence;
 Yet brazde not Heros brow with impudence;
 And this she thought most hard to bring to pas,
 To seeme in countnance other then she was, 270
 As if she had two soules; one for the face,
 One for the hart; and that they shifted place
 As either list to vtter, or concale
 What they conceiu'd: or as one soule did deale

With both affayres at once, keeps and eiects 275
 Both at an instant contrarie effects :
 Retention and election in her powrs
 Being acts alike : for this one vice of ours,
 That forms the thought, and swaies the countenance,
 Rules both our motion and our vtterance. 280
 These and more graue conceits toyld Heros spirits :
 For though the light of her discoursie wits
 Perhaps might finde some little hole to pas
 Through all these worldly cinctures ; yet (alas)
 There was a heauenly flame incompast her ; 285
 Her Goddesse, in whose Phane she did prefer
 Her virgin vows ; from whose impulsie sight
 She knew the black shield of the darkest night
 Could not defend her, nor wits subtilst art :
 This was the point pierst Hero to the hart. 290
 Who heaueie to the death, with a deep sigh
 And hand that languisht, tooke a robe was nigh,
 Exceeding large, and of black Cypres made,
 In which she sate, hid from the day in shade,
 Euen ouer head and face downe to her feete ; 295
 Her left hand made it at her bosome meete ;
 Her right hand leand on her hart-bowing knee,
 Wrapt in vnshapefull foulds twas death to see :
 Her knee stayd that, and that her falling face
 Each limme helpt other to put on disgrace. 300
 No forme was seene, where forme held all her sight :
 But like an Embrion that saw neuer light :
 Or like a scorched statue made a cole
 With threewingd lightning : or a wretched soule
 Muffled with endles darknes, she did sit : 305
 The night had neuer such a heaueie spirit.
 Yet might an imitating eye well see,
 How fast her cleere teares melted on her knee
 Through her black vaile, and turnd as black as it,
 Mourning to be her teares : then wrought her wit 310
 With her broke vow, her Goddesse wrath, her fame,
 All tooles that enginuous despayre could frame :
 Which made her strow the floore with her torne haire,
 And spread her mantle peece-meale in the aire.
 Like Ioues sons club, strong passion strook her downe, 315
 And with a piteous shrieke inforst her swoune :
 Her shrieke made with another shrieke ascend
 The frighted Matron that on her did tend :
 And as with her owne crie her sence was slaine,
 So with the other it was calde againe. 320
 She rose and to her bed made forced way,
 And layd her downe euen where Leander lay :
 And all this while the red sea of her blood
 Ebd with Leander : but now turnd the flood,

And all her floete of sprites came swelling in 325
 With childe of saile, and did hot fight begin
 With those seuer conceits, she too much markt,
 And here Leanders beauties were imbarkt.
 He came in swimming painted all with ioyes,
 Such as might sweeten hell: his thought destroyes 330
 All her destroying thoughts: she thought she felt
 His heart in hers with her contentions melt,
 And chid her soule that it could so much erre,
 To check the true ioyes he deseru'd in her.
 Her fresh heat blood cast figures in her eyes, 335
 And she supposde she saw in Neptunes skyes
 How her star wandred, washt in smarting brine
 For her loues sake, that with immortall wine
 Should be embath'd, and swim in more hearts ease,
 Than there was water in the Sestian seas. 340
 Then said her Cupid prompted spirit: Shall I
 Sing mones to such delightsome harmony?
 Shall slick-tongde fame patcht vp with voyces rude,
 The drunken bastard of the multitude,
 (Begot when father Iudgement is away, 345
 And gossip-like, sayes because others say,
 Takes newes as if it were too hot to eate,
 And spits it slauering forth for dog-pees meate)
 Make me for forging a phantastique vow,
 Presume to beare what makes graue matrons bow? 350
 Good vowes are neuer broken with good deedes,
 For then good deedes were bad: vowes are but seedes,
 And good deeds fruits; euen those good deedes that grow
 From other stocks than from th'obserued vow.
 That is a good deede that preuents a bad: 355
 Had I not yeilded, slaine my selfe I had.
Hero Leander is, Leander Hero:
 Such vertue loue hath to make one of two.
 If then Leander did my maydenhead git,
Leander being my selfe I still retaine it. 360
 We breake chaste vowes when we liue loosely euer:
 But bound as we are, we liue loosely neuer.
 Two constant louers being ioynd in one,
 Yeelding to one another, yeeld to none.
 We know not how to vow, till loue vnblinde vs, 365
 And vowes made ignorantly neuer binde vs.
 Too true it is that when t'is gone men hate
 The ioyes as vaine they tooke in loues estate:
 But that's since they haue lost the heavenly light
 Should shew them way to iudge of all things right. 370
 When life is gone death must implant his terror,
 As death is foe to life, so loue to error.
 Before we loue how range we through this sphere,
 Searching the sundrie fancies hunted here:

Now with desire of wealth transported quite 375
 Beyond our free humanities delight :
 Now with ambition climbing falling towrs,
 Whose hope to scale our feare to fall deuours ;
 Now rapt with pastimes, pomp, all ioyes impure ;
In things without vs no delight is sure. 380
 But loue with all ioyes crownd, within doth sit ;
 O Goddess pitie loue and pardon it.
 This spake she weeping : but her Goddess eare
 Burnd with too sterne a heat, and would not heare.
 Aie me, hath heauens straight fingers no more graces 385
 For such as Hero, then for homeliest faces ?
 Yet she hopte well, and in her sweet conceit
 Waying her arguments, she thought them weight :
 And that the logick of Leanders beutie,
 And them together would bring proofes of dutie. 390
 And if her soule, that was a skillfull glance
 Of Heauens great essence, found such imperance
 In her loues beauties ; she had confidence
Loue lou'd him too, and pardond her offence.
Beutie in heauen and earth this grace doth win, 395
It supples rigor, and it lessens sin.
 Thus, her sharpe wit, her loue, her secrecie,
 (Trouping together, made her wonder why
 She should not leaue her bed, and to the Temple ?
 Her health said she must liue ; her sex, dissemble. 400
 She viewd Leanders place, and wisht he were Turnd to his place, so his place were Leander.
 Aye me (said she) that loues sweet life and sence
 Should doe it harme ! my loue had not gone hence,
 Had he been like his place. O blessed place, 405
 Image of Constancie. Thus my loues grace
 Parts no where but it leaues some thing behinde
 Worth obseruation : he renownes his kinde.
 His motion is like heauens Orbiculer :
 For where he once is, he is euer there. 410
 This place was mine : Leander now t'is thine ;
 Thou being my selfe, then it is double mine :
 Mine, and Leanders mine, Leanders mine.
 O see what wealth it yeelds me, nay yeelds him :
 For I am in it, he for me doth swim. 415
 Rich, fruitfull loue, that doubling selfe estates
Elixer-like contracts, though separates.
 Deare place, I kisse thee, and doe welcome thee,
 As from Leander euer sent to mee.

THE ARGVMENT OF THE FOVRTH SESTYAD

	Hero, in sacred habit deckt,
	Doth priuate sacrifice effect,
	Her Sharps description wrought by fate,
	Ostents that threaten her estate.
	The strange, yet Phisicall euent,	5
	Leanders counterfeitt presents.
	In thunder Ciprides descends,
	Presaging both the louers ends.
	Ecte the Goâdesse of remorse,
	With vocall and articulate force	10
	Inspires Leucote, Venus swan,
	T' excuse the beautilous Sestian.
	Venus, to wreake her riles abuses,
	Creates the monster Eronusis ;
	Enflaming Heros Sacrifice,	15
	With lightning darted from her eyes :
	And thereof springs the painted beast,
	That euer since taints euery breast.

*Eronusis,
Dis-
(mu)lation.*

Now from Leanders place she rose, and found
Her haire and rent robe scattred on the ground :
Which taking vp, she euery peece did lay
Vpon an Altar ; where in youth of day
She vsde t'exhibite priuate Sacrifice : 5
Those would she offer to the Deities
Of her faire Goddesses, and her powerfull son,
As relicks of her late-felt passion :
And in that holy sort she vowd to end them,
In hope her violent fancies that did rend them, 10
Would as quite fade in her loues holy fire,
As they should in the flames she ment t'inspire.
Then put she on all her religious wcedes,
That deckt her in her secret sacred deedes :
A crowne of Isickles, that sunne nor fire 15
Could euer melt, and figur'd chast desire.
A golden star shinde in her naked breast,
In honour of the Queene-light of the East.
In her right hand she held a siluer wand,
On whose bright top Peristera did stand, 20

Argument. 14-16 The marginal note is partially clipped away in the British Museum copy of ed. 1598^a

Who was a Nymph, but now transformd a Doue,
 And in her life was deare in Venus loue ;
 And for her sake she euer since that time,
 Chusde Doues to draw her Coach through heauens blew clime.
 Her plentious haire in curled billowes swims 25
 On her bright shoulder : her harmonious lims
 Sustaine no more but a most subtile vaile
 That hung on them, as it durst not assaile
 Their different concord : for the weakest ayre
 Could raise it swelling from her bewties fayre 30
 Nor did it couer, but adumbrate onelie
 Her most heart-piercing parts, that a blest eie
 Might see (as it did shadow) fearfullie
 All that all-loue-deseruing Paradise :
 It was as blew as the most freezing skies, 35
 Neere the Seas hew, for thence her Goddess came :
 On it a skarfe she wore of wondrous frame ;
 In midst whereof she wrought a virgins face,
 From whose each checke a fire blush did chase
 Two crimson flames, that did two waies extend, 40
 Spreading the ample skarfe to either end,
 Which figur'd the diuision of her minde,
 Whiles yet she rested bashfully inclinde,
 And stood not resolute to wed Leander.
 This seru'd her white neck for a purple sphere, 45
 And cast it selfe at full breadth downe her back.
 There (since the first breath that begun the wrack
 Of her free quiet from Leanders lips)
 She wrought a Sea in one flame full of ships :
 But that one ship where all her wealth did passe 50
 (Like simple marchants goods) Leander was :
 For in that Sea she naked figured him ;
 Her diuing needle taught him how to swim,
 And to each thred did such resemblance giue,
 For ioy to be so like him, it did liue. 55
*Things senceles liue by art, and rationall die,
 By rude contempt of art and industrie.*
 Scarce could she work but in her strength of thought,
 She feard she prickt Leander as she wrought :
 And oft would shrieke so, that her Guardian frighted, 60
 Would staring haste, as with some mischiefe cited.
*They double life that dead things griefts sustayne :
 They kill that feele not their friends liuing payne.*
 Sometimes she feard he sought her infamie,
 And then as she was working of his eie, 65
 She thought to pricke it out to quench her ill :
 But as she prickt, it grew more perfect still.
*Trifling attempts no serious acts aduance ;
 The fire of loue is blowne by dalliance.*
 In working his fayre neck she did so grace it, 70
 She still was working her owne armes t'imbrace it :

That, and his shoulders, and his hands were seene
 Aboue the streame, and with a pure Sea greene
 She did so quently shadow euery lim,
 All might be seene beneath the waues to swim. 75
 In this conceited skarfe she wrought beside
 A Moone in change, and shooting stars did glide
 In number after her with bloodie beames,
 Which figur'd her affects in their extreames,
 Pursuing Nature in her Cynthian bodie, 80
 And did her thoughts running on change implie:
 For maids take more delights when they prepare
 And thinke of wiuces states, than when wiuces they are.
 Bencath all these she wrought a Fisherman,
 Drawing his nets from forth that Ocean; 85
 Who drew so hard ye might discover well,
 The toughned sinewes in his neck did swell:
 His inward straines draue out his blood-shot eyes,
 And springs of sweat did in his forehead rise:
 Yet was of nought but of a Serpent sped, 90
 That in his bosome flew and stung him dead.
 And this by fate into her minde was sent,
 Not wrought by meere instinct of her intent.
 At the skarfs other end her hand did frame,
 Neere the forked point of the deuided flame, 95
 A countrie virgin keeping of a Vine,
 Who did of hollow bulrushes combine
 Snares for the stubble-louing Grashopper,
 And by her lay her skrip that nourisht her.
 Within a myrtle shade she sate and sung, 100
 And tufts of wauing reedes about her sprung:
 Where lurkt two Foxes, that while she applide
 Her trifling snares, their theeueries did deuide:
 One to the vine, another to her skrip,
 That she did negligently ouerslip: 105
 By which her fruitfull vine and holesome fare
 She suffred spoyld to make a childish snare.
 These omenous fancies did her soule expresse,
 And euery finger made a Prophetesse,
 To shew what death was hid in lous disguise, 110
 And make her iudgement conquer destinies.
 O what sweet formes fayre Ladies soules doe shrowd,
 Were they made seene & forced through their blood,
 If through their beauties like rich work through lawn,
 They would set forth their minds with vertues drawn, 115
 In letting graces from their fingers flie,
 To still their yas thoughts with industrie:
 That their plied wits in numbred silks might sing
 Passions huge conquest, and their needels leading Affection prisoner through their own-built citties, 120
 Pinniond with stories and Arachnean ditties.

Proceed we now with Heros sacrifice ;
 She odours burnd, and from their smoke did rise
 Vnsaurie fumes, that ayre with plagues inspired,
 And then the consecrated sticks she fired. 125
 On whose pale flame an angrie spirit flew,
 And beate it downe still as it vpward grew.
 The virgin Tapers that on th'altar stood,
 When she inflam'd them burnd as red as blood :
 All sad ostents of that too ncere successe, 130
 That made such mouing beauties motionlesse.
 Then Hero wept ; but her affrighted eyes
 (She quickly wrested from the sacrifice :
 Shut them, and inwards for Leander lookt,
 Searcht her soft bosome, and from thence she pluckt 135
 His louely picture : which when she had viewd,
 Her beauties were with all loues ioyes renewd.
 The odors sweetned, and the fires burnd cleere,
Leanders forme left no ill obiect there.
 Such was his beautie that the force of light, 140
 Whose knowledge teacheth wonders infinite,
 The strength of number and proportion,
 Nature had plaste in it to make it knowne
 Art was her daughter, and what humane wits
 For studie lost, intombd in drossie spirits, 145
 After this accident (which for her glorie Hero could not but make a historie)
 Th' inhabitants of Sestus, and Abydus
 Did euerie yeare with feasts propitious
 To faire Leanders picture sacrifice, 150
 And they were persons of especiall prize
 That were allowd it, as an ornament
 T' enrich their houses ; for the continent
 Of the strange vertues all approu'd it held :
 For euen the very looke of it repeld 155
 All blastings, witchcrafts, and the strifes of nature
 In those diseases that no hearbs could cure.
 The woollie sting of Auarice it would pull,
 And make the rankest miser bountifull.
 It kild the feare of thunder and of death ; 160
 The discords that conceits ingendereth
 Twixt man and wife it for the time would cease :
 The flames of loue it quencht, and would increase :
 Held in a princes hand it would put out
 The dreadfulst Comet : it would ease all doubt 165
 Of threatned mischiefes : it would bring asleepe
 Such as were mad : it would enforce to weepe
 Most barbarous eyes : and many more effects
 This picture wrought, and sprung Leandrian sects,

132 Here again a page is omitted in the British Museum copy of ed. 1598^a. Lines 133-58 follow the edition of 1600.

Of which was Hero first : For he whose forme 170
 (Held in her hand) cleerd such a fatall storme,
 From hell she thought his person would defend her,
 Which night and Hellespont would quickly send her.
 With this confirmd, she vovd to banish quite
 All thought of any check to her delite: 175
 And in contempt of sillie bashfulnes,
 She would the faith of her desires professe :
 Where her Religion should be Policie,
 To follow loue with zeale her pietie :
 Her chamber her Cathedrall Church should be, 180
 And her Leander her chiefe Deitie.
 For in her loue these did the gods forego ;
 And though her knowledge did not teach her so,
 Yet did it teach her this, that what her hart
 Did greatest hold in her selfe greatest part, 185
 That she did make her god ; and t'was lesse nought
 To leaue gods in profession and in thought,
 Than in her loue and life: for therein lies
 Most of her duties, and their dignities ;
 And raile the brain-bald world at what it will, 190
 Thats the grand Atheisme that raignes in it still.
 Yet singulartie she would vse no more,
 For she was singular too much before :
 But she would please the world with fayre pretext ;
 Loue would not leaue her conscience perplexed. 195
 Great men that will haue lesse doe for them still,
 Must beare them out though th'acts be nere so ill.
 Meannes must Pandar be to Excellencie,
 Pleasure attones Falshood and Conscience :
 Dissembling was the worst (thought Hero then) 200
 And that was best now she must liue with men.
 O vertuous loue that taught her to doe best,
 When she did worst, and when she thought it lest.
 Thus would she still proceed in works diuine,
 And in her sacred state of priesthood shine, 205
 Handling the holy rites with hands as bold,
 As if therein she did Ioues thunder hold ;
 And need not feare those menaces of error,
 Which she at others threw with greatest terror.
 O louely Hero, nothing is thy sin, 210
 Wayd with those foule faults other Priests are in ;
 That hauing neither faiths, nor works, nor bewties,
 P'engender any scuse for slubberd duties,
 With as much countenance fill their holie chayres,
 And sweat denouncements gainst prophane affayres, 215
 As if their liues were cut out by their places,
 And they the only fathers of the Graces.
 Now as with setled minde she did repaire
 Her thoughts to sacrifice her ravisht haire

And her torne robe which on the altar lay,
 And only for Religions fire did stay ; 220
 She heard a thunder by the Cyclops beaten,
 In such a volley as the world did threaten,
 Given Venus as she parted th'ayrie Sphere,
 Descending now to chide with Hero here : 225
 When suddenly the Goddesse waggoners,
 The Swans and Turtles that in coupled pheres
 Through all worlds bosoms draw her influence,
 Lighted in Heros window, and from thence
 To her fayre shoulders flew the gentle Doves, 230
 Gracefull Ædone that sweet pleasure lounes,
 And ruffoot Chresta with the tufted crowne,
 Both which did kisse her, though their Goddes frownd.
 The Swans did in the solid flood, her glasse,
 Proyne their fayre plumes; of which the fairest was 235
Ioue-lou'd Leucote, that pure brightnes is ;
 The other bountie-louing Dapsilis.
 All were in heauen, now they with Hero were :
 But Venus lookes brought wrath, and vrged feare.
 Her robe was skarlet, black her heads attire, 240
 And through her naked breast shinde streames of fire,
 As when the rarefied ayre is driuen
 In flashing streames, and opes the darkned heauen.
 In her white hand a wreath of yew she bore,
 And breaking th'icie wreath sweet Hero wore, 245
 She forst about her browes her wreath of yew,
 And sayd: Now minion to thy fate be trew,
 Though not to me, indure what this portends ;
 Begin where lightnes will, in shame it ends.
 Loue makes thee cunning ; thou art currant now 250
 By being counterfeit : thy broken vow
 Deceit with her pide garters must reioyne,
 And with her stampe thou countnances must coyne :
 Coynes and pure deceits for purities,
 And still a mayd wilt seeme in cosoned eies, 255
 And haue an antike face to laugh within,
 While thy smooth lookes make men digest thy sin.
 But since thy lips (lest thought forsworne) forswore,
 Be neuer virgins vow worth trusting more.
 When Beauties dearest did her Goddesse heare 260
 Breathe such rebukes gainst that she could not cleare,
 Dumbe sorrow spake alowd in teares and blood
 That from her grieve-burst vaines in piteous flood,
 From the sweet conduits of her fauor fell :
 The gentle Turtles did with moanes make swell 265
 Their shining gorges : the white black-eyde Swans
 Did sing as wofull Epicedians,
 As they would straightwaies dye : when pities Queene
 The Goddesse Ecte, that had euer beene

	Hid in a watrie clowde neere Heros cries,	270
	Since the first instant of her broken eies,
	Gaue bright Leucote voyce, and made her speake,
	To ease her anguish, whose swolne breast did breake
	With anger at her Goddesses, that did touch
	Hero so neere for that she vsde so much.	275
	And thrusting her white neck at Venus , sayd :
	Why may not amorous Hero seeme a mayd,
	Though she be none, as well as you suppress
	In modest cheekes your inward wantonnesse ?
	How often haue wee drawne you from aboue,	280
	T'exchange with mortals rites for rites in loue ?
	Why in your preist then call you that offence
	That shines in you, and is your influence ?
	With this the furies stopt Leucotes lips,
	Enioynd by Venus , who with Rosie whips	285
	Beate the kind Bird. Pierce lightning from her eyes
	Did set on fire faire Heros sacrifice,
	Which was her torne robe, and inforced hayre ;
	And the bright flame became a mayd most faire
Description and creation of Dissimulation.	For her aspect: her tresses were of wire,	290
	Knit like a net, where harts all set on fire
	Strugled in pants and could not get releast :
	Her armes were all with golden pincers drest,
	And twentie fashiond knots, pullies, and brakes,
	And all her bodie girdled with painted Snakes.	295
	Her doune parts in a Scorpions taile combinde,
	Freckled with twentie colours ; pyed wings shinde
	Out of her shoulders ; Cloth had neuer die,
	Nor sweeter colours neuer viewed eie,
	In scorching Turkie , Ceres , Tartarie ,	300
	Than shinde about this spirit notorious ;
	Nor was Arachnes web so glorious.
	Of lightning and of shreds she was begot ;
	More hold in base dissemblers is there not.
	Her name was Eronusis . Venus flew	305
	From Heros sight, and at her Chariot drew
	This wondrous creature to so steepe a height,
	That all the world she might command with sleight
	Of her gay wings : and then she bad her hast,
	Since Hero had dissembled, and disgrast	310
	Her rites so much, and euery breast infect
	With her deccits ; she made her Architect
	Of all dissimulation, and since then
	Neuer was any trust in maides nor men.
	O it spighted	315
	Fayre Venus hart to see her most delighted,
	And one she chusde for temper of her minde,
	To be the only ruler of her kinde,
	So soone to let her virgin race be ended ;
	Not simply for the fault a whit offended,	320

But that in strife for chastnes with the Moone,
 Spitefull Diana bad her shew but one,
 That was her seruant vowd, and liu'd a mayd,
 And now she thought to answer that vpbrayd,
Hero had lost her answer; who knowes not 325
Venus would seeme as farre from any spot
 Of light demeanour, as the very skin
 Twixt Cynthias browes? Sin is asham'd of Sin.
 Vp Venus flew, and scarce durst vp for feare
 Of Phæbes laughter, when she past her Sphere: 330
 And so most vgly clowded was the light,
 That day was hid in day; night came ere night,
 And Venus could not through the thick ayre pierce,
 Till the daies king, god of vndanted verse,
 Because she was so plentifull a theame 335
 To such as wore his Lawrell Anademe,
 Like to a fire bullet made descent,
 And from her passage those fat vapours rent,
 That being not thoroughly rarefide to raine,
 Melted like pitch as blew as any vaine, 340
 And scalding tempests made the earth to shrinke
 Vnder their feruor, and the world did thinke
 In euery drop a torturing Spirit flew,
 It pierst so deeply, and it burnd so blew.
 Betwixt all this and Hero, Hero held 345
Leanders picture as a Persian shield:
 And she was free from feare of worst successe;
 The more ill threats vs, we suspect the lesse:
 As we grow haples, violence subtle growes,
 Dumb, deafe, & blind, & comes when no man knowes. 350

The end of the fourth Sestiyad.

THE ARGVMENT OF THE FIFT SESTYAD.

*Day doubles her accustomed date,
As loth the night, incenst by fate,
Should wrack our louers; Heros plight,
Longs for Leander, and the night;
Which ere her thirstie wish recouers, 5
She sends for two betrothed louers,
And marries them, that (with their crew,
Their sports and ceremonies due)
She couerily might celebrate
With secret ioy her owne estate. 10
She makes a feast, at which appeares
The wilde Nymph Teras, that still beares
An Iuory Lute, tels Omenous tales,
And sings at solemne festiuales.*

Now was bright Hero weary of the day,
Thought an Olympiad in Leanders stay.
Sol, and the soft-foote Howrs hung on his armes,
And would not let him swim, foreseeing his harmes :
That day Aurora double grace obtainde 5
Of her loue Phæbus; she his Horses rainde,
Set on his golden knee, and as she list
She puld him back; and as she puld, she kist
To haue him turne to bed; he lou'd her more,
To see the loue Leander Hero bore. 10
Examples profit much; ten times in one,
In persons full of note, good deedes are done.
Day was so long, men walking fell asleepe,
The heauie humors that their eyes did steepe,
Made them feare mischiefs. The hard streets were beds 15
For couetous churles, and for ambitious heads,
That spite of Nature would their busines plie.
All thought they had the falling Epilepsie,
Men groueld so vpon the smotherd ground,
And pittie did the hart of heauen confound. 20
The Gods, the Graces, and the Muses came
Downe to the Destinies, to stay the frame
Of the true louers deaths, and all worlds teares :
But death before had stopt their cruell eares.
All the Celestials parted mourning then, 25
Pierst with our humane miseries more then men.
Ah, nothing doth the world with mischiefe fill,
But want of feeling one anothers ill.
With their descent the day grew something fayre,
And cast a brighter robe vpon the ayre. 30

Hero to shorten time with merriment,
 For yong Alcmene, and bright Mya sent,
 Two louers that had long crau'd mariage dues
 At Heros hands: but she did still refuse,
 For louely Mya was her consort vowd 35
 In her maids state, and therefore not allowd
 To amorous Nuptials: yet faire Hero now
 Intended to dispence with her cold vow,
 Since hers was broken, and to marrie her:
 The rites would pleasing matter minister 40
 To her conceits, and shorten tedious day.
 They came; sweet Musick vs herd th'odorous way,
 And wanton Ayre in twentie sweet forms danst
 After her fingers; Beautie and Loue aduanst
 Their ensignes in the downles rosie faces 45
 Of youths and maids, led after by the Graces.
 For all these Hero made a friendly feast,
 Welcomd them kindly, did much loue protest,
 Winning their harts with all the meanes she might,
 That when her fault should chance t'abide the light, 50
 Their loues might couer or extenuate it,
 And high in her worst fate make pittie sit.
 She married them, and in the banquet came
 Borne by the virgins: Hero striu'd to frame
 Her thoughts to mirth. Aye me, but hard it is 55
 To imitate a false and forced blis.
 Ill may a sad minde forge a merrie face,
 Nor hath constrained laughter any grace.
 Then layd she wine on cares to make them sinke;
 Who feares the threats of fortune, let him drinke. 60
 To these quick Nuptials entred suddenly
 Admired Teras with the Ebon Thye,
 A Nymph that haunted the greene Sestyan groues,
 And would consort soft virgins in their loues,
 At gaysome Triumphs, and on solemne dayes, 65
 Singing prophetike Elegies and Layes:
 And fingring of a siluer Lute she tide
 With black and purple skarfs by her left side.
Apollo gaue it, and her skill withall,
 And she was term'd his Dwarfie she was so small. 70
 Yet great in vertue, for his beames enclosde
 His vertues in her: neuer was proposde
 Riddle to her, or Augurie, strange or new,
 But she resolu'd it: neuer sleight tale flew
 From her charmd lips without important sence, 75
 Shewne in some graue succeeding consequence.
 This little *Siluan*e with her songs and tales
 Gaue such estate to feasts and Nuptiales,
 That though oft times she forewent Tragedies,
 Yet for her strangenes still she pleasde their eyes, 80

And for her smalnes they admir'd her so,
They thought her perfect borne and could not grow

All eyes were on her : Hero did command
An Altar deckt with sacred state should stand,
At the Feasts vpper end close by the Bride, 85
On which the pretie Nymph might sit espide.
Then all were silent ; euery one so heares,
As all their sences climbd into their eares :
And first this amorous tale that fitted well
Fayre Hero and the Nuptials she did tell : 90

The tale of Teras.

Hymen that now is god of Nuptiall rites,
And crownes with honor loue and his delights,
Of Athens was a youth so sweet of face,
That many thought him of the femall race :
Such quickning brightnes did his cleere eyes dart, 95
Warne went their beames to his beholders hart.
In such pure leagues his beauties were combinde,
That there your Nuptiall contracts first were signde.
For as proportion, white and crimsine, meet
In Beauties mixture, all right cleere, and sweet ; 100
The eye responsible, the golden haire,
And none is held without the other faire :
All spring together, all together fade ;
Such intermixt affections should inuade
Two perfect louers : which being yet vnseene, 105
Their vertues and their comforts copied beene,
In Beauties concord, subiect to the eie ;
And that, in Hymen, please so matchleslie,
That louers were esteemde in their full grace,
Like forme and colour mixt in Hymens face ; 110
And such sweete concord was thought worthe then
Of torches, musick, feasts, and greatest men :
So Hymen lookt, that euen the chastest minde
He mou'd to ioyne in ioyes of sacred kinde :
For onely now his chins first doune consorted 115
His heads rich fleece, in golden curles contorted ;
And as he was so lou'd, he lou'd so too,
So should best bewties, bound by Nuptialls doo.
Bright Eucharis, who was by all men saide
The noblest, fayrest, and the richest maide 120
Of all th' Athenian damzels, Hymen lou'd
With such transmission, that his heart remou'd
From his white brest to hers, but her estate
In passing his was so interminate
For wealth and honor, that his loue durst feede 125
On nought but sight and hearing, nor could breede
Hope of requitall, the grand prise of loue ;
Nor could he heare or see but he must proue

How his rare bewties musick would agree
 With maids in consort: therefore robbed he
 His chin of those same few first fruits it bore, 130
 And clad in such attiro as Virgins wore,
 He kept them companie, and might right well,
 For he did all but Eucharis excell
 In all the fayre of Beautie: yet he wanted 135
 Vertue to make his owne desires implanted
 In his deare Eucharis; for women neuer
 Loue beautie in their sex, but enuie euer.
 His iudgement yet (that durst not suite addresse,
 Nor past due meanes presume of due successe) 140
 Reason gat fortune in the end to spcede
 To his best praye(r)s: but strange it seemd indeede,
 That fortune should a chast affection blesse,
Preferment seldome graceth bashfulnesse.
 Nor grast it Hymen yet; but many a dart 145
 And many an amorous thought enthrald his hart,
 Ere he obtaind her; and he sick became,
 Forst to abstaine her sight, and then the flame
 Rag'd in his bosome. O what grieve did fill him:
 Sight made him sick, and want of sight did kill him. 150
 The virgins wondred where Diætia stayd,
 For so did Hymen terme himselfe a mayd.
 At length with sickly lookes he greeted them:
 Tis strange to see gainst what an extreame streame
 A louer striues; poore Hymen lookt so ill, 155
 That as in merit he increased still,
 By suffering much, so he in grace decreast.
 Women are most wonne when men merit least:
 If merit looke not well, loue bids stand by,
 Loues speciall lesson is to please the eye. 160
 And Hymen soone recouering all he lost,
 Deceiuing still these maids, but himselfe most.
 His loue and he with many virgin dames,
 Noble by birth, noble by beauties flames,
 Leauing the towne with songs and hallowed lights, 165
 To doe great Ceres Eleusina rites
 Of zealous Sacrifice, were made a pray
 To barbarous Rouers that in ambush lay,
 And with rude hands enforst their shining spoyle,
 Farre from the darkned Citie, tir'd with toyle. 170
 And when the yellow issue of the skie
 Came trouping forth, ielous of crueltie
 To their bright fellowes of this vnder heaven,
 Into a double night they saw them driuen,
 A horride Caue, the theesues black mansion, 175
 Where wearie of the iourney they had gon,
 Their last nights watch, and drunke with their sweete gains,
 Dull Morpheus entred, laden with silken chains,

Stronger then iron, and bound the swelling vaines
 And tyred sences of these lawles Swaines. 180
 But when the virgin lights thus dimly burnd;
 O what a hell was heauen in! how they mournd
 And wrung their hands, and wound their gentle forms
 Into the shapes of sorrow! Golden storms
 Fell from their eyes: As when the Sunne appeares, 185
 And yet it raines, so shewd their eyes their teares.
 And as when funerall dames watch a dead corse,
 Weeping about it, telling with remorse
 What paines he felt, how long in paine he lay,
 How little food he eate, what he would say; 190
 And then mixe mournfull tales of others deaths,
 Smothering themselves in clowds of their owne breaths;
 At length, one cheering other, call for wine,
 The golden boale drinks teares out of their eine,
 As they drinke wine from it; and round it goes, 195
 Each helping other to relieue their woes:
 So cast these virgins beauties mutuall raies,
 One lights another, face the face displaies;
 Lips by reflexion kist, and hands hands shooke,
 Euen by the whitenes each of other tooke. 200
 But Hymen now vsde friendly Morpheus aide,
 Slew euery theefe, and rescude euery maide.
 And now did his enamour'd passion take
 Hart from his hartie deede, whose worth did make
 His hope of bounteous Eucharis more strong; 205
 And now came Loue with Proteus, who had long
 Ingg'd the little god with prayers and gifts,
 Ran through all shapes, and varied all his shifts,
 To win Loues stay with him, and make him loue him:
 And when he saw no strength of sleight could moue him 210
 To make him loue, or stay, he nimbly turnd
 Into Loues selfe, he so extreame ly burnd.
 And thus came Loue with Proteus and his powre,
 T'encounter Eucharis: first like the flowre
 That Iunos milke did spring, the siluer Lillie, 215
 He fell on Hymens hand, who straight did spie
 The bounteous Godhead, and with wondrous ioy
 Offred it Eucharis. She wondrous coy
 Drew back her hand: the subtle flowre did woo it,
 And drawing it neere, mixt so you could not know it. 220
 As two cleere Tapers mixe in one their light,
 So did the Lillie and the hand their white:
 She viewd it, and her view the forme bestowes
 Amongst her spirits: for as colour flowes
 From superficies of each thing we see, 225
 Euen so with colours formes emitted bee:
 And where Loues forme is, loue is, loue is forme;
 He entred at the eye, his sacred storme

Rose from the hand, lous sweetest instrument :
 It stird her bloods sea so, that high it went, 230
 And beate in bashfull waues gainst the white shore
 Of her diuided cheekes ; it rag'd the more,
 Because the tide went gainst the haughtie winde
 Of her estate and birth : And as we finde
 In fainting ebs, the flowrie Zephire hurles 235
 The greene-hayrd Hellespont, broke in siluer curles,
 Gainst Heros towre : but in his blasts retereate,
 The waues obeying him, they after beate,
 Leauing the chalkie shore a great way pale,
 Then moyst it freshly with another gale : 240
 So ebd and flowde the blood in Eucharis face,
 Coynesse and Loue striu'd which had greatest grace.
 Virginitie did fight on Coynesse side ;
 Feare of her parents frownes, and femall pride,
 Lothing the lower place more then it lous 245
 The high contents desert and vertue moues.
 With loue fought Hymens beautie and his valure,
 Which scarce could so much fauour yet allure
 To come to strike, but fameles idle stood,
Action is firie valours soueraigne good. 250
 But Loue once entred, wisht no greater ayde
 Then he could find within ; thought thought betrayd,
 The bribde, but incorrupted Garrison
 Sung To Hymen ; there those songs begun,
 And Loue was growne so rich with such a gaine, 255
 And wanton with the ease of his free raigue,
 That he would turne into her roughest frownes
 To turne them out ; and thus he Hymen crownes
 King of his thoughts, mans greatest Emperie :
 This was his first braue step to deitie. 260
 Hoine to the mourning cittie they repayre,
 With newes as holesome as the morning ayre
 To the sad parents of each saued maid :
 But Hymen and his Eucharis had laid
 This plat, to make the flame of their delight 265
 Round as the Moone at full, and full as bright.
 Because the parents of chaste Eucharis
 Exceeding Hymens so, might crosse their blis ;
 And as the world rewards deserts, that law
 Cannot assist with force : so when they saw 270
 Their daughter safe, take vantage of their owne,
 Praise Hymens valour much, nothing bestowne :
Hymen must leaue the virgins in a Groue
 Farre off from Athens, and go first to proue
 If to restore them all with fame and life, 275
 He should enioy his dearest as his wife.
 This told to all the maids, the most agree :
 The riper sort knowing what t'is to bee

The first mouth of a newes so farre deriu'd,
 And that to heare and beare newes braue folks liu'd, 280
 As being a carriage speciall hard to beare
 Occurrents, these occurrents being so deare,
 They did with grace protest, they were content
 T'accost their friends with all their complement
 For Hymens good : but to incurre their harme, 285
 There he must pardon them. This wit went warme
 To Adoleshes braine, a Nymph borne hie,
 Made all of voyce and fire, that vpwards flie :
 Her hart and all her forces nether traine
 Climbd to her tongue, and thither fell her braine, 290
 Since it could goe no higher, and it must go :
 All powers she had, euen her tongue, did so.
 In spirit and quicknes she much ioy did take,
 And lou'd her tongue, only for quicknes sake,
 And she would hast and tell. The rest all stay, 295
Hymen goes on(e), the Nymph another way :
 And what became of her Ile tell at last :
 Yet take her visage now : moyst lipt, long fa'st,
 Thin like an iron wedge, so sharpe and tart,
 As twere of purpose made to cleaue Loues hart. 300
 Well were this louely Beautie rid of her,
 And Hymen did at Athens now prefer
 His welcome suite, which he with ioy aspirde :
 A hundred princely youths with him retirde
 To fetch the Nymphs : Chariots and Musick went, 305
 And home they came : heauen with applauses rent.
 The Nuptials straight proceed, whiles all the towne
 Fresh in their ioyes might doe them most renowne.
 First gold-lockt Hymen did to Church repaire,
 Like a quick offering burnd in flames of haire. 310
 And after, with a virgin firmament,
 The Godhead-prouing Bride attended went
 Before them all ; she lookt in her command,
 As if forme-giuing Cyprias siluer hand
 Gripte all their beauties, and crusht out one flame, 315
 She blusht to see how beautie ouercame
 The thoughts of all men. Next before her went Five louely children deckt with ornament
 Of her sweet colours, bearing Torches by,
 For light was held a happie Augurie 320
 Of generation, whose efficient right
 Is nothing else but to produce to light.
 The od disparent number they did chuse,
 To shew the vnion married loues should vse,
 Since in two equall parts it will not seuer. 325
 But the midst holds one to reioyne it euer,
 As common to both parts : men therefore deeme,
 That equall number Gods doe not esteeme,
 289 nether] neither 1598^a

Being authors of sweet peace and vnitie,
 But pleasing to th'infernall Emperie, 330
 Vnder whose ensignes Wars and Discords fight,
 Since an euen number you may disunite
 In two parts equall, nought in middle left,
 To reunite each part from other reft :
 And fwe they hold in most especiall prisc, 335
 Since t'is the first od number that doth rise
 From the two formost numbers vnitie
 That od and euen are ; which are two, and three,
 For one no number is : but thence doth flow
 The powerfull race of number. Next did go 340
 A noble Matron that did spinning beare
 A huswives rock and spindle, and did weare
 A Weathers skin, with all the snowy fleecce,
 To intimate that euen the daintiest peece,
 And noblest borne dame should industrious bec : 345
 That which does good disgraceth no degree.
 And now to Iunos Temple they are come,
 Where her graue Priest stood in the mariage rome.
 On his right arme did hang a skarlet vaile,
 And from his shoulders to the ground did traile. 350
 On either side, Ribands of white and blew ;
 With the red vaile he hid the bashfull hew
 Of the chast Bride, to shew the modest shame,
 In coupling with a man should grace a dame.
 Then tooke he the disparent Silks, and tide 355
 The Louers by the wasts, and side to side,
 In token that thereafter they must binde
 In one selfe sacred knot each others minde.
 Before them on an Altar he presented
 Both fire and water : which was first inuented, 360
 Since to ingenerate euery humane creature,
 And euery other birth produ't by Nature,
 Moysture and heate must mixe : so man and wife
 For humane race must ioyne in Nuptiall life.
 Then one of Iunos Birds, the painted Iay, 365
 He sacrificde, and tooke the gall away.
 All which he did behinde the Altar throw,
 In signe no bitternes of hate should grow
 Twixt married loues, nor any least disdain.
 Nothing they spake, for twas esteemd too plaine 370
 For the most silken mildnes of a maid,
 To let a publique audience heare it said
 She boldly tooke the man : and so respected
 Was bashfulnes in Athens : it erected
 To chast Agneia, which is Shamefastnesse, 375
 A sacred Temple, holding her a Goddess.
 And now to Feasts, Masks, and triumphant showes,
 The shining troupes returnd, euen till earths throwes

Brought forth with ioy the thickest part of night,
 When the sweet Nuptiall song that vsde to cite 380
 All to their rest, was by Phemonoe sung,
 First Delphian Prophetesse, whose graces sprung
 Out of the Muses well: she sung before
 The Bride into her chamber: at which dore
 A Matron and a Torch-bearer did stand; 385
 A painted box of Confits in her hand
 The Matron held, and so did other some
 That compast round the honourd Nuptiall rome.
 The custome was that euery maid did weare,
 During her maidenhead, a silken Sphere 390
 About her waste, aboue her inmost weede,
 Knit with Mineruas knot, and that was freedde
 By the faire Bridegrome on the mariage night,
 With many ceremonies of delight:
 And yet eternisde Hymens tender Bride, 395
 To suffer it dissolu'd so sweetly cride.
 The maids that heard so lou'd, and did adore her,
 They wisht with all their hearts to suffer for her.
 So had the Matrons, that with Confits stood
 About the chamber, such affectionate blood, 400
 And so true feeling of her harmeles paines,
 That euery one a showre of Confits raines.
 For which the Brideyouths scrambling on the ground,
 In noyse of that sweet haile her cryes were drownd.
 And thus blest Hymen ioyde his gracious Bride, 405
 And for his ioy was after deifide.
 The Saffron mirror by which Phæbus loue,
 Greene Tellus decks her, now he held aboue
 The cloudy mountaines: and the noble maide,
 Sharp-visag'd Adolesche, that was straide 410
 Out of her way, in hasting with her newes,
 Not till this houre th' Athenian turrets viewes,
 And now brought home by guides, she heard by all
 That her long kept occurrents would be stale,
 And how faire Hymens honors did excell 415
 For those rare newes, which she came short to tell.
 To heare her deare tongue robd of such a ioy
 Made the well-spoken Nymph take such a toy,
 That downe she sunke: when lightning from aboue
 Shrunk her leane body, and for meere free loue, 420
 Turnd her into the pied-plum'd Psittacus,
 That now the Parrat is surnam'd by vs,
 Who still with counterfeit confusion prates
 Nought but newes common to the commonst mates.
 This tolde, strange Teras toucht her Lute and sung 425
 This dittie, that the Torchie euening sprung.

Epithalamion Teratos.

Come, come deare night, Loues Mart of kisses,
 Sweet close of his ambitious line,
 The fruitfull summer of his blisses,
 Loues glorie doth in darknes shine. 430
 O come soft rest of Cares, come night,
 Come naked vertues only tire,
 The reaped haruest of the light,
 Bound vp in sheaues of sacred fire.
Loue calls to warre, 435
Sighs his Alarmes,
Lips his swords are,
The field his Armes.
 Come Night and lay thy veluet hand
 On glorious Dayes outfacing face ; 440
 And all thy crowned flames command
 For Torchcs to our Nuptiall grace.
Loue calls to warre,
Sighs his Alarmes,
Lips his swords are, 445
The field his Armes.
 No neede haue we of factious Day,
 To cast in enuie of thy peace
 Her bals of Discord in thy way:
 Here beauties day doth neuer cease, 450
 Day is abstracted here,
 And varied in a triple sphere.
Hero, Alcmane, Mya so outshine thee,
 Ere thou come here let Thetis thrice refine thee.
Loue calls to warre, 455
Sighs his Alarmes,
Lips his swords are,
The field his Armes.
 The Euening starre I see :
 Rise youths, the Euening starre 460
 Helps Loue to summon warre,
 Both now imbracing bee.
 Rise youths, loues right claims more then banquets, rise.
 Now the bright Marygolds that deck the skies,
Phæbus celestiall flowrs, that (contrarie 465
 To his flowers here) ope when he shuts his eie,
 And shuts when he doth open, crowne your sports :
 Now loue in night, and night in loue exhorts
 Courtship and Dances : All your parts employ,
 And suite nights rich expansure with your ioy, 470
 Loue paints his longings in sweet virgins eyes :
 Rise youths, loues right claims more then banquets, rise.
 Rise virgins, let fayre Nuptiall loues enfolde
 Your fruitles breasts : the maidenheads ye holde

Are not your owne alone, but parted are ; 475
 Part in disposing them your Parents share,
 And that a third part is : so must ye saue
 Your loues a third, and you your thirds must haue.
 Loue paints his longings in sweet virgins eyes :
 Rise youths, loues right claims more then banquets, rise.

Herewith the amorous spirit that was so kinde 481
 To Texas haire, and combd it downe with winde,
 Still as it Comet-like brake from her braine,
 Would needes haue Texas gone, and did refraine
 To blow it downe : which staring vp, dismaid 485
 The timorous feast, and she no longer staid :
 But bowing to the Bridegrome and the Bride,
 Did like a shooting exhalation glide
 Out of their sights : the turning of her back
 Made them all shriek, it lookt so ghastly black. 490
 O haples Hero, that most haples clowde
 Thy soone-succeeding Tragedie foreshowde.
 Thus all the Nuptiall crew to ioyes depart,
 But much-wrongd Hero stood Hels blackest dart :
 Whose wound because I grieue so to display, 495
 I vse digressions thus t'encrease the day.

The end of the fift Sestiyad.

THE ARGVMENT OF THE SIXT SESTYAD.

Leucote flies to all the windes,
 And from the fates their outrage bindes,
 That Hero and her loue may meete.
 Leander (with Loues compleate Fleet
 Mand in himselfe) puts forth to Seas, 5
 When straight the ruthles Destinies
 With Ate stirre the windes to warre
 Vpon the Hellespont : Their iarre
 Drownes poore Leander. Heros eyes,
 Wet wilnesses of his surprise, 10
 Her Torch blowne out, Griefe casts her downe
 Vpon her loue, and both doth drowne.
 In whose iust ruth the God of Seas
 Transformes them to th' Acanthides.

No longer could the day nor Destinies
 Delay the night, who now did frowning rise
 Into her Throne ; and at her humorous breasts
 Visions and Dreames lay sucking : all mens rests

Fell like the mists of death vpon their eyes, 5
 Dayes too long darts so kild their faculties.
 The windes yet, like the flours to cease began :
 For bright Leucote, Venus whitest Swan,
 That held sweet Hero deare, spread her fayre wings,
 Like to a field of snow, and message brings 10
 From Venus to the Fates, t'entreate them lay
 Their charge vpon the windes their rage to stay,
 That the sterne battaile of the Seas might cease,
 And guard Leander to his loue in peace.
 The Fates consent, (aye me dissembling Fates) 15
 They shewd their fauours to conceale their hates,
 And draw Leander on, least Seas too hie
 Should stay his too obsequious destinie :
 Who like a fleeing slauish Parasite,
 In warping profit or a traiterous sleight, 20
 Hoopes round his rotten bodie with deuotes,
 And pricks his descant face full of false notes,
 Praying with open throte (and othes as fowle
 As his false heart) the beautie of an Owle,
 Kissing his skipping hand with charmed skips, 25
 That cannot leaue, but leapes vpon his lips
 Like a cock-sparrow, or a shameles queane
 Sharpe at a red-lipt youth, and nought doth meane
 Of all his antick shewes, but doth repayre
 More tender fawnes, and takes a scattred hayre 30
 From his tame subiects shoulder ; whips, and cals
 For euery thing he lacks ; creepes gainst the wals
 With backward humblesse, to giue needles way :
 Thus his false fate did with Leander play.
 First to black Eurus flies the white Leucote, 35
 Borne mongst the Negros in the Leuant Sea,
 On whose curld head the glowing Sun doth rise,
 And shewes the soueraigne will of Destinies,
 To haue him cease his blasts, and downe he lies. }
 Next, to the fennie Notus course she holds, 40
 And found him leaning with his armes in folds
 Vpon a rock, his white hayre full of showres,
 And him she chargeth by the fatall powres,
 To hold in his wet cheekes his clowdie voyce.
 To Zephire then that doth in flowres reioyce. 45
 To snake-foote Boreas next she did remoue,
 And found him tossing of his rauisht loue,
 To heate his frostie bosome hid in snow,
 Who with Leucotes sight did cease to blow.
 Thus all were still to Heros harts desire, 50
 Who with all speede did consecrate a fire
 Of flaming Gummes, and comfortable Spice,
 To light her Torch, which in such curious price
 She held, being obiect to Leanders sight,
 That nought but fires perfum'd must giue it light. 55

She lou'd it so, she grieu'd to see it burne,
 Since it would waste and soone to ashes turne :
 Yet if it burnd not, twere not worth her eyes,
 What made it nothing, gaue it all the prize.
 Sweet Torch, true Glasse of our societie ; 60
 What man does good, but he consumes thereby ?
 But thou wert lou'd for good, held high, giuen show :
 Poore vertue loth'd for good, obscur'd, held low.
 Doe good, be pinde ; be deedles good, disgrast :
 Vnles we feede on men, we let them fast. 65
 Yet Hero with these thoughts her Torch did spend.
 When Bees makes waxe, Nature doth not intend
 It shall be made a Torch : but we that know
 The proper vertue of it make it so,
 And when t'is made we light it : nor did Nature 70
 Propose one life to maids, but each such creature
 Makes by her soule the best of her free state,
 Which without loue is rude, disconsolatc,
 And wants loues fire to make it milde and bright,
 Till when, maids are but Torches wanting light. 75
 Thus gainst our grieffe, not cause of grieffe we fight,
 The right of nought is gleande, but the delight.
 Vp went she, but to tell how she descended,
 Would God she were not dead, or my verse ended.
 She was the rule of wishes, summe and end 80
 For all the parts that did on loue depend :
 Yet cast the Torch his brightnes further forth ;
 But what shines neerest best, holds truest worth.
Leander did not through such tempests swim
 To kisse the Torch, although it lighted him : 85
 But all his powres in her desires awaked,
 Her loue and vertues cloth'd him richly naked.
 Men kisse but fire that only shewes pursue,
 Her Torch and Hero, figure shew and vertue.
 Now at opposde Abydos nought was heard, 90
 But bleating flocks, and many a bellowing herd,
 Slaine for the Nuptials, cracks of falling woods,
 Blowes of broad axes, powrings out of floods.
 The guiltie Hellaspoint was mixt and stainde
 With bloodie Torrents, that the shambles rained ; 95
 Not arguments of feast, but shewes that bled,
 Foretelling that red night that followed.
 More blood was spilt, more honors were address,
 Then could haue graced any happie feast.
 Rich banquets, triumphs, euery pomp employes 100
 His sumptuous hand : no misers nuptiall ioyes.
 Ayre felt continuall thunder with the noyse,
 Made in the generall marriage violence :
 And no man knew the cause of this expence,
 But the two haples Lords, Leanders Sire, 105

And poore Leander, poorest where the fire
 Of credulous loue made him most rich surmisde.
 As short was he of that himselfe he prisde,
 As is an emptie Gallant full of forme,
 That thinks each looke an act, each drop a storme, 110
 That fals from his braue breathings; most brought vp
 In our Metropolis, and hath his cup
 Brought after him to feasts; and much Palme beares,
 For his rare iudgement in th'attire he weares,
 Hath seene the hot Low Countries, not their heat, 115
 Obserues their rampires and their buildings yet.
 And for your sweet discourse with mouthes is heard,
 Giuing instructions with his very beard.
 Hath gone with an Ambassadour, and been
 A great mans mate in trauailing, euen to Rhene, 120
 And then puts all his worth in such a face,
 As he saw braue men make, and striues for grace
 To get his newes forth; as when you descrie
 A ship with all her sayle contends to flie
 Out of the narrow Thames with windes vnap't, 125
 Now crosseth here, then there, then this way rapt,
 And then hath one point reacht; then alters all,
 And to another crooked reach doth fall
 Of halfe a burdbolts shoote; keeping more coyle,
 Then if she danst vpon the Oceans toyle: 130
 So serious is his trifling companie,
 In all his swelling ship of vacantrie.
 And so short of himselfe in his high thought.
 Was our Leander in his fortunes brought
 And in his fort of loue that he thought won, 135
 But otherwise he skornes comparison.
 O sweet Leander, thy large worth I hide
 In a short graue; ill fauourd stormes must chide
 Thy sacred fauour; I in floods of inck
 Must drowne thy graces, which white papers drink, 140
 Euen as thy beauties did the foule black Seas:
 I must describe the hell of thy disease,
 That heauen did merit: yet I needes must see
 Our painted foolles and cockhorse Pessantrie
 Still still vsurp, with long liues, loues, and lust, 145
 The seates of vertue, cutting short as dust
 Her deare bought issue; ill to worse conuert,
 And tramples in the blood of all deserts.
 Night close and silent now goes fast before
 The Capitaines and their souldiers to the shore, 150
 On whom attended the appointed Fleete
 At Sestus Bay, that should Leander meete,
 Who fainde he in another ship would passe:
 Which must not be, for no one meane there was
 To get his loue home, but the course he tooke, 155
 Forth did his beautie for his beautie looke,

And saw her through her Torch, as you beholde
 Sometimes within the Sunne a face of golde,
 Form'd in strong thoughts, by that traditions force,
 That saies a God sits there and guides his course. 160
 His sister was with him, to whom he shewd
 His guide by Sea: and sayd: Oft haue you viewd
 In one heauen many starres, but neuer yet
 In one starre many heauens till now were met.
 See louely sister, see, now Hero shines 165
 No heauen but her appeares: each star repines,
 And all are clad in clowdes, as if they mournd,
 To be by influence of Earth out-burnd.
 Yet doth she shine, and teacheth vertues traine,
 Still to be constant in Hels blackest raigne, 170
 Though euen the gods themselues do so entreat them
 As they did hate, and Earth as she would cate them.
 Off went his silken robe, and in he leapt;
 Whom the kinde waues so licorously cleapt,
 Thickning for haste one in another so, 175
 To kisse his skin, that he might almost go
 To Heros Towre, had that kind minuit lasted,
 But now the cruell fates with Aie hasted
 To all the windes, and made them battaile fight
 Vpon the Hellespont, for eithers right 180
 Pretended to the windie monarchie.
 And forth they brake, the Seas mixt with the skie,
 And tost distrest Leander, being in hell,
 As high as heauen; Blisse not in height doth dwell.
 The Destinies sate dancing on the waues, 185
 To see the glorious windes with mutuall braues
 Consume each other: O true glasse to see,
 How ruinous ambitious Statists bee
 To their owne glories! Poore Leander cried
 For help to Sea-borne Venus; she denied: 190
 To Boreas, that for his Aithæas sake,
 He would some pittie on his Hero take,
 And for his owne loues sake, on his desires:
 But Glorie neuer blowes cold Pitties fires.
 Then calde he Neptune, who through all the noise 195
 Knew with affright his wrackt Leanders voice:
 And vp he rose, for haste his forehead hit
 Gainst heauens hard Christall; his proud waues he smit
 With his fork't scepter, that could not obay,
 Much greater powers then Neptunes gaue them sway. 200
 They lou'd Leander so, in groanes they brake
 When they came neere him; and such space did take Twixt one another, loth to issue on,
 That in their shallow furrowes earth was shone,
 And the poore louer tooke a little breath; 205
 But the curst Fates sate spinning of his death

On every waue, and with the seruile windes
 Tumbled them on him: And now Hero findes
 By that she felt her deare Leanders state.
 She wept and prayed for him to euery fate, 210
 And euery winde that whipt her with her haire
 About the face she kist and spake it faire,
 Kneeld to it, gaue it drinke out of her eyes
 To quench his thirst: but still their cruelties
 Euen her poore Torch enuied, and rudely beate 215
 The bating flame from that deare foode it eate:
Deare, for it nourisht her Leanders life,
 Which with her robe she rescue from their strife:
 But silke too soft was, such hard hearts to breake,
 And she deare soule, euen as her silke, faint, weake 220
 Could not preserue it: out, O out it went.
Leander still cald Neptune, that now rent
 His brackish curles, and tore his wrinckled face }
 Where teares in billowes did each other chace,
 And (burst with ruth) he hurld his marble Mace) 225
 At the sterne Fates: it wounded Lachesis
 That drew Leanders thread, and could not misse
 The thread it selfe, as it her hand did hit,
 But smote it full and quite did sunder it.
 The more kinde Neptune rag'd, the more he raste 230
 His loues liues fort, and kild as he embraste.
 Anger doth still his owne mishap encrease;
 If any comfort liue, it is in peace.
 O theeuish Fates, to let Blood, Flesh, and Sence }
 Build two fayre Temples for their Excellence,
 To rob it with a poysoned influence. 235
 Though soules gifts starue, the bodies are held dear
 In vglitest things; Sence-sport preserues a Beare.
 But here nought serues our turnes; O heauen & earth,
 How most most wretched is our humane birth? 240
 And now did all the tyrannous crew depart,
 Knowing there was a storme in Heros hart,
 Greater then they could make, & skornd their smart.
 She bowd her selfe so low out of her Towre,
 That wonder twas she fell not ere her howre, 245
 With searching the lamenting waues for him;
 Like a poore Snayle, her gentle supple lim
 Hung on her Turrets top so most downe right,
 As she would diue beneath the darknes quite,
 To finde her Iewell; Iewell, her Leander, 250
 A name of all earths Iewels pleaste not her,
 Like his deare name: Leander, still my choice,
 Come nought but my Leander; O my voice
 Turne to Leander: hence-forth be all sounds,
 Accents, and phrases that shew all griefes wounds, 255
 Analisde in Leander. O black change!
 Trumpets doe you with thunder of your clange,

Drive out this changes horror, my voyce faints :
 Where all ioy was, now shrieke out all complaints.
 Thus cryed she, for her mixed soule could tell 260
 Her loue was dead : And when the morning fell
 Prostrate vpon the weeping earth for woe,
 Blushes that bled out of her cheekes did show
Leander brought by Neptune, brusde and torne
 With Citties ruines he to Rocks had worne, 265
 To filthie vsuring Rocks that would haue blood,
 Though they could get of him no other good.
 She saw him, and the sight was much much more,
 Then might haue seru'd to kill her ; should her store
 Of giant sorrowes speake ? Burst, dye, bleede, 270
 And leaue poore plaints to vs that shall succede.
 She fell on her loues bosome, hugg'd it fast,
 And with Leanders name she breath'd her last.
Neptune for pittie in his armes did take them,
 Flung them into the ayre, and did awake them. 275
 Like two sweet birds surnam'd th' Acanthides,
 Which we call Thistle-warps, that neere no Seas
 Dare euer come, but still in couples flie,
 And feede on Thistle tops, to testifie
 The hardnes of their first life in their last : 280
 The first in thornes of loue, and sorrowes past,
 And so most beautifull their colours show,
 As none (so little) like them : her sad brow
 A sable veluet feather couers quite,
 Euen like the forehead cloths that in the night, 285
 Or when they sorrow, Ladies vse to weare :
 Their wings blew, red and yellow mixt appeare,
 Colours, that as we construe colours paint
 Their states to life ; the yellow shewes their saint,
 The deuill Venus, left them ; blew their truth, 290
 The red and black, ensignes of death and ruth.
 And this true honor from their loue-deaths sprung,
 They were the first that euer Poet sung.

LYRIC POEMS

APART from the translation of Ovid's Elegies, the only lyric poems which can reasonably be attributed to Marlowe are the two here printed. It is not unlikely that others may have perished or may still exist in some of the anonymous miscellanies of the Elizabethan age.

The famous song of 'The passionate Shepherd to his love' has come down to us in four different versions, none of which seems to be entirely accurate. I follow that given in the popular anthology, England's Helicon (1600),¹ but print, of course, all the variant readings in the notes. The text of the recently discovered Thornborough Common-place Book (MS.) is very interesting and probably corrects the printed versions in one or two particulars, though it was almost certainly written down from memory. There is no evidence for the date of this poem, except that it would seem to be older than the parody of it in The Jew of Malta.²

The fragment printed on page 552 occurs on p. 480 f. of England's Parnassus. Nothing further is known of it. Mr. Charles Crawford³ has evolved the theory that Marlowe wrote a long poem in imitation of 'Come live with me', of which this fragment is the only extant portion, and that the poem so written was later drawn upon for descriptive material in Dido and other plays. The fragment begins one of the divisions in which the editor of England's Parnassus (1600) groups his selections, and the heading 'Description of Seas, Waters, Rivers, &c.' refers naturally to the entire group and not to the individual poem.

The passionate Sheepheard to his loue.

Come liue with mee, and be my loue,
And we will all the pleasures proue,
That Vallies, groues, hills and fieldes,
Woods, or steepie mountaine yeeldes.

And wee will sit vpon the Rocks,
Seeing the Sheepheards feede theyr flocks
By shallow Riuers, to whose falls
Melodious byrds sings Madrigalls.

And I will make thee beds of Roses,
And a thousand fragrant poesies,
A cap of flowers, and a kirtle,
Imbroydred all with leaues of Mirtle.

A gowne made of the finest wooll,
Which from our pretty Lambes we pull,
Fayre lined slippers for the cold,
With buckles of the purest gold.

A belt of straw and Iuie buds,
With Corall clasps and Amber studs,
And if these pleasures may thee moue,
Come liue with mee, and be my loue.

The Sheepheards Swaines shall daunce & sing
For thy delight each May-morning.
If these delights thy minde may moue,
Then liue with mee, and be my loue.

OVID'S ELEGIES

Early editions. Marlowe's translation of the Elegies of Ovid survives in at least six early editions. All are undated and all claim—with probable untruth—to have been printed at Middleburgh in Holland. There is no mention of the work in the Stationers' Register, and, indeed, none could be expected, for everything indicates that it was published surreptitiously and with the express disapprobation of the authorities. Copies of one edition were publicly burned at Stationers' Hall on June 4, 1599, by order of the Archbishop of Canterbury and the Bishop of London.¹

In the absence of all the usual criteria for date and provenance, it is a matter of some difficulty to distinguish the various editions from one another and to decide the question of their sequence. The six which I have been able to identify fall into three groups. Two (Ish. and Bind.) are incomplete; they represent a mere selection from the elegies. Two others (Mal. 368 and Mal. 133) are shown by their typography, in such matters, for example, as the use of 'u' and 'v', to be half a century later than Marlowe's time; these editions, which can hardly have been printed earlier than 1640, are practically of no value whatever. Two other versions (Mas. and Douce) give a complete text and appear to date from the close of the sixteenth century.

It has generally been assumed that the abridged editions (Ish., Bind.), containing only ten of the most licentious elegies, are more ancient than the others, but we have no proof of this. As far as the evidence at hand goes, they may equally well be cheap pirated reprints of such portions of the work as would find readiest acceptance among the vulgar. All the texts are marred by the numerous blunders which one would expect to find in hasty and surreptitious productions. None can be received as the editio princeps, but that on which I have in general based my text (Mas.) appears to be certainly the best and not improbably the oldest.

Date of composition and general character. Whatever may be the date of the extant editions, there would seem to be little doubt as to the period of composition of the poems. No difference in style or method is observable between the elegies included in the abridged editions and the rest. All are characterized alike by boyish stiffness of expression, by metrical inexperience, and defective scholarship. The one example of mature versification to be found in the collection is the second rendering of Elegy I. 15 on pp. 581, 582, where Ben Jonson seems to have filed and polished Marlowe's crude version (pp. 579, 580) before inserting it as his own into the Poetaster.¹ The translation of the elegies is almost certainly the work of Marlowe's Cambridge period, and is very probably the earliest of his extant writings. Laughable mistranslations of the original, which a mature poet, however bad a Latinist, could never have admitted into his verse, are here quite common. Two famous ones have been noted by nearly all the editors: the rendering of 'Carmine dissiliunt, abruptis faucibus, angues' by 'Snakes leape by verse from caues of broken mountaines' (II. 1, 25), and the translation of 'cānēbat frugibus' as 'did sing with corne' (III. 9, 39). Very often also the young poet, though understanding the sense of the original, is unable to find an idiomatic equivalent, and in excess of piety produces an English paraphrase which until compared with the Latin is wholly unintelligible. A third fault of the work cannot be justly charged to the account of the translator. It is evident that Marlowe's text of Ovid was in many points inferior to that of modern editions, and its bad readings have naturally found their way into the translation. A single line will illustrate at once all three of the defects just referred to. In I. 7, ll. 39, 40 (p. 568), we read :

Let the sad captiue formost with lockes spred
On her white necke but for hurt cheekes be led.

Here the second line, which in itself is utterly meaningless, receives no elucidation from the Latin of modern texts of ¹ There is no apparent ground for the assumption of Gifford, Dyce, and others, that both versions are by Jonson.

Ovid, 'Si sinerent laesae, candida tota, genae,' but the occurrence of the nonsense is at least rendered explicable when we find that a 1568 edition of the Amores substitutes colla for tota.

Judged by absolute standards, Marlowe's Elegies must be agreed to be a failure both as poetry and as a rendering of the Latin. When considered, however, as a very early metrical exercise, the translation shows decided promise. The most striking merit is probably the enthusiasm with which the dull work is performed; though many lines are flat and pointless to the reader, there is none which seems to have been tame in the writing. Through all his rather disastrous struggles with an unmastered art and a very imperfectly mastered language, the translator has manifestly been supported by a real poetic fervour. Occasionally the lines have a very melodious cadence, and there is prevaillingly a richness of vocabulary and epithet which promise much. Finally, these poems display a facility in riming which in a young poet is extraordinary, and which more perhaps than anything else in the work presages the incomparable melody of the first and second books of Hero and Leander.

The text of Sir John Davies's Epigrams is affixed to that of the Elegies in all known editions, and is here reprinted from Mas. In accordance with my rule for the treatment of 'Spuria', variant readings are recorded only where the text of Mas. appears to be corrupt. The twenty-ninth epigram is twice referred to by Th. Bastard in his Chrestoleiros, 1598.¹ Malone regards this as establishing a posterior limit for the publication of the Elegies and Epigrams, but the evidence is of little value, since Bastard may well have known the epigram in question before it appeared in a printed book.

¹ Bk. II, Epigram 15; Bk. III, Epigram 3. Bastard's work has been reprinted, Publications Spenser Society, 47, 1888.

Great are thy kingdomes, ouer strong and large,
Ambitious impe, why seekst thou further charge ?
Are all things thine ? the Muses Tempe thine ?
Then scarce can Phæbus say, this Harpe is mine. 20
When in this workes first verse I trode aloft,
Loue slackt my Muse, and made my numbers soft.

Being fittest matter for a wanton wit.

What makes my bed seeme hard seeing it is soft ?
 Or why slips downe the couerlet so oft ?
 Although the nights be long, I sleepe not tho,
 My sides are sore with tumbling too and fro.
 Were loue the cause, it's like I should descry him, 5
 Or lyes he close, and shootes where none can spie him ?
 'Twas so, hee strooke mee with a slender dart,

esse, sicuti nec militem.*

All Louers warre, and Cupid hath his tent,
Atticke, all louers are to warre farre sent.
What age sits Mars, with Venus doth agree,
Tis shame for eld in warre or loue to be.
What yeares in souldiours Captaines do require 5
Those in their louers, pretty maydes desire.
Both of them watch: each on the hard earth sleepes:
His Mistris does this; that his Captaines keepes.
Souldiers must trauaile farre: the wench forth send,
Her valliant lover followes without end. 10
Mounts, and raine-doubled fouds he passeth ouer,
And treads the deserts snowy heapes do couer.
Going to sea, East windes he doth not chide
Nor to hoist saile attends fit time and tyde.
Who but a souldiour or a lover is bould 15
To suffer storme mixt snowes with nights sharpe cold?
One as a spy doth to his enemies goe,
The other eyes his rivall as his foe.
He Citties greate, this thresholds lies before:
This breakes Towne gates, but he his Mistris dore. 20
Oft to invade the sleeping foe tis good
And arm'd to shed vnarmed peoples bloud.
So the fierce troupes of Thracian Rhesus fell
And Captiue horses bad their Lord fare-well.
Sooth Louers watch till sleepe the hus-band charmes, 25
Who slumbring, they rise vp in swelling armes.
The keepers hands and corps-dugard to passe
The souldiours, and poore louers worke ere was.
Doubtfull is warre and loue, the vanquisht rise
And who thou neuer think'st should fall downe lies. 30
Therefore who ere loue sloathfulnesse doth call,
Let him surcease: loue tries wit best of all.

Such as the cause was of two husbands warre,
 Whom Troiane ships fecht from Europa farre;
 Such as was Leda, whom the God deluded
 In snowe-white plumes of a false swanne included;
 Such as Amimone through the drie fields strayed 5

 Such wert thou, and I fear'd the Bull and Eagle
 And what ere loue made Ioue should thee inuegle.
 Now all feare with my mindes hot loue abates,
 No more this beauty mine eyes captiuates. 10

Aye me an Eunuch keepes my mistrisse chaste,
 That cannot Venus mutuall pleasure taste.
 Who first depriu'd yong boyes of their best part,
 With selfe same woundes he gaue, he ought to smart.
 To kinde requests thou wouldst more gentle proue, 5
 If euer wench had made luke-warme thy loue :
 Thou wert not borne to ride, or armes to beare,
 Thy hands agree not with the warlike speare.
 Men handle those, all manly hopes resignes,
 Thy mistrisse enseignes must be likewise thine. 10
 Please her, her hate makes others thee abhorre,
 If she discards thee, what vse seruest thou for ?
 Good forme there is, yeares apt to play together,
 Vnmeete is beauty without vse to wither.
 Shee may deceiue thee, though thou her protect, 15
 What two determine neuer wants effect.
 Our prayers moue thee to assist our drift,
 While thou hast time yet to bestowe that gift.

 Yet would I lie with her if that I might.

 Shee would be nimbler, lying with a man.
 And when one sweetely sings, then straight I long 25

 O would my proofes as vaine might be withstood,
 Aye me poore soule, why is my cause so good?
 He's happy, that his loue dares boldly credit,
 To whom his wench can say, I neuer did it. 10
 He's cruell, and too much his griefe doth fauour

 Now many guests were gone, the feast being done,
 The youthfull sort to diuers pastimes runne.

 Nor being arm'd fierce troupes to follow farre,
 If without battell selfe-wrought wounds annoy them,
 And their owne priuie weapon'd hands destroy them?
 Who vnborne infants first to slay inuented 5
 Deseru'd thereby with death to be tormented.
 Because thy belly should rough wrinkles lacke,
 Wilt thou thy wombe-inclosed off-spring wracke?

 All humane kinde by their default had perisht, 10

ELEGIA. I.

Deliberatio poetæ, utrum elegos pergit scribere an potius tragedias.

An old wood, stands vncut of long yeares space,
Tis credible some godhead haunts the place.
In midst thereof a stone-pau'd sacred spring,
Where round about small birdes most sweetely sing.
Heere while I walke hid close in shadie groue, 5
To finde what worke my muse might moue I stroue.
Elegia came with haire perfum'd sweete,
And one, I thinke, was longer of her feete.
A decent forme, thinn robe, a louers looke,
By her footes blemish greater grace she tooke. 10
Then with huge steps came violent Tragedie,
Sterne was her front, her cloake on ground did lie.
Her left hand held abroad a regal scepter,
The Lydian buskin (in) fit paces kept her.
And first she sayd: when will thy loue be spent? 15
O Poet carelesse of thy argument.
Wine-bibbing banquets tell thy naughtinesse,
Each crosse waies corner doth as much expresse.
Oft some points at the prophet passing by,
And this is he whom fierce loue burnes, they cry. 20
A laughing stocke thou art to all the city,
While without shame thou singst thy lewdnesse ditty.
Tis time to moue graue things in lofty stile,
Long hast thou loyterd, greater workes compile.
The subiect hides thy wit, mens acts resound, 25
This thou wilt say to be a worthy ground.
Thy muse hath played what may milde girles content,
And by those numbers is thy first youth spent.
Now giue the Roman Tragedie a name,
To fill my lawes thy wanton spirit frame. 30

This saied, she mou'd her buskins gaily varnisht,
 And seauen times shooke her head with thicke locks garnisht.
 The other smilde, (I wot) with wanton eyes,
 Erre I? or mirtle in her right hand lies.
 With lofty wordes stout Tragedie (she sayd) 35
 Why treadst me downe? art thou aye grauely plaied?
 Thou deignst vnequall lines should thee rehearse,
 Thou fightst against me vsing mine owne verse.
 Thy lofty stile with mine I not compare,
 Small doores vnfitting for large houses are. 40
 Light am I, and with me, my care, light loue,
 Not stronger am I then the thing I moue.
Venus without me should be rusticall,
 This goddess company doth to me befall.
 What gate thy stately words cannot vnlocke, 45
 My flatt'ring speeches soone wide open knocke.
 And I deserue more then thou canst in verity,
 By suffering much not borne by thy seuerity.
 By me Corinna learns, cousening her guard,
 To get the dore with little noise vnbar'd, 50
 And slipt from bed cloth'd in a loose night-gowne,
 To moue her feete vnheard in setting downe.
 Ah howe oft on hard doores hung I engrau'd,
 From no mans reading fearing to be sau'd.
 But till the keeper went forth, I forget not, 55
 The maide to hide me in her bosome let not.
 What gift with me was on her birth day sent,
 But cruelly by her was drown'd and rent.
 First of thy minde the happy seedes I knewe,
 Thou hast my gift, which she would from thee sue. 60
 She left; I say'd, you both I must beseech,
 To empty aire may go my fearefull speech.
 With scepters, & high buskins th'one would dresse me,
 So through the world shold bright renown expresse me.
 The other giues my loue a conquering name, 65
 Come therefore, and to long verse shorter frame.
 Graunt Tragedie thy Poet times least tittle,
 Thy labour euer lasts, she askes but little.
 She gaue me leaue, soft loues in time make hast,

Ad amicam cursum equorum spectantem.

I sit not here the noble horse to see,
 Yet whom thou fauourst, pray may conquerour be.
 To sit, and talke with thee I hether came,
 That thou maiest know with loue thou mak'st me flame.
 Thou viewst the course, I thee: let either heed 5
 What please them, and their eyes let either feede.
 What horse-driuer thou fauourst most is best,
 Because on him thy care doth hap to rest.
 Such chaunce let me haue: I would brauely runne,
 On swift steedes mounted till the race were done. 10
 Now would I slacke the reines, now lash their hide,
 With wheelles bent inward now the ring-turne ride.
 In running if I see thee, I shall stay,
 And from my hands the reines will slip away.
 Ah Pelops from his coach was almost feld, 15
Hippodameias lookes while he beheld.
 Yet he attain'd by her support to haue her,
 Let vs all conquer by our mistris fauour.
 In vaine why flyest backe? force conioynes vs now:
 The places lawes this benefit allowe. 20
 But spare my wench thou at her right hand seated,
 By thy sides touching ill she is entreated.
 And sit thou rounder, that behind vs see,
 For shame presse not her backe with thy hard knee.
 But on the ground thy cloathes too loosely lie, 25
 Gather them vp, or lift them loe will I.
 Enuious garments so good legges to hide,
 The more thou look'st, the more the gowne enuide.
 Swift Atalantas flying legges like these,
 Wish in his hands graspt did Hippomenes. 30
 Coate-tuckt Dianas legges are painted like them,
 When strong wilde beasts she stronger hunts to strike them.
 Ere these were seene, I burnt: what will these do?
 Flames into flame, flouds thou powrest seas into.
 By these I iudge, delight me may the rest, 35
 Which lie hid vnder her thinnne veile suppress.
 Yet in the meane time wilt small windes bestowe,
 That from thy fanne, mou'd by my hand may blow?

Or is my heate of minde, not of the skie ?
 Ist womens loue my captiue brest doth frie ? 40
 While thus I speake, blacke dust her white robes ray :
 Foule dust, from her faire body go away.
 Now comes the pompe ; themselues let all men cheere :
 The shout is nigh ; the golden pompe comes heere.
 First victory is brought with large spread wing, 45
 Goddesses come here, make my loue conquering.
 Applaud you Neptune, that dare trust his waue,
 The sea I vse not : me my earth must haue.
 Souldiour applaud thy Mars : no warres we moue,
 Peace pleaseth me, and in mid peace is loue. 50
 With Augures Phœbus, Phœbe with hunters standes,
 To thee Minerua turne the craftes-mens hands.
Ceres and Bacchus Country-men adore,
 Champions please Pollux, Castor loues horsemen more.
 Thee gentle Venus, and the boy that flies, 55
 We praise : great goddesses ayde my enterprize,
 Let my new mistris graunt to be beloued.
 She beckt, and prosperous signes gaue as she moued.
 What Venus promised, promise thou we pray,
 Greater then her, by her leaue th'art, Ile say. 60
 The Gods, and their rich pompe witness with me,
 For euermore thou shalt my mistris be.
 Thy legges hang downe, thou maiest, if that be best,
 A while thy tiptoes on the foote-stoole rest.
 Now greatest spectacles the Prætor sends, 65
 Power-chariot horses from the lists euen ends.
 I see whom thou affectest : he shall subdue,
 The horses seeme, as thy desire they knewe.
 Alas he runnes too farre about the ring,
 What doest ? thy wagon in lesse compasse bring. 70
 What doest vnhappy ? her good wishes fade,
 Let with strong hand the reine to bend be made.
 One slowe we fauour, Romans him reuoke :
 And each giue signes by casting vp his cloake.
 They call him backe, least their gownes tosse thy haire, 75
 To hide thee in my bosome straight repaire.
 But now againe the barriers open lye ;
 And forth the gay troupes on swift horses flie.

 Faire white with rose red was before commixt : 5
 Now shine her lookes pure white and red betwixt.
 Her foote was small : her footes forme is most fit :
 Comely tall was she, comely tall shee's yet.
 Sharpe eyes she had : radiant like starres they be,
 By which she periurd oft hath lyed by me. 10
 Insooth th'eternall powers graunt maides society
 Falsely to sweare, their beauty hath some deity.
 By her eyes I remember late she swore,
 And by mine eyes, and mine were pained sore.
 Say gods : if she vnpunisht you deceiue, 15
 For others faults why do I losse receiue ?
 But did you not so enuy Cepheus Daughter,
 For her ill-beautious Mother iudgd to slaughter.
 Tis not enough, she shakes your record off,
 And vnreungd mockt Gods with me doth scoffe. 20
 But by my paine to purge her periuries,
 Couzend, I am the couzeners sacrifice.
 God is a name, no substance, feard in vaine,
 And doth the world in fond believe deteine.
 Or if there be a God, he loues fine wenches, 25
 And all things too much in their sole power drenches.
Mars girts his deadly sword on for my harme :

 Though thou her body guard, her minde is staind : 5

Argus had either way an hundred eyes,
 Yet by deceit loue did them all surprize. 20
 In stone, and Yron walles Danae shut,
 Came forth a mother, though a maide there put.
Penelope, though no watch look'd vnto her,
 Was not defilde by any gallant wooer.
 What's kept, we couet more: the care makes theft: 25
 Few loue what others haue vnguarded left.
 Nor doth her face please, but her husbands loue;
 I know not what men thinke should thee so moue.
 She is not chaste, that's kept, but a deare whore:
 Thy feare is then her body valued more. 30
 Although thou chafe, stolne pleasure is sweet play,
 She pleaseth best, I feare, if any say.
 A free-borne wench no right 'tis vp to locke:
 So vse we women of strange nations stocke.
 Because the keeper may come say, I did it, 35
 She must be honest to thy seruants credit.
 He is too clownish, whom a lewd wife grieues,
 And this townes well knowne customes not beleuees,
 Where Mars his sonnes not without fault did breed,
Remus and Romulus, Ilias twinne-borne seed. 40
 Cannot a faire one, if not chast, please thee?
 Neuer can these by any meanes agree.
 Kindly thy mistris vse, if thou be wise.
 Looke gently, and rough husbands lawes despise.
 Honour what friends thy wife giues, sheele giue many: 45
 Least labour so shall winne great grace of any,
 So shalt thou go with youths to feasts together:
 And see at home much that thou nere broughtst thether

Thou hast no bridge, nor boate with ropes to throw,
 That may transport me without oares to rowe.
 Thee I haue pass'd, and knew thy streame none such, 5
 When thy waues brim did scarce my anckles touch.
 With snow thaw'd from the next hill now thou rushest,
 And in thy foule deepe waters thicke thou gushest.
 What helps my hast : what to haue tane small rest ?
 What day and night to trauaile in her quest ? 10
 If standing here I can by no meanes get,
 My foote vpon the further banke to set.
 Now wish I those wings noble Perseus had,
 Bearing the head with dreadfull Adders clad,
 Now wish the chariot, whence corne seeds were found, 15
 I first to be throwne vpon the vntill'd ground.
 I speake old Poets wonderfull inuentions,
 Nere was, nor shall be, what my verse mentions.
 Rather thou large banke ouer-flowing riuer,
 Slide in thy bounds, so shalt thou runne for euer. 20

 Yet boorded I the golden Chie twice,

Corinna crau'd it in a summers night, 25
 And nine sweete bowts we had before day-light.
 What, wast my limbs through some Thessalian charmes ?
 May spells, and drugges do silly soules such harmes ?
 With virgin waxe hath some imbast my ioynts ?
 And pierc'd my liuer with sharpe needles points ? 30
 Charmes change corne to grasse and make it die.
 By charmes are running springs and fountaines dry.
 By charmes mast drops from oakes, from vines grapes fal,
 And fruite from trees when ther's no winde at all.
 Why might not then my sinewes be inchaunted, 35

 Bulles hate the yoake, yet what they hate haue still.
 I flie her lust, but follow beauties creature ;
 I loath her manners, loue her bodies feature.
 Nor with thee, nor without thee can I liue,
 And doubt to which desire the palme to giue. 40
 Or lesse faire, or lesse lewd mightst thou bee,
 Beauty with lewdnesse doth right ill agree.
 Her deeds gaine hate, her face entreateth loue :
 Ah, she doth more worth then her vices proue.

Spare me, O by our fellow bed, by all
 The Gods who by thee to be periurde fall, 45
 And by thy face to me a powre diuine,
 And by thine eyes whose radiance burnes out mine.
 What ere thou art mine art thou : choose this course,
 Wilt haue me willing, or to loue by force ? 50
 Rather Ile hoist vp saile, and vse the winde,
 That I may loue yet, though against my minde.

ELEGIA. II.

Dolet amicam suam ita suis carminibus innotuisse ut riuales multos sibi pararit.

What day was that, which all sad haps to bring,
 White birdes to louers did not alwayes sing.
 Or is I thinke my wish against the starres ?
 Or shall I plaine some God against me warres ?
 Who mine was cald, whom I lou'd more then any, 5
 I feare with me is common now to many.
 Erre I ? or by my bookes is she so knowne ?
 'Tis so : by my witte her abuse is growne.
 And iustly : for her praise why did I tell ?
 The wench by my fault is set forth to sell, 10
 The bawde I play, louers to her I guide :
 Her gate by my hands is set open wide.
 'Tis doubtfull whether verse auaille, or harme,
 Against my good they were an enuious charme.
 When Thebes, when Troy, when Cæsar should be writ, 15
 Alone Corinna moues my wanton wit.
 With Muse oppos'd would I my lines had done,
 And Phæbus had forsooke my worke begun.
 Nor, as vse will not Poets record heare,
 Would I my words would any credit beare. 20
Scylla by vs her fathers rich haire steales,
 And Scyllaës wombe mad raging dogs concales.
 Wee cause feete flie, wee mingle haire with snakes,

 With famous pageants, and their home-bred beasts. 5
 To know their rites, well recompenc'd my stay,
 Though thether leades a rough steepe hilly way.
 There stâds an old wood with thick trees darke clouded.
 Who sees it, graunts some deity there is shrowded.
 An Altar takes mens incense, and oblation,
 An Altar made after the ancient fashion. 10
 Here when the Pipe with solemne tunes doth sound,
 The annuall pompe goes on the couered ground.
 White Heifers by glad people forth are led,
 Which with the grasse of Tuscane fields are fed.

Epigrammes

By I. D.

Ad Musam. (1.)

Flie merry Muse vnto that merry towne,
 Where thou maist playes, reuels, and triumphes see,
 The house of Fame, and Theatre of renowne,
 Where all good wittes and spirits loue to be.
 Fall in betweene their hands, that praise and loue thee, 5
 And be to them a laughter and a iest:
 But as for them which scorning shall reprocue thee,
 Disdaine their wits, and thinke thine owne the best.
 But if thou finde any so grose and dull,
 That thinke I doe to priuate Taxing leane: 10
 Bid him go hang, for he is but a gull,
 And knowes not what an Epigramme does meane,
 Which taxeth vnder a particular name
 A generall vice which merits publique blame.

Of a Gull. (2.)

Oft in my laughing rimes, I name a gull,
 But this new terme will many questions breede,
 Therefore at first I will expresse at full,
 Who is a true and perfect Gull indeed.
 A Gull is he, who feares a Veluet gowne, 5
 And when a wench is braue, dares not speake to her:
 A Gull is he which trauerseth the towne,
 And is for marriage knowne a common woer.
 A Gull is he, which while he proudly weares
 A siluer hilted Rapier by his side: 10
 Indures the lyes, and knockes about the eares,
 Whilst in his sheath his sleeping sword doth bide.
 A Gull is he which weares good handsome cloathes:
 And stands in presence stroaking vp his hayre,
 And filles vp his vnperfect speech with othes, 15
 But speaks not one wise word throughout the yeare.
 But to define a gull in termes precise,
 A gull is he which seemes, and is not wise.

In Rufum. 3.

Rufus the Courtier, at the Theater,
 Leaving the best and most conspicuous place,
 Doth either to the stage himselfe transferre,
 Or through a grate, doth shew his double face,

(1.) 5 praise and love Dyce: loue and praise old edd.

For that the clamorous fry of Innes of court
 Fills vp the priuate roomes of greater price :
 And such a place where all may haue resort,
 He in his singularity doth despise.
 Yet doth not his particuler humour shun,
 The common stewes and brothells of the towne,
 Though all the world in troopes do thither run,
 Cleane and vncleane, the gentle and the clowne.
 Then why should Rufus in his pride abhorre
 A common seate that loues a common whore.

In Quintum. 4.

Quintus the dauncer vseth euermore,
 His feete in measure and in rule to moue.
 Yet on a time he cald his mistresse whore,
 And thought with that sweete word to win her loue.
 Oh had his tongue like to his feete bin taught,
 It neuer would haue vttered such a thought.

In Plurimos. 5.

Faustinus, Sextus, Cinna, Ponticus,
 With Gella, Lesbia, Thais, Rodope :
 Rode all to Stanes for no cause serious,
 But for their mirth, and for their lechery.
 Scarse were they fetled in their lodging, when
 Wenches, with wenches : men with men fell out.
 Men with their wenches, wenches with their men,
 Which strait dissolues this ill assembled rout.
 But since the diuell brought them thus together,
 To my discoursing thoughts it is a wonder,
 Why presently as soone as they came thither,
 The selfe same diuell did them part asunder.
 Doubtlesse it seemes it was a foolish diuell,
 That thus did part them, ere they did some euill.

In Titum. 6.

Titus the braue and valorous yong gallant,
 Three years together in this towne hath beene,
 Yet my Lord Chauncellors tombe he hath not seene
 Nor the New water worke, nor the Elephant.
 I cannot tell the cause without a smile,
 He hath beene in the Counter all this while.

In Faustum. 7.

Faustus not Lord nor knight, nor wise nor olde,
 To euery place about the towne doth ride,
 He rides into the fieldes, Playes to behold,
 He rides to take boate at the water side.

He rides to Powles, he rides to th' ordinary, 5
 He rides vnto the house of bawdery too.
 Thither his horse doth him so often carry,
 That shortly he will quite forget to go.

In Katam. 8.

Kate being pleas'd, wisht that her pleasure could Indure as long as a buffe ierkin would.
 Content thee Kate, although thy pleasure wasteth
 Thy pleasures place like a buffe ierkin lasteth.
 For no buffe ierkin hath bin oftner worne 5
 Nor hath more scrapings, or more dressings borne.

In Librum. 9

Liber doth vaunt how chastly he hath liu'd,
 Since he hath bin seauen years in towne and more,
 For that he sweares he hath foure only swiude,
 A maide, a wife, a widdow and a whore.
 Then Liber thou hast swiude all women kinde, 5
 For a fift sort I know thou canst not finde.

In Medonem. 10.

Great Captaine Mædon weares a chaine of gold,
 Which at fve hundred crownes is vallued,
 For that it was his graund-sires chaine of olde
 When great King Henry Bulloigne conquered.
 And weare it Mædon for it may insue 5
 That thou by vertue of this Massie chaine
 A stronger towne then Bulloigne maist subdue
 If wise mens sawes be not reputed vaine.
 For what said Philip King of Macedon?
 There is no Castel so well fortified, 10
 But if an Asse laden with gold comes on,
 The guard will stoope, and gates fly open wide.

In Gellam. 11.

Gella if thou dost loue thy selfe take heede,
 Lest thou my rimes vnto thy louer reade.
 For straight thou grinst, and then thy louer seeth
 Thy canker-eaten gums and rotten teeth.

In Quintum. 12.

Quintus his wit infused into his braine,
 Mislikes the place, and fled into his feete,
 And there it wanders vp and downe the streetes,
 Dabled in the dyrt, and soaked in the raine.
 Doubtlesse his wit intendes not to aspire, 5
 Which leaues his head to trauell in the mire.

In Seuerum. 13.

The puritan Seuerus oft doth reade
 This text, that doth pronounce vaine speech a sinne
 That thing defiles a man that doth procede
 From out the mouth, not that which enters in
 Hence is it, that we seldome heare him sweare, 5
 And thereof as a Pharasie he vaunts.
 But he deuours more Capons in one yeare,
 Then would suffice an hundred protestants.
 And sooth those sectaries are gluttons all,
 As wel the threed-bare Cobler as the knight. 10
 For those poore slaues which haue not wherewithall
 Feed on the rich, till they deuour them quite,
 And so as Pharoes kine, they eate vp cleane
 Those that be fat, yet still themselues be leane.

In Leucam. 14.

Leuca in presence once a fart did let,
 Some laught a little, she refus'd the place,
 And mad with shame, did then her gloue forget,
 Which she return'd to fetch with bashfull grace :
 And when she would haue said (I want) my gloue, 5
 My fart (qd. she) which did more laughter moue.

In Macrum. 15.

Thou canst not speake yet Macer, for to speake,
 Is to distinguish sounds significant.
 Thou with harsh noyse the aire dost rudely breake
 But what thou vtterest common sence doth want,
 Halfe English words, with fustian tearmes among, 5
 Much like the burden of a Northerne song.

In Faustum. 16.

That youth, saith Faustus, hath a Lyon seene,
 Who from a dycing-house comes mony-lesse.
 But when he lost his haire, where had he beene ?
 I doubt me he had seene a Lyonesse.

In Cosmum. 17.

Cosmus hath more discoursing in his head,
 Then Ioue, when Pallas issued from his braine,
 And still he strives to be deliuered
 Of all his thoughts at once, but all in vaine. 5
 For as we see at all the play-house dores,
 When ended is the play, the daunce and song :
 A thousand townse-men, gentlemen and whores,

(13). 4 the] that Mas.
 (17). 2 Ioue] Ioue Mas.

Porters and seruing-men together throng,
 So thoughts of drinking, thriuing, wenching, warre,
 And borrowing money, raging in his minde, 10
 To issue all at once so forward are
 As none at all can perfect passage finde.

In Flaccum. 18.

The false knaue Flaccus once a bribe I gauc,
 The more foole I to bribe so false a knaue.
 But he gaue back my bribe: the more foole he,
 That for my folly did not couden me.

In Cineam. 19.

Thou dogged Cineas hated like a dogge,
 For still thou grumblest like a masty dogge,
 Comparst thy selfe to nothing but a dogge.
 Thou saist thou art as weary as a dogge,
 As angry, sicke, and hungry as a dogge, 5
 As dul and melancholy as a dogge,
 As lazy, sleepy, and as idle as a dogge.
 But why dost thou compare thee to a dogge
 In that, for which all men despise a dogge?
 I will compare thee better to a dogge, 10
 Thou art as faire and comely as a dogge,
 Thou art as true & honest as a dogge.
 Thou art as kinde and liberall as a dogge,
 Thou art as wise and valiant as a dogge.
 But Cineas, I haue oft heard thee tell, 15
 Thou art as like thy father as may be.
 Tis like inough, and faith I like it well,
 But I am glad thou art not like to me.

In Geroniem. 20.

Gerons mouldie memory corrects
 Old Holinshead our famous Chronicler
 With morall rules, and pollicy collects
 Out of all actions done these fourscore yeares.
 Accounts the time of euery old euent, 5
 Not from Christs birth, nor from the Princes raigne,
 But from some other famous accident,
 Which in mens generall notice doth remaine.
 The sige of Bulloigne, and the plaguy sweat,
 The going to Saint Quintines and New-hauen, 10
 The rising in the North, the frost so great
 That cart wheele printes on Thamis face were seene,
 The fall of money, and burning of Powles steeple,
 The blazing starre and Spaniards ouerthrow:
 By these euent, notorious to the people, 15
 He measures times, and things forepast doth shew.

But most of all, he chiefly reckons by
 A priuate chaunce, the death of his curst wие :
 This is to him the dearest memory
 And the happiest accident of all his life.

20

In Marcum. 21.

When Marcus comes from Minnes, hee still doth swear
 By come on seauen that al is lost & gone,
 But thats not true, for he hath lost his haire,
 Onely for that he came too much at one.

In Ciprium. 22.

The fine youth Ciprius is more tierse and neate
 Then the new garden of the old temple is,
 And still the newest fashion he doth get,
 And with the time doth chaunge from that to this.
 He weares a hat now of the flat crown-blocke,
 The treble ruffles, long cloake, and doublet French,
 He takes tobacco, and doth weare a locke,
 And wastes more time in dressing then a wench.
 Yet this new fangled youth, made for these times,
 Doth aboue all praise old George Gascoines rimes.

10

In Cineam. 23.

When Cineas comes amongst his friends in morning
 He slyly spies who first his cap doth moue,
 Him he sallutes, the rest so grimly scorning
 As if for euer they had lost his loue.
 I seeing how it doth the humour fit
 Of this fond gull to be saluted first
 Catch at my cap, but moue it not a whit
 Which to perceiuing he seemes for spite to burst,
 But Cineas, why expect you more of me,
 Then I of you ? I am as good a man,
 And better too by many a quallity,
 For vault, and daunce, and fence and rime I can.
 You keepe a whore at your owne charge men tell me.
 Indeed friend (Cineas) therein you excel me.

10

In Gallum. 24.

Gallus hath bin this Summer time in Friesland,
 And now return'd he speakes such warlike wordes
 As if I could their English vnderstand,
 I feare me they would cut my throat like swordes.
 He talkes of counterscarffes, and casomates,
 Of parapets, of curteynes and pallizadois,
 Of flankers, raelings, gabions he prates,

(24). 6 curteneys old. edd.

And of false braies, and sallies, and scaladoes.
 But to requite such gulling tearmes as these, 10
 With words of my profession I reply :
 I tell of fourching, vouchers, and counterpleas,
 Of withernams, essoynes and champarty.
 So neither of vs vnderstanding one an other,
 We part as wise, as when we came together.

In Decium. 25.

Audacious painters haue nine worthies made,
 But Poet Decius more audacious farre
 Making his mistris march with men of warre,
 With title of tenth worthy doth her lade.
 Me thinks that gull did vse his tearmes as fit 5
 Which tearm'd his loue a giant for her wit.

In Gellam. 26.

If Gellas beauty be examined
 She hath a dull dead eye, a saddle nose,
 An ill shapte face with morpew ouerspread,
 And rotten teeth which she in laughing shoves.
 Briefly she is the filthiest wench in towne, 5
 Of all that do the art of whoring vse :
 But when she hath put on her sattin-gown,
 Her cut lawne apron, and her veluet shooes,
 Her greene silk stockings, and her petticoat
 Of taffaty, with golden friendge a-round, 10
 And is withal perfum'd with ciuet hot,
 Which doth her valiant stinking breath confound :
 Yet she with these addicions is no more,
 Then a sweet, filthy, fine ill fauored whore.

In Sillam. 27.

Sylla is often challenged to the field,
 To answer as a Gentleman his foes ;
 But then he doth this only answer yeeld,
 That he hath liuings and faire lands to lose.
Silla, if none but beggars valiant were, 5
 The King of Spaine would put vs all in feare.

In Sillam. 28.

Who dares affirme that Silla dare not fight,
 When I dare sweare he dares aduenture more,
 Then the most braue and all-daring wight,
 That euer armes with resolution bore ?
 He that dares touch the most vnholosome whore, 5
 That euer was retirde into the Spittle,
 And dares court wenches standing at a dore,

(24). 8 braies] baits Mas. to Mal. (26). 8 cut MS., Dyce : out old. edd.

(The portion of his witte being passing little.)
 He that dares giue his dearest friends offences,
 Which other valiant fooles doe feare to do : 10
 And when a feauer doth confound his sences,
 Dare eate raw-beefe, and drinke strong wine thereto:
 He that dares take Tobacco on the stage,
 Dares man a whore at noone-day through the streete,
 Dares daunce in Pawles, and in this formall age, 15
 Dares say and do what euer is vnmeete,
 Whom feare of shame could neuer yet affright,
 Who dares affirme that Silla dares not fight?

In Haywodum. 29.

Haywood that did in Epigrams excell,
 Is now put downe since my light Muse arose :
 As Buckets are put downe into a Well,
 Or as a schoole boy putteth downe his hose.

In Dacum. 30.

Amongst the Poets Dacus numbred is,
 Yet could he neuer make an English rime,
 But some prose speeches I haue heard of his,
 Which haue bin spoken many an hundred time.
 The man that keepes the Eliphant hath one, 5
 Wherein he tels the wonders of the beast.
 Another Banhes pronounced long a-gon,
 When he his curtales qualities exprest :
 He first taught him that keepes the monuments
 At Westminster, his formall Tale to say. 10
 And also him which Puppets represents,
 And also him which with the Ape doth play :
 Though all his Poetrie be like to this,
 Amongst the Poets Dacus numbred is.

In Priscum. 31.

When Priscus raisde from low to high estate,
 Rod through the street in pompous iollitie,
Caius his poore familiar friend of late,
 Be-spake him thus : Sir now you know not me.
 'Tis likely friend (quoth Priscus) to be so : 5
 For at this time my selfe I do not know.

In Brunum. 32.

Brunus which deemes himselfe a faire sweet youth,
 Is thirtie nine yeeres of age at least :
 Yet was he neuer, to confesse the truth,
 But a drye starueling when he was at best.
 This gull was sick to shew his Night-cap fine,
 And his wrought Pillow ouer-spread with lawne,
 But hath bin well since his griefes cause hath linc
 At Trollups by Saint Clementis Church in pawne.

In Francum. 33.

When Francus comes to sollace with his whore,
 He sends for Rods & strips himselfe stark naked:
 For his lust sleepes, and will not rise before,
 By whipping of the wench it be awaked.
 I enuie him not, but wish I had the powre,
 To make my selfe his wench but one halfe houre.

In Castorem. 34.

Of speaking well why do we learne the skill?
 Hoping thereby honor and wealth to gaine,
 Sith rayling Castor doth by speaking ill
 Opinion of much wit and golde obtaine.

In Septimium. 35.

Septimius liues, and is like Garlicke seene,
 For though his head be white, his blade is greene:
 This olde mad Coult deserues a Martyres praise,
 For he was burned in Queene Maryes dayes.

Of Tobbacco. 36.

Homer of Moly, and Nepenthe sings,
Moly the Gods most soueraigne Hearbe diuine,
Nepenthe Heauens drinke most gladnesse brings,
 Hearts grieffe expels, and doth the wits refine:
 But this our age another world hath found,
 From whence an hearbe of Heauenly power is brought.
Moly is not so soueraigne for a wound,
 Nor hath Nepenthe so great wonders wrought.
 It is Tobacco, whose sweet substantiall fume
 The hellish torment of the teeth doth ease,
 By drawing downe, and drying vp the rewme,
 The Mother and the Nurse of each disease.
 It is Tobacco which doth colde expell,
 And cleares the obstructions of the Arteries,
 And surfets threatning Death digesteth well,
 Decocting all the stomackes crudities.
 It is Tobacco which hath power to clarifie
 The clowdie mists before dim eyes appearing,
 It is Tobacco which hath power to rarifie
 The thick grose humour which doth stop the hearing.
 The wasting Hectique, and the Quartain Feuer,
 Which doth of Phisique make a mockerie,
 The gowt it cures, and helps ill breaths for euer,
 Whether the cause in Teeth or stomacke be.
 And though ill breaths were by it but conuounded,
 Yet that Medicine it doth farre excell,
 Which by sir Thomas Moore hath bin propounded,

For this is thought a Gentleman-like smell.
 O that I were one of these mountie-bankes,
 Which praise their Oyles, and Powders which they sell, 30
 My customers would giue me coyne with thankes,
 I for this ware forsooth a Tale would tell.
 Yet would I vse none of these tearmes before,
 I would but say, that it the Pox will cure :
 This were inough, without discoursing more, 35
 All our braue gallants in the towne t'allure.

In Crassum. 37.

Crassus his lyes are not pernicious lyes,
 But pleasant fictions hurtfull vnto none
 But to himselfe, for no man counts him wise,
 To tell for truth that which for false is knowne.
 He sweares that Gaunt is three score miles about, 5
 And that the bridge at Paris on the Seyn,
 Is of such thicknesse, length and breadth throughout,
 That sixe score Arches can it scarce sustaine.
 He sweares he saw so great a dead mans scull,
 At Canterbury digde out of the ground, 10
 That would containe of wheat three bushels full,
 And that in Kent are twenty yeomen found,
 Of which the poorest every yeare dispendes
 Fiue thousand pound : these and fiue thousand mo
 So oft he hath recited to his friends, 15
 That now himselfe perswades himselfe 'tis so.
 But why doth Crassus tell his lyes so rife
 Of Bridges, Townes, and things that haue no life?
 He is a Lawyer, and doth well esple,
 That for such lyes an action will not lye. 20

In Philonem. 38.

Philo the Lawyer and the Fortune teller,
 The Schoole-maister, the Midwife and the Bawd :
 The coniuurer, the buyer, and the seller
 Of painting which with breathing will be thawd,
 Doth practise Phisicke, and his credit growes 5
 As doth the Ballad singers audiorie,
 Which hath at Temple barre his standing chose,
 And to the vulgar sings an Ale-house storie.
 First stands a Porter, then an Oyster wife
 Doth stint her cry, and stay her steps to heare him, 10
 Then comes a cut-purse ready with a knife,
 And then a countrey clyent passeth neere him.
 There stands the Constable, there stands the Whore,
 And listning to the song, heed not each other.

There by the Serieant stands the debtor,
 And doth no more mistrust him then his brother :
 Thus Orpheus to such hearers giueth Musique,
 And Philo to such patients giueth Phisicke. 15

In Fuscum. 39.

Fuscus is free, and hath the world at will,
 Yet in the course of life that he doth leade,
 He's like a horse which turning rounde a mill,
 Doth alwaies in the selfe samo circle treade :
 First he doth rise at 10. and at eleuen 5
 He goes to Gyls, where he doth eate till onc,
 Then sees a play til sixe, and sups at seauen,
 And after supper, straight to bed is gone,
 And there till tenne next day he doth remaine,
 And then he dines, then sees a commedy, 10
 And then he suppes, and goes to bed againe :
 Thus rounde he runs without variety :
 Saue that sometimes he comes not to the play
 But falls into a whore-house by the way.

In Afrum. 40.

The smell feast Afer, trauailes to the burse
 Twice euery day the newest newes to heare
 Which when he hath no money in his purse,
 To rich mens tables he doth often beare :
 He tells how Gronigen is taken in, 5
 By the braue conduct of illustrious Vere :
 And how the Spanish forces Brest would win,
 But that they do victorious Norris feare.
 No sooner is a ship at sea surpris'd,
 But straight he learns the newes & doth disclose it. 10
 Faire written in a scrowle he hath names
 Of all the widowes which the plague hath made,
 And persons, times and places still he frames
 To euery tale, the better to perswade :
 We call him Fame, for that the wide-mouth slaue 15
 Will eate as fast as he wil vtter lies,
 For Fame is said an hundreth mouthes to haue,
 And he eates more then would fine score suffice.

In Paulum. 41.

By lawfull mart, and by vnlawfull stealth,
Paulus in spite of enuy fortunate,
 Deriues out of the Ocean so much wealth,
 As he may well maintaine a Lords estate,
 But on the land a little gulf there is, 5
 Wherein he drowneth all the weaith of his.

In Publium. 43.

Publius student at the common law,
 Oft leaues his bookes, and for his recreation
 To Paris-garden doth himselfe withdrawe
 Where he is rauisht with such delectation
 As downe amongst the Beares and Dogges he goes, 5
 Where whilst he skiping cries to head, to head,
 His satten doublet and his veluet hose
 Are all with spittle from aboue be-spread,
 When he is like his fathers country hall,
 Stinking with dogges, and muted all with haukes. 10
 And rightly too on him this filth doth fall,
 Which for such filthy sports his bookes forsakes,
 Leauing old Ployden, Dier and Brooke alone,
 To see old Harry Hunkes and Sacarson.

In Sillam. 44.

When I this proposition had defended,
 A coward cannot be an honest man,
 Thou Silla seemest forth-with to be offended :
 And holds the contrary and swears he can.
 But when I tell thee that hee will forsake 5
 His dearest friend, in perill of his life,
 Thou then art chang'd and saist thou didst mistake,
 And so we end our argument and strife.
 Yet I thinke oft, and thinke I thinke aright,
 Thy argument argues thou wilt not fight. 10

In Dacum. 45.

Why dost thou Marcus in thy misery,
 Raile and blaspheme, and call the heau'ns vnkind ?
 The heauens do owe no kindenesse vnto thee,
 Thou hast the heauens so little in thy minde,
 For in thy life thou neuer vsest prayer, 5
 But at primero, to encounter faire.

Meditations of a Gull. 47.

See yonder melancholie gentleman,
 Which hoode-winked with his hat, alone doth sit,
 Thinke what he thinkes and tell me if you can,
 What great affaires troubles his little wit.
 He thinkes not of the war twixt France and Spaine 5
 Whether it be for Europes good or ill,
 Nor whether the Empire can it selfe maintaine
 Against the Turkish power encroching still.
 Nor what great towne in all the Netherlands
 The States determine to besiege this spring, 10
 Nor how the Scottish pollicy now standes,
 Nor what becomes of the Irish mutining.
 But he doth seriously bethinke him whether
 Of the guld people he be more esteem'd,
 For his long cloake, or his great black feather, 15
 By which each gull is now a gallant deem'd.
 Or of a Iourney he deliberates,
 To Paris-garden, cocke-pit or the play:
 Or how to steale a dogge he meditates,
 Or what he shall vnto his mistris say: 20
 Yet with these thoughts he thinks himselfe most fit
 To be of Counsell with a king for wit.

Ad Musam. 48.

Peace idle muse, haue done, for it is time
 Since lowsie Ponticus enuies my fame,
 And sweares the better sort are much to blame
 To make me so well knowne for my ill rime,
 Yet Bankes his horse is better knowne then he, 5
 So are the Cammels and the westerne Hog,
 And so is Lepidus his printed dogge:
 Why doth not Ponticus their fames enuie?
 Besides this muse of mine, and the blacke fether
 Grew both together fresh in estimation, 10
 And both growne stale, were cast away together:
 What fame is this that scarce lasts out a fashion?
 Onely this last in credit doth remaine,
 That from hence-forth, ech bastard cast forth rime
 Which doth but sauour of a libell vaine 15
 Shall call me father, and be thought my crime,
 So dull and with so little sence endu'd,
 Is my grose headed iudge the multitude.

LUCAN'S PHARSALIA

BOOK I

THE FIRST BOOK OF LUCAN

MARLOWE's translation of Book I of the Pharsalia is first mentioned in an entry in the Stationers' Register, dated September 28, 1593: 'John Wolf Entred for his Copey vnder th[e h]andes of Master MURGETROD and bothe the wardens a booke intituled LUCANS firste booke of the famous Civill warr betwixt POMPEY and CESAR Englished by CHRISTOPHER MARLOW.' The very next entry is that of 'a booke intituled HERO and LEANDER beinge an amorous poem devised by CHRISTOPHER MARLOW', likewise registered by John Wolf and on the same day.

There is a curious and unexplained connexion between these two poems in the circumstances of publication. The First Book of Lucan exists in a single old quarto issued in 1600 by Thomas Thorpe,¹ who in the Epistle Dedicatory to his fellow stationer, Edward Blount, alludes to the latter's 'old right' in the work. This Edward Blount himself published in 1598 the earliest extant edition of Marlowe's portion of Hero and Leander. In 1600 another edition² of the latter poem appeared with the puzzling title-page: 'Hero and Leander: Begunne by Christopher Marloe: Whereunto is added the first booke of Lucan translated line for line by the same Author: Printed for John Flasket.' In spite of this plain statement there is no trace that the Lucan ever formed a part of the book in question or was printed during the Elizabethan age in any other edition than that of Thorpe.

The most likely conjecture would seem to be that John Wolf, who registered Lucan and Hero and Leander on the same day—perhaps with the intention of bringing them out together—transferred his right in both to Blount. The latter resigned his property in Hero and Leander, and presumably in Lucan as well, to Paul Linley on March 2, 1597-8, and Linley certainly made over both works to John Flasket on June 26, 1600.¹ Flasket's 1600 edition of Hero and Leander is undoubtedly the result of the transaction last referred to, but it is not easy to account for the misleading allusion to the Lucan translation on the title page or the failure to mention Chapman. Flasket's original design may have been to produce an edition of the Marlovian part of Hero and Leander, supplemented by the Lucan. Such an intention may have preceded the arrangement with Linley, and would naturally, in that case, have been altered when the possession of Chapman's long continuation of Hero and Leander rendered it unnecessary to eke out a thin volume by the insertion of the Lucan. The latter work, being then of no immediate consequence to Flasket, would seem to have been acquired and at once printed by Thomas Thorpe. The Stationers' Register contains no record, however, of the transfer of the piece from Flasket to Thorpe or to any one else, and the question of the precise origin of this single early edition of the poem is not easily soluble.

¹ The famous publisher of Shakespeare's sonnets (1609). It is worthy of note that Thorpe also published in 1614 a complete translation of the Pharsalia, the work of Sir Arthur Gorges.

² The third (?) edition, at least one other having been issued in 1598 by Paul Linley. Cf. p. 485.

Marlowe's translation of Lucan is a work of some curious interest, as being one of the earliest English poems in blank verse. It displays greater maturity than the Elegies, both in expression and in metrical skill, but has the same general faults and must, like the other translation, be ascribed to an early period in the poet's career. In his later years Marlowe would hardly have submitted to the tyranny of a line-for-line translation. Erroneous renderings abound on every page, but it is seldom that the reader meets with what is so common in the Elegies—lines entirely destitute of sense or coherence. The work has, as a whole, a majestic rhythm, and the choice of words is always that of the born poet. In many of the finer passages we see the author practising, as it were, that peculiarly melodious blank verse of which he shows himself in Tamburlaine so complete a master. Such lines as the following have the distinct flavour of Marlowe's developed style:

Figulus more seene in heauenly mysteries,
Whose like Aegyptian Memphis neuer had
For skill in stars, and tune-full planeting.²

TO HIS KIND, AND TRVE FRIEND:
EDWARD BLVNT.

Blount: I purpose to be blunt with you, & out of my dulnesse to encounter you with a Dedication in the memory of that pure Elementall wit Chr. Marlow; whose ghoast or Genius is to be seene walke the Churchyard in (at the least) three or foure sheets. Me thinks you should presently looke wilde now, and 5 growe humorously frantique vpon the tast of it. Well, least you should, let mee tell you. This spirit was sometime a familiar of your own, Lucans first booke translated; which (in regard of your old right in it) I haue rais'd in the circle of your Patronage. But stay now Edward (if I mistake not) 10 you are to accommodate your selfe with some fewe instructions, touching the property of a Patron, that you are not yet possesst of; and to study them for your better grace as our Gallants do fashions. First you must be proud and thinke you haue merit inough in you, though you are ne're so emptie; then 15 when I bring you the booke take physicke, and keepe state, assigne me a time by your man to come againe, and afore the day be sure to haue chang'd your lodging; in the meane time sleepe little, and sweat with the inuention of some pittifull dry iest or two which you may happen to utter, with some litle (or 20 not at al) marking of your friends when you haue found a place for them to come in at; or if by chance something has dropt from you worth the taking vp weary all that come to you with the often repetition of it; Censure scornefully inough, and somewhat like a trauailer; commend nothing least you 25 discredit your (that which you would seeme to haue) iudgement. These things if you can mould your selfe to them Ned I make no question but they will not become you. One speciall vertue in our Patrons of these daies I haue promist my selfe you shall fit excellently, which is to giue nothing; Yes, thy loue I 30 will challenge as my peculiar Object both in this, and (I hope) manie more succeeding offices: Farewell, I affect not the world should measure my thoughts to thee by a scale of this Nature: Leauē to thinke good of me when I fall from thee.

Thine in all rites of perfect friendship, 35

Ep. Ded. 1 Blount] Blunt Dyce

THE FIRST BOOKE OF LVCAN TRANSLATED INTO ENGLISH.

Wars worse then ciuill on Thessalian playnes,
 And outrage strangling law & people strong,
 We' sing, whose conquering swords their own breasts
 launcht,
 Armies alied, the kingdoms league vprooted,
 Th'affrighted worlds force bent on publike spoile, 5
 Trumpets, and drums like deadly threatning other,
 Eagles alike displaide, darts answering darts.
 Romans, what madnes, what huge lust of warre
 Hath made Barbarians drunke with Latin bloud ?
 Now Babilon, (proud through our spoile) should stoop, 10
 While slaughtred Crassus ghost walks vnreung'd,
 Will ye wadge war, for which you shall not triumph ?
 Ay me, O what a world of land and sea
 Might they haue won whom ciuil broiles haue slaine!
 As far as Titan springs where night dims heauen, 15
 I to the Torrid Zone where midday burnes,
 And where stiffe winter whom no spring resolues,
 Fetters the Euxin sea with chaines of yce :
Scythia and wilde Armenia had bin yoakt,
 And they of Nilus mouth (if there liue any.) 20
 Roome, if thou take delight in impious warre,
 First conquer all the earth, then turne thy force
 Against thy selfe : as yet thou wants not foes.
 That now the walles of houses halfe rear'd totter,
 That rampiers fallen down, huge heapes of stone 25
 Lye in our townes, that houses are abandon'd,
 And few liue that behold their ancient seats ;
Italy many yeares hath lyen vntil'd,

3 launcht] lanc'd Dyce 20 mouth] Qy. ' source ' or ' fount ' ?
 24 rear'd Dyce etc. : reaser'd r600

And choakt with thorns, that greedy earth wants hinds.
 Fierce Pirhus, neither thou nor Hanniball 30
 Art cause, no forraine foe could so afflict vs,
 These plagues arise from wreake of ciuill power.
 But if for Nero (then vnborne) the fates
 Would find no other meanes, (and gods not sleightly
 Purchase immortal thrones; nor Ioue ioide heauen 35
 Vntill the cruel Giants war was done.)
 We plaine not heauens, but gladly beare these euils
 For Neros sake: Pharsalia grone with slaughter,
 And Carthage soules be glutted with our blouds;
 At Munda let the dreadfull battailes ioine; 40
 Adde Cæsar, to these illes Perusian famine;
 The Mutin toyles; the fleet at Leuca suncke;
 And cruel field nere burning Aetna fought:
 Yet Room is much bound to these ciuil armes,
 Which made thee Emperor, thee (seeing thou being old 45
 Must shine a star) shal heauen (whom thou louest,) Receiue with shouts; where thou wilt raigne as King,
 Or mount the sunnes plume bearing charriot,
 And with bright restles fire compasse the earth,
 Vndaunted though her former guide be chang'd. 50
Nature, and euery power shal giue thee place,
 What God it please thee be, or where to sway:
 But neither chuse the north t'erect thy seat;
 Nor yet the aduerse reking southerne pole,
 Whence thou shouldst view thy Roome with squinting beams. 55
 If any one part of vast heauen thou swayest,
 The burdened axes with thy force will bend;
 The midst is best; that place is pure, and bright,
 There Cæsar may'st thou shine and no cloud dim thee;
 Then men from war shal bide in league, and ease, 60
 Peace through the world from Ianus Phane shal flie,
 And boult the brazen gates with barres of Iron
 Thou Cæsar at this instant art my God,
 Thee if I inuocate, I shall not need
 To craue Appolloes ayde, or Bacchus helpe; 65
 Thy power inspires the Muze that sings this war.
 The causes first I purpose to vnfold
 Of these garboiles, whence springs a long discourse,
 And what made madding people shake off peace.

The fates are enuious, high seats quickly perish, 70
 Vnder great burdens fals are euer greeuous ;
 Roome was so great it could not beare it selfe :
 So when this worlds compounded vnion breakes,
 Time ends and to old Chaos all things turne ;
 Confused stars shal meete, celestiall fire 75
 Fleete on the fouds, the earth shoulder the sea,
 Affording it no shoare, and Phæbe's waine
 Chace Phæbus and inrag'd affect his place,
 And striue to shine by day, and ful of strife
 Disolue the engins of the broken world. 80
 All great things crush themselues, such end the gods
 Allot the height of honor, men so strong
 By land, and sea, no forreine force could ruine :
 O Roome thy selfe art cause of all these euils,
 Thy selfe thus shiuered out to three mens shares : 85
 Dire league of partners in a kingdome last not.
 O faintly ioyn'd friends with ambition blind,
 Why ioine you force to share the world betwixt you ?
 While th' earth the sea, and ayre the earth sustaines ;
 While Titan striues against the worlds swift course ; 90
 Or Cynthia nights Queene waights vpon the day ;
 Shall neuer faith be found in fellow kings.
 Dominion cannot suffer partnership ;
 This need no forraine prooffe, nor far fet story :
 Roomes infant walles were steeped in brothers blood ; 95
 Nor then was land, or sea, to breed such hate,
 A towne with one poore church set them at oddes.
Cæsars, and Pompeys iarring loue soone ended,
 T'was peace against their wils ; betwixt them both
 Stept Crassus in : euen as the slender Isthmos, 100
 Betwixt the Aegean and the Ionian sea,
 Keepes each from other, but being worne away
 They both burst out, and each incounter other :
 So when as Crassus wretched death who stayd them
 Had fild Assirian Carras wals with blood, 105
 His losse made way for Roman outrages.
Parthians y'afflict vs more then ye suppose,
 Being conquered, we are plaugde with ciuil war.
 Swords share our Empire, fortune that made Roome
 Gouverne the earth, the sea, the world it selfe 110
 Would not admit two Lords : for Iulia
 Snatcht hence by cruel fates with ominous howles,

Bare downe to hell her sonne the pledge of peace,
 And all bands of that death presaging aliance.
Julia, had heauen giuen thee longer life 115
 Thou hadst restrainde thy headstrong husbands rage,
 Yea and thy father to, and swords thrown down,
 Made all shake hands as once the Sabines did ;
 Thy death broake amity and trainde to war
 These Captaines emulous of each others glory. 120
 Thou feard'st (great Pompey) that late deeds would dim
 Olde triumphs, and that Cæsars conquering France
 Would dash the wreath thou wearst for Pirats wracke.
 Thee wars vse stirde, and thoughts that alwaies scorn'd
 A second place ; Pompey could bide no equall, 125
 Nor Cæsar no superior, which of both
 Had iustest cause vnlawful tis to iudge :
 Each side had great partakers ; Cæsars cause
 The gods abetted ; Cato likt the other.
 Both differ'd much, Pompey was strooke in yeares, 130
 And by long rest forgot to manage armes,
 And being popular sought by liberal gifts,
 To gaine the light vnstable commons loue,
 And ioyed to heare his Theaters applause ;
 He liu'd secure boasting his former deeds, 135
 And thought his name sufficient to vphold him,
 Like to a tall oake in a fruitfull field,
 Bearing old spoiles and conquerors monuments,
 Who though his root be weake, and his owne waight
 Keepe him within the ground, his armes al bare, 140
 His body (not his boughs) send forth a shade ;
 Though euery blast it nod, and seeme to fal,
 When all the woods about stand bolt vp-right,
 Yet he alone is held in reuerence.
Cæsars renowne for war was lesse, he restles, 145
 Shaming to striue but where he did subdue,
 When yre, or hope prouokt, heady, & bould,
 At al times charging home, & making hauock ;
 Vrging his fortune, trusting in the gods,
 Destroying what withstood his proud desires, 150
 And glad when bloud, & ruine made him way :
 So thunder which the wind teares from the cloudes,
 With cracke of riuen ayre and hideous sound
 Filling the world, leapes out and throwes forth fire,
 Affrights poore fearefull men, and blasts their eyes 155
 With ouerthwarting flames, and raging shoots

Alongst the ayre and no(ugh)t resisting it
 Falls, and returnes, and shiuers where it lights.
 Such humors stirde them vp; but this warrs seed
 Was euen the same that wrack's all great dominion. 160
 When fortune made vs lords of all, wealth flowed,
 And then we grew licencious and rude,
 The soldiours pray, and rapine brought in ryot,
 Men tooke delight in Iewels, houses, plate,
 And scorn'd old sparing diet, and ware robes 165
 Too light for women; Pouerty (who hatcht Roomes greatest wittes) was loath'd, and al the world
 Ransackt for golde, which breeds the world decay;
 And then large limits had their butting lands,
 The ground which Curius and Camillus till'd, 170
 Was stretcht vnto the fields of hinds vnknowne;
 Againe, this people could not brooke calme peace,
 Them freedome without war might not suffice,
 Quarrels were rife, greedy desire stil poore
 Did vild deeds, then t'was worth the price of bloud 175
 And deem'd renowne to spoile their natue towne,
 Force masterd right, the strongest gouern'd all.
 Hence came it that th' edicts were ouerrul'd,
 That lawes were broake, Tribunes with Consuls stroue,
 Sale made of offices, and peoples voices 180
 Bought by themselues & solde, and euery yeare
 Frauds and corruption in the field of Mars;
 Hence interest and deuouring vsury sprang,
 Faiths breach, & hence came war to most men welcom.
 Now Cæsar ouerpast the snowy Alpes. 185
 His mind was troubled, and he aim'd at war,
 And comming to the foord of Rubicon,
 At night in dreadful vision fearefull Roome,
 Mourning appear'd, whose hoary hayres were torne,
 And on her Turret bearing head disperst, 190
 And armes all naked, who with broken sighes,
 And staring, thus bespoke: What mean'st thou Cæsar?
 Whether goes my standarde? Romans if ye be,
 And beare true harts, stay heare. This spectacle
 Stroake Cæsars hart with feare, his hayre stode vp, 195
 And faintnes numm'd his steps there on the brincke:
 He thus cride out: Thou thunderer that guardst
 Roomes mighty walles built on Tarpeian rocke,
 Ye gods of Phrigia and Iulus line,

Quirinus rites and Latian Ioue aduanc'd 200
 On Alba hill, o Vestall flames, o Roome,
 My thoughts sole goddæes, aide mine enterprise.
 I hate thee not, to thee my conquests stoope,
Cæsar is thine, so please it thee, thy soldier ;
 He, he afflicts Roome that made me Roomes foe. 205
 This said, he laying aside all lets of war,
 Approacht the swelling streame with drum and ensigne,
 Like to a Lyon of scortcht desert Affricke,
 Who seeing hunters pauseth till fell wrath
 And kingly rage increase, then hauing whiskt 210
 His taile athwart his backe, and crest heau'd vp,
 With iawes wide open ghastly roaring out ;
 (Albeit the Moores light Iauelin or his speare Sticks in his side) yet runs vpon the hunter.
 In summer time the purple Rubicon, 215
 Which issues from a small spring, is but shallow,
 And creepes along the vales deuiding iust
 The bounds of Italy from Cisalpin Fraunce ;
 But now the winters wrath and wat'ry moone,
 Being three daies old inforst the flood to swell, 220
 And frozen Alpes thaw'd with resolving winds.
 The thunder hou'd horse in a crooked line,
 To scape the violence of the streame first waded,
 Which being broke the foot had easie passage.
 As soone as Cæsar got vnto the banke 225
 And bounds of Italy ; here, here (saith he)
 An end of peace ; here end polluted lawes ;
 Hence leagues, and couenants ; Fortune thee I follow,
 Warre and the destinies shall trie my cause.
 This said, the restles generall through the darke 230
 (Swifter then bullets throwne from Spanish slinges, Or darts which Parthians backward shoot) marcht on
 And then (when Lucifer did shine alone,
 And some dim stars) he Arriminum enter'd :
 Day rose and viewde these tumultes of the war ; 235
 Whether the gods, or blustering south were cause
 I know not, but the cloudy ayre did frown ;
 The soldiours hauing won the market place,
 There spred the colours, with confused noise
 Of trumpets clange, shril cornets, whistling fifes ; 240
 The people started ; young men left their beds,
 And snatcht armes neer their household gods hung vp
 Such as peace yeelds ; wormeaten leatherne targets.

Through which the wood peer'd, headles darts, olde swords
 With vgly teeth of blacke rust foully scarr'd : 245
 But seeing white Eagles, & Roomes flags wel known,
 And lofty Cæsar in the thickest throng,
 They shooke for feare, & cold benumm'd their lims,
 And muttering much, thus to themselues complain'd :
 O wals vnfortunate too neere to France, 250
 Predestinate to ruine ; all lands else
 Haue stable peace, here wars rage first begins,
 We bide the first brunt ; safer might we dwell
 Vnder the frosty beare, or parching East,
 Wagons or tents, then in this frontire towne. 255
 We first sustain'd the vproares of the Gaules,
 And furious Cymbrians and of Carthage Moores,
 As oft as Roome was sackt, here gan the spoile.
 Thus sighing whispered they, and none durst speake
 And shew their feare, or grieve : but as the fields 260
 When birds are silent thorough winters rage ;
 Or sea far from the land, so all were whist.
 Now light had quite dissolu'd the mysty night,
 And Cæsars mind vnsetled musing stood ;
 But gods and fortune prickt him to this war, 265
 Infringing all excuse of modest shame,
 And laboring to approue his quarrell good.
 The angry Senate vrging Grachus deeds,
 From doubtfull Roome wrongly expel'd the Tribunes,
 That crost them ; both which now approacht the camp, 270
 And with them Curio, sometime Tribune too,
 One that was feed for Caesar, and whose tongue
 Could tune the people to the Nobles mind.
Cæsar (said he) while eloquence preuail'd,
 And I might pleade, and draw the Commons minds 275
 To fauour thee against the Senats will,
 Fiue yeeres I lengthned thy commaund in France :
 But law being put to silence by the wars,
 We from our houses driuen, most willingly
 Suffered exile : let thy sword bring vs home. 280
 Now while their part is weake, and feares, march hence.
 „ Where men are ready, lingering euer hurts :
 In ten yeares wonst thou France ; Roome may be won
 With farre lesse toile, and yet the honors more ;
 Few battailes fought with prosperous sucresse 285
 May bring her downe, and with her all the world.

Nor shalt thou triumph when thou comst to Roome,
 Nor capitall be adorn'd with sacred bayes :
 Enuy denies all, with thy blood must thou
 Abie thy conquest past : the sonne decrees 290
 To expel the father ; share the world thou canst not ;
 Inioy it all thou maiest. Thus Curio spake,
 And therewith Cæsar prone ennough to warre,
 Was so incenst as are Eleius steedes
 With clamors : who though lockt and chaine in stalls, 295
 Souse downe the wals, and make a passage forth.
 Straight summon'd he his seuerall companies
 Vnto the standard : his graue looke appeas'd
 The wrastling tumult, and right hand made silence :
 And thus he spake : You that with me haue borne 300
 A thousand brunts, and tride me ful ten yeeres,
 See how they quit our bloudshed in the North,
 Our friends death, and our wounds, our wintering
 Vnder the Alpes ; Roome rageth now in armes
 As if the Carthage Hannibal were neere ; 305
 Cornets of horse are mustered for the field ;
 Woods turn'd to ships ; both land and sea against vs .
 Had forraine wars ill thriu'd ; or wrathful France
 Pursu'd vs hither, how were we bestead
 When comming conqueror Roome afflicts me thus ? 310
 Let come their leaders whom long peace hath quail'd
 Raw soldiours lately prest, and troupes of gownes ;
 Brabbling Marcellus ; Cato whom fooles reuerence ;
 Must Pompeis followers with strangers ayde,
 (Whom from his youth he bribde) needs make him king ?
 And shal he triumph long before his time, 316
 And hauing once got head still shal he raigne ?
 What should I talke of mens corne reapt by force,
 And by him kept of purpose for a dearth ?
 Who sees not warre sit by the quiuering Iudge ; 320
 And sentence giuen in rings of naked swords,
 And lawes assailde, and arm'd men in the Senate ?
 Twas his troupe hem'd in Milo being accusde ;
 And now least age might waine his state, he casts
 For ciuill warre, wherein through vse he's known 325
 To exceed his maister, that arch-traitor Sylla.
 A brood of barbarous Tygars hauing lapt
 The blood of many a heard, whilst with their dams

294 Eleius] Eleus' Dyce, Cunn. : Elean Bull. 311 leader Dyce etc. 313 Babbling Dyce etc. 327 A 1600 : As Dyce etc.

They kennel'd in Hircania, euermore
 Wil rage and pray : so Pompey thou hauing lick't 330
 Warne goare from Syllas sword art yet athirst,
 Iawes flesh'd with bloud continue murderous.
 Speake, when shall this thy long vsurpt power end ?
 What end of mischiefe ? Sylla teaching thee,
 At last learne wretch to leaue thy monarchy. 335
 What, now Scicillian Pirats are suppress't,
 And jaded king of Pontus poisoned slaine,
 Must Pompey as his last foe plume on me,
 Because at his commaund I wound not vp
 My conquering Eagles ? say I merit nought, 340
 Yet for long seruice done, reward these men,
 And so they triumph, be't with whom ye wil.
 Whether now shal these olde bloudles soules repaire ?
 What seates for their deserts ? what store of ground
 For seruitors to till ? what Colonies 345
 To rest their bones ? say Pompey, are these worse
 Then Pirats of Sycillia ? they had houses.
 Spread, spread these flags that ten years space haue conquer'd,
 Lets vse our tried force, they that now thwart right
 In wars wil yeeld to wrong : the gods are with vs. 350
 Neither spoile, nor kingdom seeke we by these armes,
 But Roome at thraldoms feet to rid from tyrants.
 This spoke none answer'd, but a murmuring buz
 Th'vnstable people made : their houshold gods
 And loue to Room (thogh slaughter steeld their harts 355
 And minds were prone) restrain'd them ; but wars loue
 And Casars awe dasht all : then Lalius
 The chiefe Centurion crown'd with Oaken leaues,
 For sauing of a Romaine Citizen,
 Stept forth, and cryde : Chiefe leader of Rooms force, 360
 So be I may be bold to speake a truth,
 We grieve at this thy patience and delay.
 What doubtst thou vs ? euen now when youthfull bloud
 Pricks forth our liuely bodies, and strong armes
 Can mainly throw the dart, wilt thou indure 365
 These purple groomes ? that Senates tyranny ?
 Is conquest got by ciuill war so hainous ?
 Well, leade vs then to Syrtes desert shoare ;
 Or Scythia ; or hot Libiaes thirsty sands.

332 flesh'd Dyce etc. : flesh 1600 337 jaded king Dyce etc. :

This hand that all behind vs might be quail'd, 370
 Hath with thee past the swelling Ocean,
 And swept the foming brest of Articks Rhene.
 Loue ouer-rules my will, I must obay thee,
Cæsar, he whom I heare thy trumpets charge
 I hould no Romaine; by these ten blest ensignes 375
 And all thy seuerall triumphs, shouldst thou bid me
 Intombe my sword within my brothers bowels;
 Or fathers throate; or womens groning wombe;
 This hand (albeit vnwilling) should performe it;
 Or rob the gods; or sacred temples fire: 380
 These troupes should soone pull down the church of Ioue.
 If to incampe on Thuscan Tybers streames,
 Ile bouldly quarter out the fields of Rome;
 What wals thou wilt be leaueld with the ground,
 These hands shall thrust the ram, and make them flie, 385
 Albeit the Citty thou wouldst haue so ra'st
 Be Roome it selfe. Here euery band applauded,
 And with their hands held vp, all ioyntly cryde
 They'll follow where he please: the showts rent heauen,
 As when against pine bearing Ossa's rocks 390
 Beates Thracian Boreas; or when trees bowde down,
 And rustling swing vp as the wind fets breath
 When Cæsar saw his army proane to war,
 And fates so bent, least sloth and long delay
 Might crosse him, he withdrew his troupes from France, 395
 And in all quarters musters men for Roome.
 They by Lemannus nooke forsooke their tents;
 They whom the Lingones foild with painted speares,
 Vnder the rockes by crooked Voges;
 And many came from shallow Isara, 400
 Who running long, fals in a greater flood,
 And ere he sees the sea looseth his name;
 The yellow Ruthens left their garrisons;
 Mild Atax glad it beares not Roman boats,
 And frontier Varus that the campe is farre, 405
 Sent aide; so did Alcides port, whose seas
 Eate hollow rocks, and where the north-west wind
 Nor Zephir rules not, but the north alone
 Turmoiles the coast, and enterance forbids;
 And others came from that vncertaine shore, 410

Which is nor sea, nor land, but oft times both,
 And changeth as the Ocean ebbes and flowes :
 Whether the sea rould alwaies from that point,
 Whence the wind blowes stil forced to and fro ;
 Or that the wandring maine follow the moone ; 415
 Or flaming Titan (feeding on the deepe)
 Puls them aloft, and makes the surge kisse heauen,
Philosophers looke you, for vnto me
 Thou cause, what ere thou be whom God assignes
 This great effect, art hid. They came that dwell 420
 By Nemes fields, and bankes of Salirus,
 Where Tarbels winding shoares imbrace the sea,
 The Santons that reioyce in Cæsars loue,
 Those of Bituriges and light Axon pikes ;
 And they of Rhene and Leuca, cunning darters, 425
 And Sequana that well could manage steeds ;
 The Belgians apt to gouerne Brittish cars ;
 Th' Auerni, too, which bouldly faine themselues
 The Romanes brethren, sprung of Ilian race ;
 The stubborne Neruians stained with Cottas blood ; 430
 And Vangions who like those of Sarmata,
 Were open slops : and fierce Batauians,
 Whome trumpets clang incites, and those that dwel
 By Cyngas streame, and where swift Rhodanus
 Drives Araris to sea ; they neere the hils, 435
 Vnder whose hoary rocks Gebenna hangs ;
 And Treuier, thou being glad that wars are past thee ;
 And you late shorne Ligurians, who were wont
 In large spread heire to exceed the rest of France ;
 And where to Hesus, and fell Mercury 440
 They offer humane flesh, and where Ioue seemes
 Bloudy like Dian, whom the Scythians serue ;
 And you French Bardi, whose immortal pens
 Renowne the valiant soules slaine in your wars,
 Sit safe at home and chaunt sweet Poesie. 445
 And Druides you now in peace renew
 Your barbarous customes, and sinister rites,
 In vnfeld woods, and sacred groues you dwell,
 And only gods & heauenly powers you know,
 Or only know you nothing. For you hold 450
 That soules passe not to silent Erebus
 Or Plutoes bloodles kingdom, but else where Resume a body : so (if truth you sing)

Death brings long life. Doubtles these northern men
 Whom death the greatest of all feares affright not, 455
 Are blest by such sweet error, this makes them
 Run on the swords point and desire to die,
 And shame to spare life which being lost is wonne.
 You likewise that repulst the Caicke foe,
 March towards Roome; and you fierce men of Rhene 460
 Leauing your countrey open to the spoile.
 These being come, their huge power made him bould
 To mannage greater deeds; the bordering townes
 He garrison'd; and Italy he filld with soldiours.
 Vaine fame increast true feare, and did inuade 465
 The peoples minds, and laide before their eies
 Slaughter to come, and swiftly bringing newes
 Of present war, made many lies and tales.
 One sweares his troupes of daring horsemen fought
 Vpon Meuias plaine, where Bulls are graz'd; 470
 Other that Cæsars barbarous bands were spread
 Along Nar floud that into Tiber fals,
 And that his owne ten ensignes, and the rest
 Marcht not intirely, and yet hide the ground,
 And that he's much chang'd, looking wild and big, 475
 And far more barbarous then the French (his vassals)
 And that he lags behind with them of purpose
 Borne twixt the Alpes & Rhene, which he hath brought
 From out their Northren parts, and that Roome
 He looking on by these men should be sackt. 480
 Thus in his fright did each man strengthen Fame,
 And without ground, fear'd what themselues had faind:
 Nor were the Commons only strooke to heart
 With this vaine terror, but the Court, the Senate;
 The fathers selues leapt from their seats; and flying
 Left hateful warre decreed to both the Consuls. 486
 Then with their feare, and danger al distract,
 Their sway of flight carries the heady rout
 That in chain'd troupes breake forth at euery port;
 You would haue thought their houses had bin fierd 490
 Or dropping-ripe, ready to fall with Ruine,
 So rusht the inconsiderate multitude
 Thorough the Citty hurried headlong on,
 As if the only hope (that did remaine
 To their afflictions) were t'abandon Roome. 495
 Looke how when stormy Auster from the breach

Of Libian Syrtes rouses a monstrous waue,
 Which makes the maine saile fall with hideous sound;
 The Pilot from the helme leapes in the sea;
 And Marriners, albeit the keele be sound, 500
 Shipwracke themselves: euen so the Citty left,
 All rise in armes; nor could the bed-rid parents
 Keep back their sons, or womens teares their husbands;
 They staid not either to pray or sacrifice,
 Their houshold gods restrain them not, none lingered,
 As loath to leaue Roome whom they held so deere: 506
 Th'irreuocable people flie in troupes.
 O gods that easie grant men great estates,
 But hardly grace to keepe them: Roome that flowes
 With Citizens and Captiues, and would hould 510
 The world (were it together) is by cowards
 Left as a pray now Cæsar doth approach:
 When Romans are besieged by forraine foes,
 With slender trench they escape night stratagems,
 And suddaine rampire raisde of turfe snatcht vp 515
 Would make them sleepe securely in their tents.
 Thou Roome at name of warre runst from thy selfe,
 And wilt not trust thy Citty walls one night:
 Wel might these feare, when Pompey fear'd and fled.
 Now euermore least some one hope might ease 520
 The Commons iangling minds, apparant signes arose,
 Strange sights appear'd, the angry threatening gods
 Fill'd both the earth and seas with prodigies;
 Great store of strange and vnknown stars were seene
 Wandering about the North, and rings of fire 525
 Flie in the ayre, and dreadfull bearded stars,
 And Commets that presage the fall of kingdoms.
 The flattering skie gliter'd in often flames,
 And sundry fiery meteors blaz'd in heauen:
 Now spearlike, long; now like a spreading torch 530
 Lightning in silence stole forth without clouds,
 And from the northren climat snatching fier
 Blasted the Capitoll: The lesser stars
 Which wont to run their course through empty night
 At noone day mustered; Phæbe hauing fild 535
 Her meeting hornes to match her brothers light,
 Strooke with th' earths suddaine shadow waxed pale;
Titan himselve throand in the midst of heauen,
 His burning chariot plung'd in sable cloudes,

And whelm'd the world in darknesse, making men
 Dispaire of day, as did Thiestes towne, 540
 (Mycenæ) Phæbus flying through the East :
 Fierce Mulciber vnbarred Ætna's gate,
 Which flamed not on high ; but headlong pitch
 Her burning head on bending Hespery. 545
 Cole-blacke Charibdis whirl'd a sea of blood ;
 Fierce Mastiues hould ; the vestall fires went out,
 The flame in Alba consecrate to Ioue
 Parted in twaine, and with a double point
 Rose like the Theban brothers funerall fire ; 550
 The earth went off hir hinges ; and the Alpes
 Shooke the old snow from off their trembling laps.
 The Ocean swell'd as high as Spanish Calpe,
 Or Atlas head ; their saints and houshold gods
 Sweate teares to shew the trauailes of their citty. 555
 Crownes fell from holy statues, ominous birds
 Defil'd the day, and wilde beastes were seene,
 Leauing the woods, lodge in the streetes of Rome.
 Cattell were seene that muttered humane speech :
 Prodigious birthes with more and vgly iointes, 560
 Then nature giues, whose sight appauls the mother,
 And dismall Prophetesies were spread abroad :
 And they whom fierce Bellonaes fury moues
 To wound their armes, sing vengeance, Sibils priests,
 Curling their bloody lockes, howle dreadfull things, 565
 Soules quiet and appeas'd sight from their graues,
 Clashing of armes was heard in vntrod woods,
 Shrill voices schright, and ghoasts incounter men.
 Those that inhabited the suburbe fieldes
 Fled, fowle Erinnis stalkt about the wals, 570
 Shaking her snakie haire and crooked pine
 With flaming toppe, much like that hellish fiend
 Which made the sterne Lycurgus wound his thigh,
 Or fierce Agave mad ; or like Megæra
 That scar'd Alcides, when by *Iuno*es taske 575
 He had before lookt Pluto in the face.
 Trumpets were heard to sound ; and with what noise
 An armed battaile ioines, such and more strange
 Blacke night brought forth in secret : Sylla's ghost
 Was seene to walke, singing sad Oracles, 580

 To these ostents (as their old custome was)
 They call th' Etrurian Augures, amonst whom
 The grauest, Aruns, dwelt in forsaken * Leuca, * or Luná.
 Well skild in Pyromancy; one that knew 586
 The hearts of beasts, and flight of wandring foules.
 First he commands such monsters Nature hatcht
 Against her kind (the barren Mules loth'd issue)
 To be cut forth and cast in dismall fiers: 590
 Then, that the trembling Citizens should walke
 About the City; then the sacred priests
 That with diuine lustration purg'd the wals,
 And went the round, in, and without the towne.
 Next, an inferiour troupe in tuckt vp vestures, 595
 After the Gabine manner: then the Nunnes
 And their vaild Matron, who alone might view
Mineruas statue; then, they that keepe, and read
Sybillas secret works, and washt their saint
 In Almo's floud: Next learned Augures follow, 600
Apolloes southsayers, and Ioues feasting priests;
 The skipping Salij with shields like wedges;
 And Flamins last, with networke wollen vailles.
 While these thus in and out had circled Roome,
 Looke, what the lightning blasted Aruns takes 605
 And it inters with murmurs dolorous,
 And cals the place Bidentall: on the Altar
 He laies a ne're-yaakt Bull, and powers downe wine,
 Then crams salt leuin on his crooked knife;
 The beast long struggled, as being like to proue 610
 An aukward sacrifice, but by the hornes
 The quick priest pull'd him on his knees & slew him:
 No vaine sprung out but from the yawning gash,
 In steed of red bloud wallowed venemous gore.
 These direful signes made Aruns stand amaz'd, 615
 And searching farther for the gods displeasure,
 The very cullor scard him; a dead blacknesse
 Ranne through the bloud, that turn'd it all to gelly,
 And stain'd the bowels with darke lothsome spots;
 The liuer swell'd with filth, and euery vaine 620
 Did threaten horror from the host of Cæsar;
 A small thin skinne contain'd the vital parts,
 The heart stird not, and from the gaping liuer

599 washt] wash Dyce etc.

Squis'd matter through the cal; the intralls pearde,
 And which (aie me) euer pretendeth ill, 625
 At that bunch where the liuer is, appear'd
 A knob of flesh, whereof one halfe did looke
 Dead, and discoulour'd; th' other leane and thinne.
 By these he seeing what myschiefes must ensue,
 Cride out, O gods! I tremble to vnfold 630
 What you intend: great Ioue is now displeas'd,
 And in the brest of this slaine Bull are crept
 Th'internall powers. My feare transcends my words,
 Yet more will happen then I can vnfold.
 Turne all to good, be Augury vaine, and Tages 635
 Th'arts master falce. Thus in ambiguous tearmes,
 Inuoluing all, did Aruns darkly sing.
 But Figulus more seene in heavenly mysteries,
 Whose like Aegiptian Memphis neuer had
 For skill in stars, and tune-full planeting, 640
 In this sort spake: The worlds swift course is lawlesse
 And casual; all the starres at randome radge:
 Or if Fate rule them, Rome thy Cittizens
 Are neere some plague: what mischiefe shall insue?
 Shall townes be swallowed? shall the thickned aire, 645
 Become intemperate? shall the earth be barraine?
 Shall water be conieal'd and turn'd to ice?
 O Gods what death prepare ye? with what plague
 Meane ye to radge? the death of many men
 Meetes in one period. If cold noysome Saturne 650
 Were now exalted, and with blew beames shinde,
 Then Gaynimede would renew Deucalions flood,
 And in the fleeting sea the earth be drencht.
 O Phæbus shouldst thou with thy rayes now sing
 The fell Nemean beast, th'earth would be fired, 655
 And heauen tormented with thy chafing heate,
 But thy fiers hurt not; Mars, 'tis thou enflam'st
 The threatning Scorpion with the burning taile
 And fier'st his cleyes. Why art thou thus enrag'd?
 Kind Iupiter, hath low declin'd himselfe; 660
Venus is faint; swift Hermes retrograde;
Mars onely rules the heauen: why doe the Planets
 Alter their course and vainly dim their vertue?
 Sword-girt Orions side glisters too bright.
 Wars radge draws neare; & to the swords strong hand 665
 Let all Lawes yeeld, sinne beare the name of vertue,

Many a yeare these furious broiles let last,
 Why should we wish the gods should euer end them?
 War onely giues vs peace, ô Rome continue
 The course of mischiefe, and stretch out the date 670
 Of slaughter; onely ciuill broiles make peace.
 These sad presages were enough to scarre
 The quiuering Romans, but worse things affright them.
 As Mænus full of wine on Pindus raues,
 So runnes a Matron through th'amazed streetes, 675
 Disclosing Phæbus furie in this sort:
*Pea*n whither am I halde? where shall I fall?
 Thus borne aloft I see Pangeus hill,
 With hoarie toppe, and vnder Hemus mount
Philippi plaines; Phæbus what radge is this? 680
 Why grapples Rome, and makes war, hauing no foes?
 Whither turne I now? thou lead'st me toward th'east,
 Where Nile augmenteth the Pelusian sea:
 This headlesse trunke that lies on Nylus sande
 I know: now throughout the aire I flie, 685
 To doubtfull Sirtes and drie Affricke, where
 A fury leades the Emathian bandes; from thence
 To the pine bearing hills, hence to the mounts
Pirene, and so backe to Rome againe.
 Se impious warre defiles the Senat house, 690
 New factions rise; now through the world againe
 I goe; ô Phæbus shew me Neplunes shore,
 And other Regions, I haue seene Philippi:
 This said, being tir'd with fury she sunke downe.
